Your War Garden

Every war gardener ought to know by this time the importance of diagramming his garden and of making a chart that will guide him in making continuous use of every square foot of his garden plot. He ought to have clearly in mind that preliminary cultivation is the most important cultivation, and that no amount of frenzied digging after vegetables have started growing will make up for failure to eliminate the clods and mulch the ground before planting. He ought to have a distinct impression of the value of fertilization and of what the relation is between barnyard manure or commercial fertilizer and increased production. He ought to realize what a transformation in soil vigor will result from adding a little lime to earth whose mossy surface growth shows that it is sour. He ought to know the logic of planning his garden so that it will get the maximum of light and air. He will not have forgotten the admonition to mark the rows north and south so that the sun will shine in between them, and to plant the taller vegetables on the north side so that the smaller shorter vegetables will not be shaded by them.

But to all this homely counsel there should be added a word of advice as to the gardener's personal habits. He will find that setting the clock an hour ahead has wonderfully shortened the morning and accordingly lengthened the evening. If he can get a start by half past five or six o'clock the blanket of night bonds, and $120 worth of War Savings Stamps. In many of his schools 100 per cent of the pupils have Thrift cards started. Superintendent Thompson has organized pig clubs, lamb clubs, garden clubs and canning clubs in all schools in his county, and is anxious to get more to invest their returns from these activities in Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps.

Roy Penland, teacher at Helix, Umatilla county, reports that his school has qualified 100 per cent for the Junior Rain-bow regiment.

Miss Hilda Muender of Agness, Curry county, reports that although there are only 48 voters in the district, the pupils have sold $723.18 worth of Thrift Stamps, and the residents have purchased $1300 worth of Liberty bonds.

If a soldier asked you for two-bits to buy cigarettes you'd give it to him, wouldn't you, even though it meant going without cigarettes yourself. Well, then, next time you think of spending two-bits for cigarettes buy a Thrift Stamp. The soldier and you lend Uncle Sam your quarter to buy bullets or powder or food for someone over there.

Shaver school distinguished itself by a patriotic entertainment given in the assembly. Two performances netted the patriotic fund about $110. S. C. Eratton, who was given a rousing welcome said: "As I have seen and heard your performance this evening, I have been moved first to tears then to laughter. You are earnest, sincere, patriotic young citizens. As general of the educational division of the W. S. S. committee, I have before me a wonderful record of your Thrift and W. S. S. work, that shows me there must be a splendid harmony throughout this whole institution."

Scott Redfield, formerly with the Portland Railway, Light & Power company and until the war secretary of local draft board No. 3, has resigned to enlist in a new cavalry regiment being organized at Camp Fremont, Cal. He will be given the position of regimental sergeant major. Redfield served with Troop A, Oregon cavalry, at the Mexican border and was seriously wounded by a Mexican while there. He was in the army hospital in San Francisco for months before recovering sufficiently to return to Portland. Redfield left Tuesday night for Camp Fremont.

several shifts was released without trial. Mears now is bringing suit against B. F. McCurdy, into whose keeping he was given by Lieutenant Stevens, on charges of false arrest and imprisonment. He asks $15,000 damages. McCurdy's defense will be that he made the arrest at the order of Lieutenant Stevens, who evidently acted upon orders from the war department. An effort will be made to secure a deposition from Lieutenant Stevens in McCurdy's behalf.
