Melodrama Full Of Thrills and Excitement

"House of Thousand Candles" Is Being Presented by Alcazar Players at Baker This Week.

THOSE who revel in melodrama will find it to their hearts content at the Baker where "The House of a Thousand Candles" is being performed. The play, which is full of mystery thrills, is adapted from a story which had a surprising popularity a number of years ago.

The plot deals with the efforts of a "peculiar" old Indiana man to find out the worth of his grandson, his heir-in-law. The old man apparently disappears and is supposed to be dead, but all the time he is being secretly carried out and his physical being mysteriously ministered by his butler.

The old man's house, as grim and as old as he, is occupied by the greatest of the candle-burners, constantly burning, another of the old man's eccentricities. Villain number one is the executor of the supposed will. Villain number two is the lodge keeper who is always appearing uninvited through mysterious openings and sliding panels. The villain's chief aim in life seems to be to break up the pretty romance which is developing between the grandson and the girl whom the old man has selected for his heir's wife.

The audience is kept mystified by the ministrations of the butler who at one moment seems to be an enemy of the grandson and at the next is promoting the romance.

Smith Davies in the role of the butler sustains his mysterious character throughout the play and when a confession is trembling on his lips forces it back with a smile.

William Dills plays the old man in a wonderful way, and Edward Everett Horton is equally as good in the part of the hero. Ruth Gates takes the part of the heroine in a charming manner. All the other parts are well sustained.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, who is appearing in "Reaching for the Moon" at the Sunset. The play is one of the best of the Fairbanks productions, giving the noted star opportunity to display both humor and athletic stunts.

Columbia River Lothario, Age 78 Wants to Wed "Chicken"

Scenic Wonder Will Be Reeled Off Throughout the Country.

THE wonderful Columbia river highway has been "filmed" and will be released early next season as an exclusive feature of the Orpheum Travel Weekly. As such it will be presented at every Orpheum theatre in the country, reaching Portland in the latter part of the season, and later may go abroad.

The picture was made under the direction of Frank J. McGettigan, manager of the Portland Orpheum, at the request of C. H. Bray, assistant general manager of the Orpheum circuit, who searches the world for the most beautiful works of man and nature for his pictures. Mr. Bray's camera arm was then packed for shipment to eastern headquarters for routing.

The picture was taken by Lewis M. Moomaw of the American Lifeograph company, Portland, and shows the highway from its beginning to Bonneville and Eagle creek. One winter scene, Multnomah falls in a mantle of snow and ice, is one of the most beautiful features.

The film was projected privately Monday morning to S. Benson, officials of the Warren Construction company and a few other invited guests, and was then packed for shipment to eastern headquarters for routing.

Paulist Choir Is Given High Praise

Springfield, Mass., Republican Lauds Organization Aiding in War Work.

THE Paulist chorists, who are at present touring the country in behalf of the fund for rehabilitating the destroyed villages in the northern part of France, and who will give two concerts in Portland on June 1 and 2, have received high praise from the press. Among the papers which speak in glowing terms of the boys is the staid old Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

"No doubt," says this paper, "the large audience last night was to a certain extent due to the cause for which the choir was singing, but the event was one of the highest artistic interest quite on its own merits. Father Finn is certainly one of the best conductors that there are, and his conducting last night was brilliant. Three or four of the selections were accompanied by Father Finn, but for the most part the choir sang without accompaniment. Yet the ease and purity of tone sustained and the lack of any indifferent passages at all, under the circumstances, was simply extraordinary. The whole organization is balanced splendidly. Mr. Snapping Turtle was very old and very spry and very cross. When Grand Grandpa Turtle saw those Trout and Pickers, he was awfully angry to see the others eating up all those nice fish, while he couldn't take a single bite! Can you tell me why he couldn't take a bite of that Trout? There is a good reason."

Uncle Sam's Tars See Great Highway

Fifty enlisted sailors and officers, the crew of the West Indian, the Portland ship recently commissioned in the navy, were given an automobile ride over the Columbia river highway yesterday by a number of public spirited men, who donated their cars for the purpose.

A show in special honor of the crew was given at the Pantages theatre yesterday, at which all men in naval uniforms were admitted free.

It was disclosed at the naval recruiting station yesterday that, while soldiers have been given numerous motor rides, yesterday's trip was the first event ever put on for the men of the navy. While the naval force stationed in Portland is not large, 6000 men have enlisted through the channels of its recruiting office.

Refreshments at the Reception

IT took a long time to revive Mrs. Jimmy, who was bleeding and severely wounded, when Quilly the Porcupine, tried to shake hands with the Bride. And you remember that Quilly fell all over himself and also all over the Bride, when he tried to shake hands.

Quilly was not used to receptions, and since he lost his wife, he had not gone much into society. It took a long time to pull all the Porcupine quilts out of the flesh of Mrs. Jimmy. But Teddy Possum was master of ceremonies; and he was very skillful in giving "First Aid to the Injured"—in fact, Teddy Possum was a Possum Boy Scout, and he had taken many lessons in giving "First Aid to the Injured." And in the commotion a bowl of punch was upset on the polished hardwood floor of the Coon Drawing Room; but the guests were very handy with the mops, and soon the floor was spick and span.

You know that each guest always takes along a mop, when he is invited out. And when they saw the blood of the Bride on the polished hardwood floor, they mopped up the floor in a jiffy with these mops—their tongues. And Teddy Possum said that Bobby Skunk and Teddy Possum had an awful fight to see who could lap up the most punch.

And soon refreshments were passed. You know most of the guests came for the refreshments, just as it often is among us. The waiters passed around fish for refreshments.

And Teddy Possum and Quilly Porcupine had planned an immense joke on Great Grandpa Snapping Turtle. Mr. Snapping Turtle was very old and very fat and very cross. When Grand Grandpa Turtle saw those Trout and Pickers, he was awfully angry to see the others eating up all those nice fish, while he couldn't take a single bite! Can you tell me why he couldn't take a bite of that Trout? There is a good reason.

his mouth. He intended to run to Mirror Pond with his Trout, and then hurry back to get more. But just as Great Grandpa Turtle was going out of the front door with his Trout in his mouth, Quilly Porcupine grabbed Mr. Turtle by the tail, and hung back for all he was worth.

And Great Grandpa Turtle couldn't budge an inch. And Great Grandpa Turtle was so mad he could have eaten nails. But Mr. Turtle was held by Quilly Porcupine, as in a vise, and he couldn't move, and he couldn't swallow a mouthful of that nice trout. He was awfully angry to see the others eating up all those nice fish, while he couldn't take a single bite! Can you tell me why he couldn't take a bite of that Trout? There is a good reason.

uly will be much smaller next year and several changes will be made. Altogether 12 of the 23 faculty members have either resigned or have been dropped, and several more are expected to go this week.

COCONUT OIL MAKES A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulified coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulified coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—A.D.
