SPLENDID RECORD BY GRADUATES OF J. H. S. IS REPORTED

Earnings of 171 Boys and Girls During Four Years More Than $35,000; War Causes Aided.

WASHINGTON GRADUATES 120

Every Member of Class Contributes to War Funds; Three Pay Own Expenses; 101 to Continue

The same spirit of industry that enabled the 171 girls and boys who are to be graduated from Jefferson high school this week, to earn more than $35,000 during their four years in high school, placed them in a position to invest $8200 in Liberty bonds and $822.25 in War Savings Stamps and contribute $1360 to the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., etc., according to a summary of the record of the class made by Principal Hopkin Jenkins.

Included in the number to receive diplomas are 53 boys and 118 girls. The class has contributed its quota to the 360 Jefferson boys in the nation's service, which accounts for the comparatively small number of boys to be graduated.

The distinction of being the youngest students in the class belongs to Mildred Fowler, aged 15 years and 8 months, and Donald Campbell, aged 16 years and 6 months, both of whom completed their courses in three and one half years. To Annie Pernot and Bonnie DeVaul go Portland Art Museum scholarships. One hundred and twenty of the 171 graduates expect to continue study in college to fit themselves for a wide variety of work.

Three Earn Large Sums

Glenn Cronk, Fred Kruger and Ruth Fors led the class in the amount of money earned in gainful occupation during their high school course, the three earning $2880, $2250 and $1246 respectively. Cronk was associated with his father on a farm, carried papers and worked as a clerk; Kruger, who is not quite 17 years old, worked as a janitor, carried papers, clerked and was employed as a stenographer; Miss Fors was employed as a domestic and, after acquiring sufficient skill in stenography through her course at Jefferson, accepted employment along that line.

The record further shows that the students who for the most part were self-sustaining during their high school career also participated in the variety of outside school activities.

Washington Graduates 120

There are 120 members of the Washington high school class, of whom 71 are girls and 49 boys. Of these 101 expect to continue their education in college or other institutions of higher learning. Two of the members of the class, Alice Myers and Louise Ingman, completed the four-year course in three and one half years.

Twenty-seven boys, who would have been graduated at this time have entered the service of their country. They are as follows: Infantry, Minot Frye, Fred Merrill, Douglass Burroughs, Lloyd Church, Frank Davis, Martin A. Johnson, Robert Meade, Rodger B. Shay, Lawrence Joys. Artillery, Don Cowan, Virgil Meyers, George Ross. Navy, Manley Danforth, Kenneth Poole, Lawrence Tynan, Ralph Tynan, Wilbur Sard Wiest, William Gregory. Aviation, Hugh Vinton, Earl Johnson, Morris Sewell, Lloyd Simon, Homer Biled, Walter Rich, Orin Harriman.

Three Make Own Way

Three of them, two girls and one boy, have supported themselves wholly during their high school course. Sixty-three others supported themselves in part. The work which they engaged in included: Carrying papers, home gardening, work in cannery, janitor work, furniture manufacturing, work in flour mill, housework, work in harvest fields, office work, caring for children, mechanical work, caddying at golf links, forestry work, printing, music teaching, work in theatre.

Practically all of the graduates have planned some sort of remunerative work for the summer. Of the kinds of work represented, shipbuilding will attract the largest number. Seventeen of the boys expect to go into that. Other kinds of work represented are: Optical work, work in lumber mill, work in cannery, farming, work in salmon fisheries, housework, berry picking, kindergarten work, office work, carrying papers, agriculture, clerical work, work in drug store, drafting, civil service work, surveying.

Every member of the class has contributed to the various war relief funds.

Second Breach of Dry Law Is Charged

Two days after he had paid a $94 fine for violation of the prohibition law, James N. Busch was rearrested on a similar charge, Tuesday night, by Officers Schmidtke, Webster and Abbott. Busch owns a cigar store at 203 Third street. It is alleged that Officer Webster asked to buy some hard cider and that, in the conversation, Busch offered to get the officer "something better." Webster is alleged to have persuaded Busch to sell him a pint for $6. The alleged transaction brought about the arrest. Carl Stegmaier, 18, is being held as a witness.

Busch was fined $100 on June 7 for violation of the prohibition law. He could not pay his fine, so he served three days in jail. Monday he secured the necessary funds and paid $94, the court allowing him to "work out" his fine at the rate of $2 per day.

NORTHWEST REALTY DELEGATES TO GO TO CONVENTION IN BODY

Puget Sound Men to Meet Local Party Here; Spokane Men to Join at Pendleton.

Representatives of the Portland and Seattle Realty boards will leave Portland, via the Union Pacific, for St. Louis, Thursday at 9:30 a. m., to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Realty boards. Portland men who will attend the convention are: Paul Murphy, president of the Portland Realty board; Fred E. Taylor, member from Portland on the executive committee of the national association; Paul A. Cowgill, vice president of the national secretaries' association; James Sayre, secretary of the Portland Building Owners' and Managers' association; W. J. Patterson and Harry Beckwith, realty dealers.

Delegates from the Seattle Realty board will join the Portland contingent here Thursday; the Spokane delegation will be picked up at Pendleton and realty men representing San Francisco and Southern California will join the Northwest delegates at Green River, Wyo.

The Pacific Coast realty men have been invited to stop over a day each in Denver and Kansas City as guests of the realty boards of these cities. They are scheduled to arrive at St. Louis on Monday morning, June 17, in time for the opening session of the convention.

The chief concern of the delegates will be to assist the government in the war's prosecution, according to Secretary Cowgill of the Portland Realty board. Mr. Cowgill is scheduled to preside at a round table session, at which patriotism will be the ruling spirit.

The St. Louis convention will continue four days, beginning Monday. Business meetings of the directors of the National Realty associates, a realty holding organization composed of members of realty boards, will also be held.

There are many stockholders of the National Realty associates in Portland. The organization owns Westover Terrace and other valuable property in this city. Such movement of its holdings as seems compatible with war time conditions will be promoted at the St. Louis meeting.

Portland Crematorium

CREMATION AND THE ANCIENTS

Cremation in the time of Greece's highest civilization was the only honorable method of disposal of the remains of the dead. Those who had sinned against the religious and man-made laws were buried and those who were victims of accidents attributed to the gods were not entitled to Cremation.

Again this saner, more reverent disposition is becoming universal. In the largest centers it is the rule.
