Shevlin-Burrell Wedding Is SurpriseTwo Prominent Portland Families
Are United in Marriage;
Bridegroom in Army.

By Ed L. Keen

THE marriage in New York city of Miss Louise Burrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Burrell, and Crosby Shevlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Shevlin of Portland, is announced by the parents of the bride and comes as a complete surprise to their hosts of friends. The couple are among the younger school set, the bride never having been formally presented in Portland society. The wedding united two most prominent families. News of the ceremony was received by wire Thursday and the details are as yet incomplete. The bridegroom is with Battery F, 101st field artillery, stationed at Camp Devens, Ayre, Mass. When Mr. Shevlin goes to France Mrs. Shevlin will return to her parents in Portland. The wedding occurred at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. L. F. Frissell, Vedmar, Newport, R. I. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Hughes of Old Trinity, which church the bride attended while at school at Toletorpe-on-the-Cliff. The bride wore her aunt's wedding gown. Among those present were: Dr. and Mrs. L. F. Frissell, the bride's uncle and aunt; Mrs. J. G. Edwards of Portland, Dr. and Mrs. Terry and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtis James.

Visiting in New York

Mrs. Hubert F. Parsons, wife of Lieutenant Parsons, now with Base Hospital 46, overseas, is visiting in New York with her sister, Mrs. Franklin Mott Jones Jr. Mrs. Parsons went East to join her husband before he sailed. She will probably remain there through the winter.

Lynn T. Keady, who left Portland with a number of local boys from the shipyards on one of the ships on which they had worked, going through the canal and up the east coast to New York, will join his mother, Mrs. Jones, and his aunt, Mrs. Parsons, for a visit before returning to Portland where he makes his home with his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Wallis. He is now a cadet engineer.

Visitors in City

Mrs. James Lester Gault of Burns, Or., is visiting in Portland, the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Wilson Johnston and Mrs. Lulu Dahl Miller. Mrs. Gault is a charming matron who has visited here frequently and made many friends in the city. She is prominent in women's club affairs in Central Oregon and also in musical affairs, being possessed of a beautiful voice. Her stay of two weeks or more will doubtless be filled with charming complimentary affairs.

Mrs. Reed Home

Mrs. Rose Courten Reed has returned from Astoria where she gave a most successful concert at the Astoria theatre. Mrs. Reed presented the Treble Clef club of Astoria in a varied program and assisting them were six pupils who gave groups of solos. Mrs. Reed was a house guest of Mrs. Charles Calender during her stay there.

Miss Foulkes to Go South

Miss Jocelyn Foulkes will leave Monday for California to pass the summer with an old time friend, Mrs. Mary Isabel Lockie at the Astoria school, Palo Alto.

Mrs. Charles Crawford Gorst of Boston, who is accompanying her husband, Dr. Gorst, the noted bird man, on his Western tour under the direction of Ellis & White, on the Chautauque circuit, is the guest in Portland of Mrs. G. C. Pewtherer, known professionally in her art work as Doris Evan Pewtherer, at the latter's home, 813 Kelly street. Mrs. Gorst and Mrs. Pewtherer are old time Boston friends and are enjoying a delightful visit together.

The importation of docked horses into the Philippines has been prohibited by law.

MRS. CROSBY SHEVLIN (Louise Burrell), whose marriage in New York at the Long Island home of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Frissell, was announced by wire Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Shevlin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Burrell.

War Time Cookery

The submarine has forced fighting Europe to a very strict sugar ration and compelled America to look the situation squarely in the face. There is only so much sugar, there are certain definite needs, and the problem before us is finding a practical plan of distribution. The food administration has adopted a certificate system to meet the household needs during the coming fruit season, and to guard against temporary shortages that may occur if more vessels are diverted from the Cuban trade. The consumer is asked to estimate his needs and fill out a certificate which will be furnished him by his grocer. The dealer is required to forward this certificate to the federal food administrator within one week after it is turned in to him.

This plan puts the question up to the individual, and the food administration asks the assistance of every householder in bringing about a practical distribution. The success of the plan depends on the good sense and good will of the American citizen. Cooperation, prompt action and a democratic sense of fair play will prevent a sugar shortage in America during the fruit season.

FRATERNAL NOTES

The annual I. O. O. F. picnic at Canemah Park July 4 was under the auspices of Canton Portland, No. 1. Members of the fraternity and their families began arriving with the first trains. Many waited until after the parade in Portland and then went out. The general committee in charge was E. B. Woertendyke, chairman; M. Briggs, R. C. Chrieman, H. M. Beckwith, A. J. J. Walther, F. H. Miller, R. Orvold, A. Kermode, J. T. Jones. Grand Warden A. H. Johnson delivered the welcoming address, and was followed by Arthur L. Moulton, noble grand of Orient lodge, and Frank E. Weed, grand conductor. Selections by the Zurluh orchestra, songs by E. Malvin Evans, and patriotic singing by the audience, was followed by a line of attractive sports and races. The I. O. O. F. Fourth of July picnic is an established institution in Portland that has been preserved in its patriotic strength for over 20 years.

Eureka council, Knights and Ladies of Security, held a well attended meeting last Monday night, initiated a class and held a social dance in Multnomah W. hall, following the close of the lodge.

Bronze Marker
Is Unveiled by
D. A. R.Monument on Old Trail Near Rhododendron Unveiled by Descendant of Samuel Barlow.

By Vella Winner

WITH ceremonies at once impressive and appropriate, the beautiful bronze marker erected near Rhododendron Inn by Multnomah chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in memory of Oregon pioneers, was unveiled Thursday in the presence of 50 or more members of the Daughters and their friends, as well as guests at the inn. The ceremonies were in charge of Mrs. J. Thorburn Ross, state historian of the Daughters.

The program, opened with the singing of "America," followed by the pledge to the flag. Rev. E. E. Gilbert, pastor of the M. E. church of Oregon City, gave the invocation, and the first address was given by W. H. H. Dufur, president of the Oregon Pioneer society, who paid a high tribute to the memory of the pioneers who passed over the trail. George H. Himes, secretary of the Oregon Historical society, gave interesting facts concerning the first settlers of the Oregon country. Mrs. Mary Barlow Wilkins, a granddaughter of Samuel K. Barlow, one of the first pioneers to pass over this trail, gave a most interesting review of the perilous trip of her ancestors across the trail.

Mrs. A. H. Breyman read a short report of the trail committee, which her daughter, Mrs. O. M. Ashe, is chairman, and also recounted the fact that she was the only one present who had personally passed over that road in the pioneer days, she being 4 years old at the time. A short paper written by Leslie M. Scott was read by Mrs. James N. Davis. The tablet was presented by Mrs. J. A. Keating, regent of Multnomah chapter. It was unveiled by Miss Madeline Brodie, a great-granddaughter of Samuel K. Barlow, and was accepted on behalf of the state chapter by Mrs. J. Thorburn Ross. The singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" closed the exercises.

It is the custom of the Willamette chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, to give a flag each year to some school or worthy institution. This year, Mrs. Harriett M. Fawcett, the fairy god-mother of Multnomah county hospital, wished to join with some of the chapter members in giving a flag to this home. On Saturday, June 29, Mesdames H. M. Fawcett, U. G. Smith, George L. Brown, D. D. Sweet, S. L. Albaugh and Julia A. Hays drove out and made a formal presentation, Mrs. Singleton, the matron, accepting the flag in a neat little reply to our regent's gift in the name of the Willamette chapter.

Reed College Crop
Money Appreciated

A letter of appreciation was received Thursday by President Foster of Reed college from Hugh S. Bird of the National Red Cross, Washington, D. C., for the $125 sent by the college to the Red Cross hospital at Biola, France, where Dr. Bertha Stuart, professor of physical education for women at the college, is stationed.

The money was raised by the sale of beans and potatoes grown on a tract of land cultivated last year by the college students and faculty. Mr. Bird expressed his appreciation of the way the money was raised.

Students Will Be Taught How to Swim

The swimming pool of the Couch school, which is only a block from the Lewis house city clinic conducted by Reed college, will be used on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays by the students in reconstruction aides, who must learn to swim as part of their training as an army hospital assistant.

Miss Ruth Smith, Miss Ruth Anderson and Miss Josephine Saunders will be swimming instructors at the Couch pool. At Reed college the outdoor swimming pool has been equipped with diving boards, wooden flooring, moored floats and a rowboat.

Household Hints

War has bent many an illusion, but one certain little institution it has tied a string around and done away with altogether. Have you missed her—the butterfly woman?

Perhaps it is wrong to say war has done away with the butterfly. It might be more correct to explain that no one loves the butterfly any more, and so she has run to cover. Or perhaps the butterfly decided that flitting about on golden wings isn't so very interesting when all the world is watching the buzzing bees.

How times have changed! A hundred years ago, which really means just before the war, how many of us secretly admitted the butterfly. Yes, we had our moments of scorn for her. But who in her heart of hearts hasn't at some time or other envied the expensive person who darted here and there in the hotel lobby with nary a weight on her head but a month-ahead-of-the-season's bonnet.

But that was before the war, when the time spent being a butterfly wasn't apt to cost—lives. We have begun to count the cost that way now. And the little surge of envy comes no more.

It used to be that having money enough to buy idle hours and be as expensive as you pleased was a lawful excuse to do this thing. Now it's different. Time and the things you do with time are valuable. The rich set woman in the world cannot buy more time than there is, and there is all too little of it to get America into shape to win a war with little loss of life. This is the reason the butterfly has gone into the discard. She was a waster—perfectly harmless but still a waster.

Women have turned into a nation of producers. Red Cross work rooms are alive with the hum of sewing machines. They are aglow with the snip of the scissors. The whole United States is gleaming with the light of millions of knitting needles. Already the women's war work employment bureaus are flooded with applicants.

Oh, who in the midst of a world atroph with work could find room for a butterfly?

And what has become of our pretty parasite? Did she really run to cover? No, she really didn't. What the butterfly really did was to slip into the hive, the hive where the bees are working, take off her month-ahead-of-the-season's bonnet and ask if there please wasn't something she could do. And because deep in the heart of humanity there's something that reaches out and recognizes sincerity, the butterfly was received with open arms. It isn't out of place to say that some butterflies are now "bosses" of work rooms. Which all goes to show that being a pretty parasite is sometimes just a matter of being asleep! War is a wonderful alarm clock.
