BULGARIA LIKELY TO BREAK WITH TEUTON, IS BELIEF

None Too Strong Ties With Germany Stretched to Breaking Point by Turkish Difficulties.

FERDINAND HAS DECAMPED

Country's Ruler Is at Karlsruhe on Pretense That His Health Requires Him to Take Rest.

Washington, Aug. 10.—(U. P.)—Revolt in Bulgaria and defection from the German alliance is believed possible and perhaps impending.

Events of extreme significance are transpiring behind the tight German censorship. High entente officials here are daily expecting Bulgaria to snap the weakening strings that have tied her to the German alliance for four years with nothing but increasing prospects of defeat as compensation.

An armistice until the end of the war, rather than a separate peace between Bulgaria and the allies is likely, entente officers says. Difficulties in framing a separate peace in the Balkans which would satisfy Serbia, Greece and Italy, are almost insurmountable until the general peace conference meets to remake the map of Europe.

Why Bulgaria Is Dissatisfied

Latest developments pointing toward Bulgaria's defection are:

1—German setbacks on the western front, foreshadowing ultimate defeat for the central powers.

2—Czar Ferdinand's hasty trip to Germany.

3—Wildest disorder and popular ill feeling toward the war party in Bulgaria.

4—Hatred of Turkey lately revived over territorial treaties.

5—German noncommittal attitude toward Bulgaria's demands for concessions against Turkey.

Germany's visible weakening on the western front is hastening Bulgaria's decision. Having little more to gain in the war, Bulgaria has been closely watching the turn of events since America entered the war. Now that Germany appears likely to be defeated, she wants to break away from the central powers before the crash comes.

On Peace Missions

Bulgarian agents have recently visited Switzerland and other neutral nations on peace missions and to feel out sentiment toward Bulgaria. While the United States has made no official announcement of its attitude, President Wilson blocked an attempt in congress last winter to declare war on Bulgaria, evidently hoping to conciliate her and weaken Germany in southeastern Europe.

Serbia and Greece, however, warn the allies against Bulgarian attempts to involve them in peace discussions. In a joint official statement issued by the Serbian and Greek representatives here tonight, the allies are cautioned that Bulgaria is playing Germany's game by trying to open a discussion for peace between Bulgaria and the allies in the hope that it will become general and end the war before Germany has completely lost.

Ferdinand Has Fled

Czar Ferdinand recently fled the country, announcing that his health required him to rest. He is actually under German protection at Karlsruhe, however, and it is believed that he left Bulgaria when rival factions seeking a break with Germany threatened to get control of affairs.

Ferdinand is trying to wrest concessions and promises from Germany in the hope of placating his people and inducing them to continue the war. Open revolt at home, however, may take things entirely out of Ferdinand's hands and it is even possible that a repetition of the Russion revolution might occur.

Wild disorder, famine and want is provoking the Bulgarian people. The army, under control of German officers, is taking the best of everything without returning compensation in the form of victory.

Reason for Uneasiness

Turkey, meanwhile, is pressing Germany to give back territory taken from her by Bulgaria in the Balkan wars, and failure of Germany to commit herself on this question is adding to Bulgaria's distrust of Prussian statesmen who want her to stay in the war.

It is knowledge that Greece is continuing to mobilize its army and has now close to 200,000 men, who will soon be equipped for a long and strenuous campaign, is giving the Bulgarians food for thought. The recent rout of the Austrians by the Italians has blasted hope of support from the dual monarchy. Bulgaria has reason to fear an allied blow at her. American troops are arriving in Italy in increasing numbers, releasing the latter for service elsewhere in Southern Europe. Increasing supplies and munitions now available to the allies, now make possible a unified attack by allied forces which would completely crush Bulgaria.

Bulgaria, however, is carefully refraining from any overt act which would arouse the allies to direct attack, and she has been especially careful to cultivate the good will of the United States.

Whatever develops, the allies will stick by Greece and Serbia in their just claims in the Balkans, it is believed.

Liberty Bond and Wagon Are Stolen

C. S. Smith of 838 Colonial avenue has reported to the police that a thief stole a $100 Liberty bond of the third issue from his home Thursday night. Jim Retas of 29 East Third street reported that two boys called at Peterson's blacksmith shop at Grand avenue and East Glisan streets Thursday morning and claimed a wagon which did not belong to them. The police found an automobile stolen from E. L. Rowland of Silverton, Or., at the corner of King and Washington streets Friday night.

A Safe Method for Removing Objectionable Hair

Hair under the arms is a needless annoyance. Women must remove it of course for the proper wearing of evenings' frocks and transparent sleeve blouses, but it is just as desirable for everyday comfort. For weeks following the use of Demosant' you will enjoy a new delightful sensation for underarm cleanliness. Demosant' is a new scientific discovery—sanitary, daintily perfumed and easily applied. Two minutes after its application you will find that all the hair has disappeared. Demosant' is daintily perfumed. For 75c one can obtain Demosant' from any drug or department store or by mail in plain wrapper from the Esbencott Laboratories, Portland, Oregon. (Adv.)

Shipbuilders to Be Hosts to Soldiers On Highway Trip

Through the courtesy of men in the Columbia River Shipbuilding Corporation's plant, 100 soldiers are to be taken for a trip over the Columbia river highway Sunday, August 18. The men will furnish their own cars for the purpose, while the Y. M. C. A. will provide the soldiers. The plan was suggested by the workman themselves to A. G. Johnson, "Y" plant secretary, who is working out details with J. H. McCoy of the local "Y" service department.

Taking the soldier boys out for Sunday trips over the highway and other points of interest in and near Portland is becoming a popular pastime, according to Secretary McCoy, who says that automobile owners are very fine in their spirit toward helping make life more pleasurable for the boys who are practically strangers here.

"Hundreds of the soldiers gather at the hut every Sunday morning, hoping for automobile rides in the city or nearby points," said Mr. McCoy. "Any owner of a car wishing to do a big, patriotic service any Sunday will be accommodated if he will drive to our building and express his wish; there are always plenty of soldiers waiting. Up to date, the owners have been very nice and we have been able to send hundreds of men out on trips who otherwise would have had none."

Civil War Veteran Battles Hun With Hand-Made Harness

Charles P. Hageley of 1137 East Seventeenth street north, is in his seventy-fourth year and a veteran of the Civil war, with a credit of three years' service with the First U. S. regular infantry. He retired from his trade of a saddle and harnessmaker several years ago, but on the declaration of war endeavored to be taken back into the army.

Failing in this patriotic effort, he went to his old employers, W. H. McMonies & Co., to see if their influence could not be exerted to secure his acceptance. "Come back to work for us, Charlie," said the manager. "We have some big army contracts and no men like you to work on them. We want hand workers who know how. You can help whip the Huns here better than anywhere else."

So the venerable man is working every day and earning the highest wages in the trade. Recently, on a wager of $50, he did more work in four hours than his competitor of half his age, much to the delight of his comrades who knew him at the bench 25 years ago.

STATE'S EDITORS WANT TO RETAIN TAX PUBLICATION

Association Goes on Record as Opposed to Measure Changing Existing Tax List Publication.

WANT PAY FOR LIBERTY ADS

Resolution Asks That Congress Spend Money for Advertising the Next Liberty Loan.

Marshfield, Or., Aug. 10.—Members of the Oregon Editorial association were entertained today at Shore Acres, the seaside home of L. J. Simpson. Leaving Marshfield this morning in autos, the party visited the McDonald & Vaughan Tarheel logging camp on the lower bay, where the cutting of spruce logs was viewed. Dinner was served the visitors at the logging camp and from there they went to Shore Acres. A business session was held and in the evening a sea food dinner and entertainment was given on the beach at Sunset Bay, the summer resort near the Simpson home.

Sunday the editors will visit Myrtle Point, Coquille and Bandon, and will go by auto and boats to see most of the Coquille valley.

At the Tarheel camp the party were taken on the log train to see the work in the woods. At the dinner served them, B. F. Irvine, associate editor of the Oregon Journal, gave a patriotic talk. At the business session at Shore Acres, talks were made by Miss Lucile Saunders of the Salem Statesman and Herbert Cuthbert of the Pacific Northwest Tourist association.

The following officers were elected: President, C. E. Ingall of the Corvallis Gazette Times; vice president, Edgar McDaniel of the Coos Bay Harbor, North Bend; secretary and treasurer, Lloyd Riches of the Oregon City Enterprise; director, one year, A. E. Scott of the Forest Grove Times; director, four year term, Bruce Dennis of the La Grande Observer.

Resolutions were passed asking congress to spend some money advertising the next Liberty loan in the newspapers; opposing the two proposed measures of C. S. Jackson regarding the printing of the delinquent tax lists; deciding to carry out a plan of education of the people on public affairs, and advocating the putting of newspapers and magazines in different classes of postal rates.

Industrial Worker May Be Deported

Astoria, Aug. 10. — Walter Morgan, an I. W. W., was arrested here today by Immigration Inspector Gooch, charged with illegally being in the United States. Morgan is Welsh and a British subject. On July 2 Morgan was arrested here and convicted of charges of criminal syndicalism. He failed to perfect his appeal to the circuit court and started to serve his sentence of 200 days. After 15 days he paid the remaining $170 and two days ago was liberated. Morgan is detained at the city jail on a federal warrant. Officials say he will likely be deported.
