

SEATTLE TARS CAN'T PLAY FOOTBALL THIS YEAR BECAUSE OF TOIL

Tars Will Be Missed From Field; Tick Malarkey Coaches Both Regimental Football Teams at Vancouver; Oregon Will Start Practice After Oct. 1 and May Visit Portland Later.

By George Bertz

THE naval training station at the University of Washington will not be represented on the gridiron this season. Elmer A. Henderson, athletic director of the tars, made this known Monday, lack of time to whip the team into shape being given as the reason for not having a football squad.

Last year the naval team was one of the strong service teams in this section of the country. It was defeated by the Ninety-first division team Thanksgiving day by the score of 14 to 13 in one of the hardest fought games played in the Northwest.

Camp Lewis has not made much about its football squad this year, but indications are that Captain Cook will turn out another strong team. It is true that Camp Lewis will not have an aggregation of stars such as it had last fall, but there are a number of promising players reporting for practice.

The Spruce Production division of the Vancouver barracks is going to have one of the strongest service teams in this section of the country. The players have already started to work out under the direction of Leo (Tick) Malarkey, former University of Oregon halfback and coach of the Columbia university team.

Some of the Players
Among the players turning out with the S. P. team are Daly, Olympic club, and Corlies. Penn State, tackles; Hawkes, Olympic club, and Halstead, Stanford; Frumman, O. A. C., center; Truman, line, Dean, Benham and Oswald Day, backs, and Reid, Yale freshman, and Corlies, Wisconsin, quarterback.

Black was regarded as one of the best tackles in Pennsylvania last year. He is a young player and is as strong as a bull. Daly is another good tackle.

Oregon Captains Out
Brewer Billie, former captain of the Oregon Aggies, will also turn out with the squad.

Malarkey is also coaching the Second Provisional regiment team. There is some talk of Coach Hunt of the University of Washington taking charge of the Spruce-Division team.

The University of Oregon team will start practice shortly after the first of October, according to the plans of Graduate Manager Dean Walker. Oregon will have a majority of the members of its crack freshman team of last year, and indications are that it will be strongly represented.

Walker is still up in the air regarding the team making trips away from Eugene, but he is confident that the Lemon-Yellow aggregation will be able to come to Portland to play.

Multnomah Will Work Out
Coach George Philbrook will put the Multnomah club players through another stiff workout Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. The players are getting in good shape, despite the fact that they have had but four workouts.

The Mare Island marines will play the spruce production division team in Portland during the latter part of next month, according to reports received from the South. The marines, who are being coached by "Lone Star" Dietz, opened the season last Sunday with a 10-0 victory over the Goat Island team.

BOXING

BUTTE, Mont., Sept. 24.—(U. P.)—Batting Ortega of San Francisco put a damper on Micky King's prestige with local fans when he handed the Australian a neat, lacing in the final rounds of their 20-round bout at Deer Lodge Sunday. King held his own until the eighteenth frame when he tired and Bay City battler was given the decision. It was a grueling battle throughout.

New York, Sept. 24.—(U. P.)—Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion, is now a private in the United States army, it was learned here today. He is attached to the medical service and stationed at Washington.

WAVERLEY WILL PLAY AND BALLOT

Teams Compete in Afternoon and Vote on Raising Dues Night of September 25.

MEMBERS of the Waverley Golf club will hold team play competition Wednesday afternoon, following which will be the special meeting to discuss an amendment to the by-laws, raising the dues of the organization from and after October in order to take care of the revenue lost by remission of dues to men in the army and navy.

There is material increase in the cost of operating every department of the club, such as labor and supplies. The membership of the senior golf club of the city has kept up splendidly and is now within 18 members of a waiting list. The club has decreed that members in the service are not required to pay dues, and to the remaining members falls the patriotic duty of making good that loss in dues, and gladly, too. The proposed slight increase in dues does not bring them up to the dues now and for some time in vogue in the California and Eastern clubs.

Losers to Buy Dinner
The team competition should be interesting, inasmuch as the losers must 'ock for a dinner for the winners.

The golf play will start at 1 o'clock and the special meeting to amend the by-laws will be at the clubhouse at 3 o'clock.

A captain will be appointed for each of the teams and the following rules will govern the play:

Each captain will have the privilege of appointing one additional member to aid him in securing players for his team.

No players shall be pledged for either team in advance of arrival at the grounds.

Entries Close at 4:30 P. M.
As members arrive they shall be chosen for each team in the order of their arrival, the captain choosing the last arrival to have second choice on the next arrival. Entries to be closed at 4:30.

August list handicaps, as posted at the clubhouse, to apply. Players not rated on handicap list will be allotted temporary handicap. Match play, number of holes up according to one-half difference between handicaps of contestants. Nassau system of scoring.

The play can be in foursomes or twosomes as agreed on by captains. Other rules may be made by agreement of captains.

Several days ago James H. Haslett of Hood River filed his nomination as an independent candidate for this office. Haslett is a Democrat and Nickelsen is a Republican. Senator Wilbur is a Democrat.

THAT mothers, and sisters, and fathers and brothers, and sweethearts are watching the papers closely to see a familiar face in pictures from France, is shown by the discovery of two Portland boys in a group picture printed in The Journal of September 16 showing an English boxing instructor teaching a number of Vancouver boys some of the fine points in the boxing game, which is the first step toward successful bayonet fighting.

The first to discover a relative was Mrs. James R. Greenlee, 361 Schuyler street, who noted a picture of her son, James Riland Greenlee Jr., with the First United States engineers, who was wounded in March. Young Greenlee, who was a student at Oregon Agricultural college, is a great lover of boxing, and when he went to Clatskanie as a member of the 145th engineers, an Oregon unit, carried his boxing gloves along. He took an agricultural course and was afterwards employed on Ladd ranch at Oswego and in Copos and Washington county.

Another who discovered a relative in the picture was Miss Ruby Blair. She sent the clipping to her people at Vancouver, Wash., and asked them to scan. They, too, discovered Glen Blair, 23d United States infantry, who was transferred to the regiment from the 161st infantry, the Washington regiment. Young Blair was sitting in the right foreground of the picture, while Greenlee is sitting third from the right in the back row. Like Greenlee, young Blair is an enthusiast on boxing.

This is the word brought home by Judge W. W. McCredie, owner of the Portland Pacific Coast International league team, who attended a belated meeting of the P. C. I. L. in Seattle last week.

"It's Up to Us Older Boys to Keep the Home Fires Burning"

"And if you don't mind my passing good advice, I'll be glad to put you wise to one way of making your salary go as far as possible these war times. I've found the dandiest way of buying clothes—and yet having plenty of money to give to all these war drives that come along. It's buying them on the credit plan. It doesn't cost a cent more and you get the wear out of the clothes while you pay for them. Just think—I'm all togged out with a Fall suit already and all I did was to pay a little down and the rest I'll pay as I earn. Want the name of the store where I bought my suit up at 293 31 Washington st., Pittcock block.—Adv.

LEWIS HAS BETTER OF RING BOUT

Welterweight Champion Shades Lightweight King in Light 8-Round Contest at Newark.

WIDENMAYERS PARK, Newark, N. J., Sept. 24.—Ted "Kid" Lewis, welterweight champion, proved too much last night for Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, who sought to wrest the highest honors from a man in the class heavier than his own. In a careful and far from vicious fight, Lewis won on points in the eighth round. He landed oftener and with more force, and the finish was fresher than his opponent.

More than 10,000 people jammed the park to see the contest. The fight started viciously, Lewis getting in several snappy left and right hooks to the chin. He was very fast and blocked several of Benny's heavy body punches. Leonard got in some stiff punches, evening up the first round. The second was given to Leonard, by a slight margin. He caught Lewis with a hard left that staggered the welterweight champion, but did not stop him. Lewis kept on top and banged away with veeps of lefts. In the sixth round Leonard began to show the effects of the fast going and was slowing up. He finished strong, however, despite Lewis' smashing right and left hooks, some of which seemed to land flush on the jaw.

Joe Flanagan, former Portland boxing promoter, has by this time probably sailed for France or Italy with the Knights of Columbus overseas recreational directors, who had foregathered in New York.

Flanagan wrote from New York that he expected to sail by an early date and expressed unbounded enthusiasm with his work. It is the belief of his friends that the good judge will make good with a vengeance as an athletic director for the Bigelow attended the convention. Chief Bigelow was elected as vice president.

JOHNNY MCCARTHY IS ONE MODEST LAD—SAYS HE'S NOT A CHAMPION

San Francisco Knockout Says He Packs a Punch and Thats All; Kruvosky and McCarthy Will Box in Seattle With Frank Farmer and Mike Pete This Week.

By R. A. Cronin

WOULD you believe it—we have in our midst a boxer who doesn't claim to be a champion. Johnny McCarthy is his name and he says he is claiming no titles as a welterweight, although around these woods Johnny is king of the welters.

"I'm just a slow-going fighter. I know how to protect myself when I fight champions, and I know how to send over the knockout, so there you are."

Quite a bit of modesty, to say the least, has Mr. McCarthy of San Francisco, the lantern jawed tad who sent Freddie Gilbert back to the butcher cart at Bend, and Morris Lux back to the shippards.

"Lux is a fast boy and a good boxer," said Mac in recounting his three round knockout of the boy. "He outpointed me in the first round. I swung wild a couple of times with the right hand to get the distance and then 'Mary Ann' went over as per program. If Morris led a little higher he ought to be up with the good boys, because he is strong and fast and punches good."

He Draws the Serbian
"Guess my next boxing match up this way will be with a fellow named Mike Pete, or Pete Mike, or something that sounds like that. We box over in Seattle."

Knockout Kruvosky will box Frank Farmer on the same card. The knock-out person admitted that he didn't think Jimmy Darcy was such a tough customer and he was not in the best of condition for the bout. The next time he meets the fighting Roumanian, he asserts that he will be properly trained so that there won't be a draw.

also Chronicle has received these items from an Australian source. Colin Bell, a veteran of the Sydney ring and still in the game, is a hustler these days. He runs his own taxicab and fights in between, winning twice recently from George Cook.

Jimmy Clabby continues to recruit for the Australians. He is kept on the freedom marches throughout the country, where his boxing turns with Tommy Uren help attract the crowds. Clabby weighs 15 pounds more than he did in the old days.

Fritts Holland, formerly of Spokane, has been forced to abandon physical culture work and has a job at Newcastles the great coal port. Also he fights when the chance comes to him.

Registration Books Open in Evenings

For the convenience of voters who have not as yet registered for the coming election, the registration quarters in the courthouse will be open in the evening until 9 o'clock, beginning Wednesday, County Clerk Beveridge announced yesterday morning. Registration booths will be established at the various shippards shortly, he said. Details as to exact locations have not yet been worked out, but will be announced in a day or so.

Following his resignation he is said to have declared his readiness "to resume economic preparations for peace negotiations."

Dr. Helferich, formerly Imperial German finance minister and later vice chancellor, was named ambassador to Russia after the assassination of Count von Mirbach. Predicts Milk Will Be Priced to Pay Profit to Producer

The fixing of milk prices by the national food administration at a figure so as to give the dairyman a reasonable return for his investment, within a month or so, is the prediction of Alma D. Kats of the Oregon Dairymen's association, just returned from a conference in Washington.

At the conference, dairymen from all over the country discussed the problem of labor and feed and, after consulting with the food administration, became assured that the matter will become satisfactorily adjusted within a short time.

Your Zeal

must not abate. The fight for the Fourth Liberty Loan is not over, and we dare not lay down our arms until it is.

Wake up, Portland, and let's put it over with a rush. We've got to do it, so what is the use of dilly-dallying around? Whether you regard it as a privilege or as a duty—and it is both—you must subscribe, if it is humanly possible. And if you have already subscribed double it, if you have to use your credit.

And then, when you have done your duty by this Loan, start saving for some other opportunity or emergency that is surely just ahead. It is not the chances that are lacking; it is the foresight and judgment to prepare for it.

Consultation and advice on business matters gladly given to depositors.
