

Health Ban Puts Quiet on Society

IN COMPLIANCE with the order sent out by the health authorities all social functions will be indefinitely postponed. Many of Portland's social set will go to the beach with their families if the weather continues to remain favorable. The pageant in connection with "Crashing Through to Berlin" which was beginning Saturday at the Star theatre under the auspices of the National League for Women's service will of course be postponed and all dancing parties, or social gatherings of any kind will be called off.

The many friends of Miss Genevieve Thompson will be interested to know that Miss Thompson began her work with the military intelligence bureau of the war department at Washington on the first of the month. Miss Thompson, who has had valuable training for her work, is required to have an accurate speaking and writing knowledge of four languages. Having already acquired a familiar knowledge of French, Italian and German, Miss Thompson this summer added Spanish to her list of accomplishments. Her work in languages is well supplemented in other branches of study. She spent three years in Bryn Mawr college, her study there being interrupted by a severe illness which prevented her from receiving her diploma, and later she received a degree in law from the University of Oregon.

Mr. Elgin is a pharmacist of Sherwood and well known throughout the valley. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Robertson, sister of the bride. After a brief trip to Carlton, the couple will make their home in Seattle.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss May Evans and Carl Hoeftle on September 6 at Seoul, Korea, comes as a surprise to the many friends of the bride, who was a frequent visitor at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. W. Harhurst of this city. The bride attended Magnolia Normal school and later continued her work in Korea. Mr. Hoeftle is one of the resident engineers of the Oriental Consolidated Mining company at Unsan, Korea, where they will make their home. The bridal couple was attended by Miss Grace Johnson of the Women's college, Seoul, and Harry Evans, brother of the bride.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Laurelhurst club it was decided to discontinue club dancing parties at Cotillion hall and to hold them hereafter at Christensen's hall on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month. The second Thursday of the month will be for club members only; the fourth Thursday will be for club members and their invited guests. Club members will be admitted free, but the usual charge will be made for invited guests. This will take the place of the former guest night held on the second Monday of each month, which has been discontinued. The club members are expected to present their membership cards at the door. Ice cream will hereafter be served by the ladies of the Laurelhurst club for service for the benefit of war work. The club's evening card parties will be held at the clubhouse on the first and third Thursdays of each month. All other club functions that conflict with the above dates will be canceled.

November 14 Is Chosen as Wedding Date

MISS FANNIE CHAMBERLAIN, daughter of Senator and Mrs. George E. Chamberlain, has chosen November 14 for the date of her wedding, when she will become the bride of Harris Wilton Tevis of this city, who is now manager for the Black Diamond Lumber company at Winlock, Wash., where the young couple expect to make their home. Miss Chamberlain has delayed her decision as to the date of the wedding until she was assured that her father, Senator Chamberlain, could be present. The wedding will be solemnized in Westminster church.

At a quiet home wedding on Saturday evening, October 5, Miss Virgil Middleton and Lieutenant Buford V. Sevier were married at the home of the bride, 282 East Seventh street. Their only attendants were Miss Duane Clark and Lieutenant Stephen B. Decker. Supper was served following the ceremony, which was attended only by a few intimate friends. The bride was gowned in a smart tailor, with toque to match, and wore a corsage of Ophelia roses. The bride is well known in Portland, and is now stationed at Newport, Gr., with the spruce production division, where the young couple expect to make their home.

Complimenting Mrs. James Ellis of New York and Mrs. Lloyd F. Weaver of San Francisco, who are visitors in the city, Mrs. Irving Stearns was hostess for an informal sewing tea Wednesday at her home at 286 Fairfax terrace. Mrs. William Castleman and Mrs. John F. Daly presided at the tea table.

Quiet simplicity marked the wedding of Miss Norma Hummel and Harry Edward Parsons, which was solemnized Monday evening, October 7, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hummel on Grant street. Only relatives and a few intimate friends were bidden for the affair, and the young couple were unattended. The Rev. John H. Boyd read the wedding ceremony and Mrs. Kenneth R. Crookham played the bridal music. The bride wore her going-away suit, a dark blue tailleur, with a smart toque velvet hat. An informal reception followed the ceremony after which the young couple left on a short wedding trip. Among the out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Parsons, parents of the bridegroom, from Kenora, Canada, and Mrs. Goudie from Saskatchewan.

In accordance with the ruling of the health department, Marguerite camp, Royal Neighbors of America, announces the postponement of its party for enlisted men scheduled for Tuesday evening, at the East Side Business Men's club. Another date will be announced and all invitations for this date will be honored later.

Hand Touches That Make "Little Things" Count

THERE is nothing to equal the telling touch of handwork to lift a thing way out of the commonplace. But not everyone has the time to touch up every item of the wardrobe. So the ingenious woman takes what little time she has for the purpose to distinguish the "little things."

For instance, she takes the otherwise unnoticed hat of plain satin, velvet or velour, treats it to a hand decorated band, and immediately her intimates are asking her wherever did she pick up that unusual hat? Assuredly there would be nothing especially arresting about that model with the upturned brim were it not for the highly decorated band. Say, suppose the hat to be any of the three fabrics already mentioned. Now, can you imagine anything smarter to put on it than a suede band stenciled in brilliant colors? Patent leather would be equally effective, and particularly on velvet.

A Novel Band Treatment

Have you among your studs one of those practical suits, so practical that

Applique on a Three-Piece Set

it makes you want to go in for passionate pinks and startling greens and ruffles and things like that? Never mind; there is no solution so tastefully effective as the three-piece set of hat, scarf and bag, but more particularly when it exploits a dash of vivid decoration. Consider the set illustrated. The tam you might make yourself or buy. And the scarf is obviously simple, being just a perfectly straight and narrow piece with fringed ends. The bag resolves itself into two generously large pieces somewhat after a melon shape and joined on all three sides, except for the space of perhaps five inches at the top of the two verticals. Finally, there is your familiar design again, done this time in applique on the bandeau of the turban, on the scarf ends, and in stole effect on the bag.

Didat ever see a more smartly unusual collar? Look a little closer, though. Now you see it isn't half so complex of cut as it first appeared to be. No, nothing but a clever shoulder cape deeply slit back of the arm and then curved slightly upwards. Between the alits is where the trimming border comes in, and most effectively, too. Do it with the needle this time. In black and your most becoming color it would be stunning atop of white.

For the Farmerette

"WATCH your feet!" This advice by Mrs. Stanley McCormick of Boston, second vice president of the National American Suffrage association and in charge of the department of food production and home economics of the woman's committee, Council of National Defense, is given to women contemplating farm labor.

"The most important part of a farm-ette's uniform is her shoes," she says, "and yet you never hear them discussed. Don't ignore footwear. You have to have a good spinal column to keep up with a good job. The condition of the spinal column depends greatly upon the feet. If you wear improper shoes which throw the body out of balance, though you may keep at your job on the farm, you will not do it so well as you would with comfortable shoes."

"Be picturesque if you wish, but also be sensible. The English woman adopted for farm work a good, stout, unlovely boot. American women must also wear good, stout boots if they want to preserve their health and the health of the race."

Mrs. McCormick believes that woman has a definite place to fill on the farm as a laborer. She anticipates the recruiting of strong women for this work. "There is no work which the women cannot do. It may be possible that some of the farm implements will prove too heavy. That will not necessarily stop the women. Those implements can and will probably be simplified to meet the new need. Then perhaps everybody may profit by their alteration."
