

INFORMATION

PAPER SHORTAGE

The long dry season has so crippled the output of the paper mills supplying the newspapers of Portland that the size of the newspapers is necessarily reduced. This reduced paper supply especially affects the morning papers, and the last growing circulation. This explanation is due to the demands in view of the additions in volume of the daily and the additional paper needed for a continued paper supply and an increasing circulation.

JOURNAL TRAVEL BUREAU

For information concerning routes, rates, etc., to points west and far, call or address The Journal Information and Travel Bureau. This service is free.

TODAY'S FORECAST

Portland and vicinity—Tonight fair, with light frost in exposed places; Saturday fair and warmer; easterly winds. Oregon—Fair tonight; light frost west, heavy east portion; Saturday fair, warmer; light easterly winds. Washington—Tonight fair; light frost east portion; Saturday fair, warmer east portion.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

Low pressure prevails in Alberta and Saskatchewan, extending thence northward to Alaska. The pressure is low over the entire south and on the Atlantic coast. Centers of high pressure are apparent in Oregon and over the Lake region. Precipitation has occurred over a large part of the northwest, and in the lower Mississippi valley and west Gulf states. The weather is much warmer in Saskatchewan and Tennessee, and is much cooler in Utah and Arizona. The temperature is below normal on the Pacific slope, and from Minnesota eastward to New England, and is generally above normal in other sections. Killing frosts occurred in Eastern Oregon and heavy frosts in Southwestern Idaho. Under the influence of the prevailing high pressure fair weather may be expected in Portland and its vicinity tonight and Saturday.
