Spanish Influenza And Some Precautions Which Should Be Taken to Prevent Its Spread

In the fight to stamp out this malady there are many simple precautions which can be taken by every individual for the protection of the community, as well as his family and himself. Health authorities all over the country agree that every possible sanitary measure should be adopted.

Avoid crowds. Get all the Fresh Air you can, both day and night. Make full use of all the available Sunshine. Avoid the person who Coughs or Sneezes. Should you Cough or Sneez, cover the nose and mouth with a handkerchief. Wash your Hands thoroughly before eating. A Germicidal Soap is recommended for this purpose. Brush your Teeth thoroughly two or three times a day. Keep your bowels open. Intestinal congestion invites disease. Consult your doctor at once if you have a suspicion that you are afflicted.
