

BOND CONVERSION URGED BY M'ADOO

Saturday Is Last Day Holders of First and Second Liberty Loan Issues May Benefit.

The last call to holders of 4 per cent Liberty loan bonds who want to convert them into 4 1/2 per cent bonds has been issued by the United States treasury department. The final date for this conversion has been set as November 9. The following telegram from Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, urging the public to take advantage of this opportunity, has been received by the Portland branch of the Federal Reserve bank.

"The privilege of converting 4 per cent bonds of the first Liberty loan converted and 4 per cent bonds of the second Liberty loan into 4 1/2 per cent bonds expires on November 9, 1918, and cannot under existing law be extended.

"The treasury has done all in its power to call the attention of the bondholders to the existence of this valuable privilege and the date of its expiration.

"It is safe to assume that upon the expiration of the conversion privilege that fact will reflect itself unfavorably in the market price of unconverted 4 per cent bonds which have heretofore been maintained substantially on a parity with the converted 4 1/2 per cent bonds by the existence of the privilege of conversion.

"The treasury now asks the newspapers of the United States, bankers, brokers and others to do what they can to bring these facts before the attention of the bondholders."

Junkers of Austria Prey Upon Populace While Famine Rages

ARTICLE XX
By Alfred G. Anderson
(Copyright, 1918, by The Star Company.)

ON THE evening of my curtailed sojourn in Berlin I conceived the mad idea of visiting Vienna.

With this object in mind, I called at the Austrian consulate to inquire what formalities were necessary.

"None at all," replied one of the secretaries, curtly, after scanning my passport.

I looked at him in surprise.

"For the simple reason that you can't go to Austria at all," he added. "No foreigners except Germans are permitted to enter."

That settled my excursion to Austria. As I left the consulate, I observed a short, round faced man seated near the door. He gave me a curious smile.

Austrians Die Like Flies

By some fortunate accident I met this individual again the same afternoon. We both had entered the Tiergarten. I was sitting on a bench smoking when he came walking leisurely toward me.

"Guten tag," he said, doffing his hat and sitting down beside me.

"Didn't I see you at the Austrian consulate this morning?"

"I'll tell you why they don't allow foreigners to visit Austria," he volunteered. "It's because the Austrian government doesn't want the outside world to know that the people are dying like flies from starvation and that the country is on the verge of a revolution."

My new acquaintance said he was Adolph Waechter, former sergeant of the Austrian army, but now commercial traveler for a big Vienna firm. He was wounded out of the war.

"I have just made a trip through Austria. What I saw in the country was horrible."

I was interested and asked him to describe what he had seen.

Terrible suffering by people

"There was terrible suffering in the Tyrol. At Innsbruck there was a large hospital with 600 beds. It was filled. None of the patients had seen an egg in months. There was no wheat flour for the city's children and invalids. Everybody was talking revolution to end the war.

"The city had issued milk cards to the people. The allotment for each was one quarter of a pint a day. But when they presented the cards at the dairies there was no milk. The farmers had killed all their cattle. They had no feed and needed the meat.

"Innsbruck food cards called for one sixth of a pound of meat a week for each inhabitant. They couldn't get any meat at all. Extra potato cards had been issued but no dealer could redeem them.

"Maize flour was practically the only commodity that could be had. In some of the neighboring communities they didn't even have that. People dropped dead in the streets every day."

Two civilians were approaching us. "Hush," cautioned Waechter, "they may be secret service men. Those Prussians spy on us everywhere."

Identical conditions elsewhere

"When they had passed, Waechter resumed his narrative: "At Klagenfurt and a dozen other towns I visited I found identical conditions. But near Reichenberg, in Czechish Bohemia, there was plenty of food. The Czechs seem to live almost as well as they did before the war. The German speaking population at Reichenberg told me that the Czechs sometimes offer food by the carload at exorbitant prices."

"Were you in Hungary?" I asked.

"I was in Hungary," he answered. "The paper contained an account of disturbances in Vienna and other Austrian cities because the bread rations had been reduced to one pound a week. 'But this is the most significant part,' I interrupted. 'The war conditions, and he pointed to a resolution adopted by the Vienna workmen's council during the riots.

"Cut it out and keep it if you wish," he added.

The resolution said: "The workmen's council maintains that any essential and permanent improvement in the food situation is impossible as long as the war continues."

Council Demands Early Peace

"This council, without underestimating the great obstacles that at present bar the way to peace, desires to renew its demand for a general peace as early as possible."

"The workmen's council deeply deprecates the fact that the first signs of an incipient change of sentiment in the enemy countries was answered semi-officially by Germany in a manner that apparently did not tend to further the desire for peace among our adversaries."

"The workmen's council, therefore, demands that the Austrian government not only manifest that it is prepared at any time to enter into negotiations for a general peace without annexation or indemnities and establishing a league of nations, but also that the hostile nations act on that basis."

"The workmen's council enjoins the association of German Social Democrats in the Reichstag to present this demand to the German foreign secretary without delay."

It was shortly after this that Von Kuehlmann, then German foreign secretary, made the sensational speech that caused his downfall, announcing that force alone would never insure a lasting peace.

While I was still reading the Arbeiter Zeitung he German quietly seated himself on a bench immediately opposite me.

"I don't like his looks," whispered Herr Waechter; "come, let's walk about the Tiergarten and I'll tell you something about the situation in the Austrian army and life in Vienna."

46 BOYS AND GIRLS VOLUNTEER PLEDGES TO WAR WORK FUND

Victory Division Hastens to Give Subscriptions for Comfort of Soldiers.

Portland school pupils have begun answering the appeal made to them through the press and through 15,000 letters mailed the latter part of last week and are sending in pledges to the Victory Boys and Girls' division of the United War Work Campaign.

The first group of recruits in the Victory army pledged the sum of $191, or an average of $4.15 apiece. The pledges range from $1 to $10. Two were for $10, one for $8 and 27 for $5. Some of the gifts came as evidence of real sacrifices on the part of the youthful givers, eager to have a share in treating the American soldiers and sailors to some of the comforts of home.

Because of the ban on assemblage of citizens it becomes necessary for all pupils to mail their "volunteer" pledges to the Victory headquarters, 202 Y. M. C. A. building. It had been planned to enroll them in person at the Liberty Temple, but at the last moment this method had to be given up.

Only those who send in their pledges for the Victory army this week will be classified as volunteers. Any amount entitles the giver to membership and pay-

Astoria Man Wants To Take Office at Once but Must Wait

Salem, Nov. 8.—J. J. Barrett, who was elected district attorney for Clatsop county for the unexpired term of J. O. Erickson, who resigned to go to war, wants to take office immediately, but Attorney General Brown advised him today that he could not qualify for the place until after the official canvass of the vote is made by the secretary of state and his certificate of nomination is issued.

E. C. Judd is now filling the place by appointment. Erickson said he thought he could take office immediately because there could be no question about his election, as he had no opposition on the ballot.

Scientists to Make Possible Greater Commerce in South

Chicago, Nov. 8.—To prepare for after-the-war commerce and make possible, by prevention of diseases, such as yellow fever, a great expansion of trade between the United States and the west coast of South America, the Rockefeller foundation sent a commission of distinguished scientists to Ecuador.

The commission left the United States in July and spent most of the time investigating conditions in the hospitals, pest houses and laboratories of the city of Guayaquil, which is the capital and principal city of Ecuador. Latin American papers received here from Guayaquil and other places show that a warm welcome was accorded the investigators who, in their words, were "putting into practice scientific methods for the purpose of investigating the parasite responsible for the yellow fever."

The South Americans also were pleased with the prospect that the work of the commission in allaying this disease would prepare the way for the opening of commerce on a larger scale with the United States.

At present there is in preparation a complete report, with recommendations of the commission. This soon will be issued by the Rockefeller foundation and should prove of special interest, not only to scientists, but to business men and others who are looking to after-the-war commercial expansion.

A Good Piano Is Not Necessarily An Expensive One

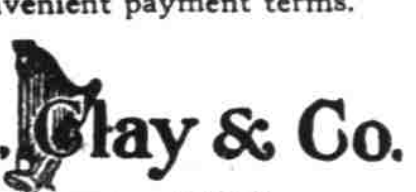

Of course we feel that the finest piano is the STEINWAY, but the prices for Steinways, while thoroughly consistent with their high quality, are generally beyond the means of many homes.

For this very reason we have devoted much attention to a group of medium grade pianos — really famous makes — products of old-established firms — pianos for which we have been the selling agents for years. In offering such pianos as A. B. CHASE, KRAKAUER, ESTEY, KURTZMANN, EMERSON and STROUD, we can heartily recommend them as ideal for the home or school. The prices of these pianos are within the reach of nearly everybody. Then we carry the ALDRICH at a lower price—a good, dependable piano which will give excellent service.

Then again we have on our floors at all times many "used" Pianos (good reliable makes) which we have taken in part payment for Steinways and Pianolas. These have gone through our shops and have been put in first-class condition—and carry our guarantee. We advise a customer to buy a good "used" piano rather than the cheap new ones offered by some dealers—the prices are the same, but not the quality.

Whatever your purpose or your need, we will serve you to our best ability so that the transaction will be to our mutual and lasting satisfaction.

We gladly arrange convenient payment terms.
