Cranberry Sale Is Not Based on Good Judgment; Growers Now Lose

By Hyman H. Cohen Oregon-Washington cranberry growers are missing the opportunity of their fact that the use of their berries necessitates the use of about 40 per cent There is one big chance that the local people seem to have let slipped and it would be a drawing card for the local product, the value of which could scarcely be estimated. As matters stand there is a good dethough the improvement in the dressed hogs was mand for the local fruits but there is believed to be a temporary affair, caused entirely absolutely no reason why it should not hours were at 42c a pound generally for No. 1 take the entire trade and shut the For both weal and hogs better prices ruled eastern berries entirely out of the Pa-
