

F. LOCKLEY DINES WITH GHOSTS OF FAMOUS MORTALS

Journal Man Abroad Visits Ye Olde Cheshire Cheese Inn Where Voltaire and Others Gathered.

SAT IN DICKENS' PLACE

With Maximilian Foster, Old Meeting Place of Writers and Actors Since 1667 Is Visited.

By Fred Lockley

The first time I ate at Ye Olde Cheshire Cheese Inn, I was the guest of Maximilian Foster, writer for the Saturday Evening Post. I have eaten many a dinner there since for their famous meat pies and pancakes taste like more. The casual visitor to London would never find "Ye Olde Cheshire Cheese Inn" for though it is not far from St. Paul's, it is tucked away up a narrow old-fashioned street, or rather a court or alley—called Wine Office Court—off Fleet street.

It is London's oldest inn—it was rebuilt and renovated in 1667, little over 250 years ago and it has never been altered since that time. It is famous for its historic associations, but the thing that brings its guests back is its cooking. They make a pudding which for two centuries or more has been famous. It is a huge affair in which you always find lark and kidney, rump steak and oyster and, if I mistake not, mushrooms. Their tripe and onions, marrow bones, pigeon pot pie, grilled ham, chop toad in the hole, and lamb and veal are as famous as their pancakes with jam and their famous lark pudding. Their Devonshire cider and pale ale is also much in demand.

Old Furniture Remains

Its quaint old benches, its blackened tables, its sanded floors, its tiny diamond window, these in the leaded frames all give added zest and charm to the old inn. It is interesting to look over their old leather bound guest books. You will find the signatures of Aquilth and Carson, Holdane and Rosebery, Chamberlain and Grey, and other well known statesmen—you will see the familiar signature of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, G. K. Chesterton, Sir Herbert Beerbohn Tree, Tod Sloan and Joseph H. Choate, Theodore Roosevelt and Ella Wheeler Wilcox and scores of others.

It seems odd to find a noble and distinguished and a masterly intellect were united—with grave independence of character, and unflinching goodness of heart, which won the admiration of his own age and remains a recommendation to the reverence of posterity.

In an earlier day in the original Cheshire Cheese, Shakespeare and Ben Jonson and many another of their day met—but that was before the Cheshire Cheese was rebuilt in 1667. The Cheshire Cheese, as you now visit it, is unchanged from the days when Dr. Johnson Herriot and Oliver Goldsmith and their cronies used to meet here. Just across the narrow court, and 35 or 40 feet further along, Oliver Goldsmith had his lodgings and there he wrote "The Vicar of Wakefield." They preserve many of John Johnson's relics here. The doctor's favorite chair, the huge, old, blue punch bowls, the old punch glasses, the badgeplate and the blue willow pattern platters and dishes and the long-stemmed church warden clay pipes.

Johnson of Dictionary Fame
Dr. Johnson, the former lexicographer, lived at first at No. 1 Inner Temple Lane. From 1765 to 1776 he lived in Johnson's court, No. 5. In 1776 he moved to No. 8 Bolt court. The old house at No. 17 Gough square where his wife died in 1752 and when in 1765 he finished the dictionary, still stands much as it was when the learned doctor was its tenant.

The old Cheshire Cheese is thronged

Washing Won't Rid Head Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—Adv.

Prisoner Climbs Down Fire Escape; Is Soon Overtaken

Roy Chapman, who was arrested at First and Madison streets Wednesday night as a "vag," attempted to escape from the city jail Thursday morning by climbing down the fire escape on the second street side of the building. Inspectors Maloney, Ackerman, Morak, Coleman and the newspaper reporters started out after him. He disappeared after turning the corner at Second and Abby streets, but he was captured at Second and Burnside a few minutes later by Inspector Ackerman.

Woman Employee of Governor's Office Confiscates Liquor

A suitcase, containing 48 pints of whiskey was turned over to the police Thursday morning by Mrs. H. S. Upton of 401 Syracuse street, an employee of the governor's office. According to Mrs. Upton, an unknown bootlegger placed the suitcase beneath her berth on train 16, which arrives in Portland at 9:29 a. m. Awakening Thursday morning, she discovered the extra suitcase and, on attempting to move it, found that it was very heavy. A few minutes later, the owner, who called himself John Brown, claimed it, but Mrs. Upton, suspicious of his actions, refused to give it up until she arrived in Portland. At the Union station the owner failed to make an appearance, and the suitcase was turned over to the police.
