

WILSON EXPECTED TO BE IMPRESSED BY BRITISH STAND

It would be impossible to reach a common peace basis that would satisfy everyone, but he also declared that the great task after all is to provide machinery for an adjustment that will make for friendship.

Wilson Attends Church in Carlisle, Where His Maternal Grandfather Used to Preach.

It was a noteworthy address throughout and the audience was extremely cordial. There was much cheering and at the end Mr. Wilson stood and joined in the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" and "God Save the King."

America's Chief Executive Is Asked to Speak and Makes Brief Talk to Congregation.

Carlisle, Eng., Dec. 29.—This quaint English border town, birthplace of the mother of the world's foremost champion of democracy, turned out en masse Sunday with mingled pride and warmth to honor President Woodrow Wilson.

Wilson's Smile Never Warmer

The famous Wilsonian smile was never warmer than when he grasped the old man's hand and shook it vigorously. A daughter of the late David Hamilton, who was a secretary at the Rev. Thomas Woodrow's Sunday school, presented to Mr. Wilson an original letter from his grandfather to her father, written from Glasgow, on October 18, 1835, prior to his departure for America.

Wilson's Smile Never Warmer

The president was greatly interested in the date. He told the story of when his grandfather went to America in one of the old sailing ships. His mother was then 7 years old. She was standing on the deck, holding to a rope, when a sudden gale hit the ship and she was swung out to sea.

adjourns sine die, automatically are vetoed. It would be impossible for the president to act most broadly in the matter of the last minute measures, it was pointed out, and because of this he has given assurance that he will be in the United States before congress adjourns.

"THE TIGER" IS BARING HIS TEETH

Conversation. He congratulated me on my loyalty to Great Britain, saying that each of the allied nations might retain its own viewpoint on this question. "This was the beginning of the conversation," he said, "and it was vital, because if no agreement is reached everything must be begun all over."

"THE TIGER" IS BARING HIS TEETH

"I am sure that great nations like Great Britain, the United States, Italy and France should try to help one another when one is attacked. The war was fought under this spirit, and in this spirit we should continue to act. Nothing must separate after the war the four great nations which the war united. I am ready to make the greatest sacrifices to preserve this union."

"THE TIGER" IS BARING HIS TEETH

"We owe to our soldiers and their chiefs the great victory which was won. We aim to have all mankind enjoy the great fruits of this victory. "France must never be invaded again. Guarantees are necessary to prevent this. President Wilson's ideas are not only a source of inspiration, but they are also very much in evidence the friendly feeling of the people themselves. This was noteworthy on the streets, where an audience generally sympathized with the address and it seemed that the people felt as much at home with Mr. Wilson as he did with them."

"THE TIGER" IS BARING HIS TEETH

"The speaker, initially came from the heart of America to the ear of England. Manchester took President Wilson in its warm heart. There was the same enthusiasm, the same gladness, the same joy in his visit, but there was also very much in evidence the friendly feeling of the people themselves. This was noteworthy on the streets, where an audience generally sympathized with the address and it seemed that the people felt as much at home with Mr. Wilson as he did with them."

RECENT GENERAL ELECTION, IT IS BELIEVED, WILL INDICATE TO PRESIDENT UNITY OF PEOPLE.

LABOR STRENGTH IS SHOWN

Interesting Comment on Results of Vote Given by Representatives of the Various Industries.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—In west end clubs the opinion is heard that the effect of the general election will not be long on President Wilson, whose political acumen is expected readily to weigh the importance of the unprecedented unanimity of public opinion in England, Scotland and Wales.

LABOR STRENGTH IS SHOWN

Following is a series of opinions on the election's outcome: Sir Frederick E. Smith, attorney general of Great Britain—"A permanent and free national party will be able to face the problems of the future with courage and imagination. Old grounds of difference, almost without exception, obsolete. Let the dead bury the dead. The new tasks will require the closest and loyal cooperation of a homogenous party."

LABOR STRENGTH IS SHOWN

The country has made clear its desire that party politics should not be allowed to impede the reconstruction of the country. The cooperation of all men and women should be enlisted to support the government which will act as the instrument toward peace and during the reconstruction period. It is thought that this was interpreted as meaning that a full agreement had already been reached and the discussion of details is proceeding smoothly and vigorously.

LABOR STRENGTH IS SHOWN

Some opinions on election results follow: The Daily Express—"The prime minister can now go to the peace conference with full credentials as spokesman of the British people. He has triumphed in returning the only government whose men have the measure to give them the power and the status to sign peace and settle the country."

LABOR STRENGTH IS SHOWN

Evening Standard—"The country wants new blood, vigor and character in the new parliament. The electors have done their best, and the result is a good one. It also shows that it will not be long before women will sit in the house of commons."

LABOR STRENGTH IS SHOWN

Both Sides Satisfied. Paris, Dec. 30.—(I. N. S.)—The vote of confidence in the Clemenceau administration came at the end of an historic session of the chamber during which the government had been severely heckled. The premier's declaration of willingness to work with President Wilson on peace issues cut the ground from beneath the radical opposition on one hand; on the other hand the assurance that all possible guarantees would be taken to secure France's future shattered the opposition of the conservatives. Both sides were satisfied.

France Appears to Support England. Paris, Dec. 30.—(I. N. S.)—Premier Clemenceau's intimation in the chamber of deputies that France will rely in the future on the protective value of the British fleet, carries the news that the French government is not prepared to support any movement for a change at this time in the European balance of sea power. The huge majority which the chamber has given to the government's declaration indicates that on this question the French government has the support of the French nation.
