

TWO INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED BY THE GRAND JURY

Marion County Body Reports Secretly on Two of Cases Under Investigation.

STANDS BY FIRST REPORT

Takes Another Rap at Governor and Recommends That Legislature Pass New Laws.

Salem, Jan. 4.—In making its final report today the Marion county grand jury, which investigated the state penitentiary, filed two secret indictments. As the persons indicted are not under arrest, no information would be given out as to whether they are connected with the state penitentiary, or not. The grand jury filed a supplementary report in which it confirmed the findings announced in its original report, which went on at the state prison, or not. COTTAGE GROVE BOY KILLS BOA-CONSTRUCTOR

Herman Edwards

Cottage Grove, Jan. 4.—Herman Edwards, a Cottage Grove boy, who has been stationed at the eastern entrance of the Panama canal the last year, writes his grandmother, Mrs. Laura McFarland, of his experiences at that place. He says he has been in the area for some time, and he has been in the area for some time, and he has been in the area for some time.

INTIMATE DETAILS OF CONDUCT OF MEN OF NORTHWEST RELATED

Lieut. Vickrey Tells Club Members of Work of 91st Division in Argonne Fight.

It was one of the first intimate reports of the conduct of Oregon and Washington soldiers in the famous battle of Argonne forest, which Lieutenant H. P. Vickrey of the Ninety-first division gave to the Progressive Business Men's club at the Benson hotel Thursday afternoon.

May We All Have a Prosperous New Year

I am certain that every Dentist in Oregon—that can deliver the goods—and will do the right thing by the people—will prosper in 1919—as he never did before.

Remember how you used to keep a diary? Recall how you made memoranda of everything that happened during the first week in January, part of what happened the second week—an occasional note the third week, and then forgot it entirely?

Remember your friend who swore off smoking New Year's Day—bragged about it for a day or so, spoke of the "principle involved" the third or fourth day, weakened the second week, and then "sneaked off by himself for just one puff"—and is puffing still?

And the occasional drinker—and periodical reformer—his story is too well known and too demoralizing to repeat. TAKE A LESSON FROM JOHN CHINAMAN.

Chinese New Year is the one great joy day in the Chinese calendar.

All debts are paid, regardless of sacrifice; all enemies are forgiven; strife and jealousy are forgotten, and, instead of making resolutions, John "makes good."

The sword has been sheathed—the greatest and most terrible conflict that ever raged, or ever will, in history has come to a glorious end.

Let's bury the hatchet—let's drown the din of the anvil chorus with the song of the ploughboy—the whirr of the mills, the humming of factories.

Forget your differences, pay your debts, lend a hand and a heart and let's make the old world a place worth while.

MY WORK IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY.

STATE CONVENTION OF LABOR WILL MEET IN PORTLAND MONDAY

Cooperation With Non-Partisan Hinted at Unless Legislature Helps Out.

The State Federation of Labor will meet in its sixteenth annual session Monday morning at 10:30 in Auditorium hall, Third street between Taylor and Salmon streets. Owing to the absence of Otto R. Hartwig in Washington, D. C. O. E. Hibbs, vice president, will preside. The other officers of the S. F. of L. are E. J. Stack, secretary; Arthur Brock, H. M. Lortjensen, A. W. Lawrence, A. E. Edwards, E. A. Williams and George Dunmire, executive committee.

The body will consist of about 150 delegates. It will have for consideration the compensation laws of the state; reconstruction of industries; organization of timber and other workers; minimum wage for women; employment at profit; and the question of the management of home manufacturing; the land question; readjustment of methods of electing the legislature, and many other subjects to be brought before the body and reported to its committees.

The Oregon State Federation of Labor is composed of representatives from labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor throughout the state. There will be delegates from Coos Bay district, Eugene, Salem, St. Helens, Astoria, Pendleton, Baker, Bend, Portland and other points. The majority of the delegates will be from Portland. The convention was to have been held in Bend last November, but the flu prevented it. Salem was next chosen, and the flu again compelled a change.

Sunday Journal Travels Afar Javanese Is Admirer of Paper

As the great presses in the basement grind out their daily quota of a modern newspaper, little can one reckon to what far reaches and strange places of the earth the printed message will be carried, nor to what unusual use the newspaper itself may be put.

For instance, in far away Java, stray copies of The Sunday Journal have been the source of entertainment and instruction to a foreign citizen, whose friendship it has won in manner quite out of the ordinary.

It seems that copies of The Journal, reaching Java as lining to packing cases, after having already fulfilled their regular mission as disseminators of news and comment, fell into the hands of Oei Tiong Yong of Soeleng Agoeng. Though the newspapers were old, ancient in truth insofar as the news of the day is concerned, they were new to Oei Tiong Yong, and opened to him, even with his probably limited knowledge of English, new worlds and new vistas of life and happiness.

Oei Yong was delighted and, his being called for more of the same sort of tonic. Whereupon, on his English typewriter, under date of Nov. 6, 1918, he indicated the following letter, verbatim, to "The Oregon Journal building, Portland, Oregon, U. S. A."

"Dear Sirs,

"I have read many, many of your journal which is shipped to Java in bales, and found them all delighted their readers, not only of the Comic & Editorial Section, but of the serial Photo-

CITY WATER BUREAU EXTENDS SERVICE IN YEAR JUST CLOSED

Dam Being Constructed at Bull Run Lake; 15 Miles of New Mains Laid.

One of the things for which Portland is famous—and deservedly—is Bull Run water. There is no water like it obtainable in such quantities for municipal use, anywhere in the United States.

Other cities in the United States may have water the equal of Bull Run in purity, or in freedom from mineral content, or coolness, or in any other one particular, but it is the harmonious and satisfying combination of all the qualities that go to make perfect drinking water that makes a Portlander, exiled from home temporarily, think strongly of the desirability of living in his native city.

City officials recently heard of a Portland man who wired from an eastern city to a friend here offering $5 for a glass of Bull Run by parcel post.

There is enough water in Bull Run lake, under the shadow of Mount Hood, to supply a city of 5,000,000 people, according to Engineer Fred S. Randlett of the water bureau.

A new dam at the outlet of the lake, now nearing completion, will add 10,000 acre feet or more than 2,000,000,000 gallons of water to the storage capacity of the lake. The dam will raise the level of the lake 10 feet above the present high water mark. The project will be finished this year in time to make the new water supply available during the period of low water flow in Bull Run river next summer.

The water bureau extended nearly 15 miles of new water mains during the year just ended. Of these new mains 5.48 miles were four inches and more in diameter. There are now in use a total of 755.84 miles of water mains in the water supply system of Portland.

Cement Joints Successful

One of the recent innovations in construction operations of the water bureau has been the adoption of cement joints for water mains. The cement joint has been found to be a vast improvement on the old style lead joint. The saving in material alone during the year by the adoption of the new joint has been $575.

The water bureau now installs and repairs all service pipes for water users, and bills the cost to the owner. The result is that more prompt attention is given leaky services, a uniform grade of materials and workmanship prevails on the work and the water bureau obtains a better record of pipe locations. The cost is also less to the owner than when this work was done by private contractors.

Cattle Shipped to Georgia

Thomasville, Ga., Jan. 4.—(I. N. S.)—A shipment of 500 cattle has been brought to this section from Texas for grazing purposes. Drouth cut short the grazing in the Lone Star state. Other shipments are expected. Velvet beans are being used for the pastures.

Influenza Victim Is Laid to Rest in Her Former Home

Iiwaco, Wash., Jan. 4.—The funeral of Mrs. Grace Hybarger Edge, who died at San Francisco on Saturday last, as result of influenza, was held on Wednesday afternoon, services being conducted at the Methodist Episcopal church by the pastor, Rev. J. Thomas Cowley.

Mrs. Edge was a native of Iiwaco, and only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hybarger, old time residents. She was born April 3, 1856, educated in the local schools and continued to live in this community until her marriage to Eiton R. Edge of the government radio service, on June 10, 1914. For the past two years she has resided at Cordova, Alaska, where her husband was located, and had only returned to the United States in consequence of her husband having been transferred to San Francisco.

After spending a brief visit with her parents and friends here she left for San Francisco December 11. Influenza developed in a few days after her arrival at San Francisco.

The service at the Methodist church was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. The interment was at Iiwaco cemetery.
