

REVOLUTIONARY WAVE IN EUROPE AWFUL PROBLEM

Destruction Force Moving Westward May Soon Prevent Collection of Real Indemnity.

CONCRETE PEACE PLAN NEED

Russia Already in Anarchy, Germany Rapidly Following Suit and Poland Threatened.

Paris, Jan. 13.—Great movements are shaking Europe to its foundation. A destructive revolution is rolling steadily westward. In my opinion it is too late for the allies to consider the enormous sums including the cost of the war that they will collect from Germany. The question now is how much Germany can pay, and in order to pay much of anything she must be helped immediately to re-establish order. Disorder and revolution, stimulated by hunger and disorganization, may soon prevent the collection of any considerable sum.

Even the armies of the entente, long and patiently fighting in self-defense, will not consent to act as debt collectors. While we have passed the last two months in celebrating and feasting the precious moments when Europe perhaps might have been saved from final disaster and chaos have passed.

Concrete Plan Needed
People need to have presented to them real concrete peace plan for solving the terrible problems confronting them. The reasons for this statement are: Russia went from despotism to anarchy through the exhaustion created by the war. Germany is following the same process and the indications are that Poland may also follow suit. The confusion and disorder called Bolshevism is spreading rapidly in central Europe. Where Bolshevism dominates all commercial relations with foreign countries have been eliminated and with the disappearance of each country in the whirlpool of disorder the re-establishment of normal peace occupations becomes more difficult in the rest of the world.

The modern world is interdependent in earning its daily bread. The fact seems to have been lost sight of because in the war we have been living on savings and borrowings.

If, because of Bolshevism, commerce between France, Great Britain, the United States, Italy and Germany and central Europe is impossible, as it has been made with Russia, then in these countries the labor which produces commodities for Germany, Austria and Russia will not have work. The whole group of industries, commerce and finance which occupied itself with Germany, Austria and Russia cannot resume operations and the personnel will be out of work.

Other Nations Affected
France, Belgium, Serbia and Roumania depend on the resources of an orderly Germany to help re-establish their destroyed relations. That assistance under Bolshevism becomes impossible. Without that help and the renewal of commerce the chances of the countries of the entente recuperating diminished by leaps and bounds. Austria, dependent so long on Germany alone for direction in commerce and industry, will be unable to resist the tide of chaos once Germany is lost.

In the countries of the entente latent Bolshevism has already manifested itself and serious disorders will break out if the balance of the world interrelationship is upset so that Great Britain, France and Italy cannot find employment for their labor in the re-establishment of international commerce.

One thing which might have been done long ago was to see that enough food existed to go around in Poland, Austria and Germany. Starvation breeds revolution. The international committee on revictualment has not yet met.

Individual ambitions and national prejudices have played a part. No reports have come from the commissions sent into central Europe. The food conditions are not yet accurately known. No food has been sent into these countries and cannot be sent until the international committee meets and decides.

Delay Means Much
Already Serbia is reported to be in a starving condition, and the American Red Cross, which is willing to go to the rescue of Serbia at once, is not allowed to act. The same conditions hold with regard to the peace settlements. No half way measures will content the peoples. They are intelligent and understand the harshness before them. They are looking for a democratic peace of mutual assistance among the nations to relieve their war burdens. They expect international amelioration of those conditions and relief from armaments and conscription.

The younger, intelligent classes demand a league of nations that shall have power and sovereignty to enforce peace and protect small nations and undeveloped peoples. They all look for some plan for a closer economic union which will relieve those nations that have suffered most in the war from some of their war debts.

return of the spirit by which they were prompted and it is logical to demand that these guarantees should be given, above all, to the nations that have been and might again be most exposed to aggressions or threats, to those who have many times stood in danger of being submerged by the periodic tide of the same invasion.

What justice banishes is the dream of conquest and imperialism's contempt for national will, the arbitrary exchange of provinces between states as though peoples were but articles of furniture, or pawns in a game. Work is to be done.

The time is no more when diplomats could meet to redraw with authority the map of empires on the center of a table. You are here to remake the map of the world in the name of peoples and on condition that you shall faithfully interpret their thoughts and respect the rights of nations smaller and greater to dispose of themselves and to reconcile with the right equally sacred of ethical and religious minorities, a formidable task which science and history, your two advisors, will contribute to aid and facilitate.

You will naturally strive to secure the material and moral means of subsistence for all those people who are constituted or reconstituted into states, for those who wish to unite themselves to their neighbors, for those who divide themselves into separate units, for those who divide themselves according to their regained traditions, and lastly, for all those whose freedom you have already sanctioned or are about to sanction. You will not call them into existence only to sentence them to death immediately. You will do your work in this, as in all other matters, to be fruitful and lasting.

Scope of League Pointed Out
While thus introducing into the world as much harmony as possible, you will, in conformity with the fourteenth of propositions, unanimously adopted by the great allied powers, establish a general league of nations, which will be a supreme guarantee against any fresh assault upon the right of peoples.

You do not intend that this international association shall be directed against anybody in the future. It will not of set purpose shut out anybody but, having been organized by the nations that have sacrificed themselves in defense of right, it will receive from them its statutes and fundamental rules. It will lay down conditions to which its present or future adherence will admit, and, as it is to have for its essential aim to prevent as far as possible the renewal of war, it will, above all, have established, and will find it the less difficult to maintain, in proportion as this peace will in itself imply, greater realities of justice and safer guarantees of stability.

By establishing this new order of things you will meet the aspirations of humanity, who after the frightful convulsions of the blood-stained years, ardently wishes to feel itself protected by a union of free people against the ever possible revival of primitive savagery.

Significance of Day Realized
An immortal glory will attach to the name of the nations and the men who have desired to cooperate in this grand work, in faith and brotherhood, and who have taken pains to eliminate from the future peace causes of disturbance and instability.

This very day 48 years ago, on the eighteenth day of January, 1871, the German empire was proclaimed by an army of invasion in the chateau at Versailles. It was consummated by the theft of two French provinces. It was thus violated from its origin and by the fault of its founders, born in injustice. It has ended in oblivion.

You are assembled in order to repair the evil that it has been doing and to prevent a recurrence of it. You hold in your hands the future of the world.

I leave you, gentlemen, to your grave deliberations and declare the conference of Paris open.

RESULTS FOR CASES
Miss Mary McMillan, head of the Reed college clinic, left Portland Saturday for Washington, D. C., where she will take charge of a new reconstruction unit of the Walter E. Reed hospital. Largely in conjunction with the Red Cross, the Reed college clinic has treated a large number of Portland cripples, deformed children and accident cases, and its work under Miss McMillan's direction has been a notable achievement. Of late emphasis has been given fracture cases, and the 49 aides who are in attendance at the clinic will be thoroughly prepared to treat war cases in the government reconstruction hospitals. Miss McMillan will have charge of all the reconstruction work of the Washington hospital, and although her loss will be deplored here, her friends are rejoicing in her advancement.
