

LARGE QUANTITIES OF POSTAL PIECES LOST DURING YEAR

Millions of Letters and Thousands of Parcels Fail to Reach Destination Through Carelessness. FAULTY ADDRESSES BLAMED

Postoffice Department Gives Directions Which, if Followed, Will Help Overcome Difficulty.

Astonishingly enormous figures of the number of postal pieces lost during the last 12 months, because of insufficient addressing, are given in a circular received by the Portland postoffice from the first assistant postmaster general.

During the last fiscal year there were sent to the division of dead letters and its branches 14,451,953 pieces of undelivered first class mail, and 562,129 pieces of parcel post, which could not be delivered because of inadequate addresses, says the circular.

Millions of letters were sent to the directory section in postoffices to supply addresses originally deficient. While this mail finally reached its destination, yet the necessity for directory service entailed delay in delivery.

Rules Governing Addresses Here are some rules to follow in addressing and preparing parcel post matter for the mails.

Write address plainly, and, if possible, in ink. Put name of sender plainly in left hand corner. See that tag containing address is fixed securely to package. Wrap package securely.

White Pine Blister Will Be Considered At April Meeting

A convention for discussing the white pine blister rust has been called for April 23 and 24 at the Imperial hotel by E. P. Bars, botanist and plant pathologist of Oregon Agricultural college.

The purpose of the convention is the protection of white and sugar pine forests from the invasion of the blister rust which has attacked eastern forests. Among the eminent pathologists expected to be present are: Dr. Haven Metcalf, in charge of the office of forest pathology, Washington, D. C.; Professor W. A. McCubbin, director of pine blister rust work in Canada; Dr. E. P. Meinecke of San Francisco, who has had charge of intensive work in Oregon and Washington; Dr. J. R. Weir of Washington; Professor J. W. Eastham of British Columbia; Dr. G. H. Hecke, head of the quarantine system at San Francisco, and L. M. Dean, quarantine expert from Washington.

The blister rust is spread through the shipment of infected currant and gooseberry bushes. Following the blister rust convention, the Pacific division of the American Phytopathological society will hold a two day conference.

Former Policeman Irvin Is Released

E. R. Irvin, former policeman, who was arrested Sunday night on a charge of being implicated in a bootlegging scheme, was released Tuesday afternoon on the recommendation of the United States authorities. John Knowlton and Victor Hammer, also held on the same charge, were released, and Dave Leightner, said to be the ringleader of a gang of bootleggers operating in the city, was held for further action by the federal authorities. Irvin, 37 years of age, is being held for the United States government. Irvin has been formally discharged from the police department, but will be prosecuted further by either the state or federal authorities.

Hold on to Liberty Bonds Yield Interest to Thrifty

Hold onto your Liberty loan bonds. Every time you sell your bond for some luxury, you hurt the government. Yanks who fought in France did not quit and Liberty bond holders must not quit by disposing of their bonds. If bonds sell at less than par it is because people are dumping them on the market.

These are some of the reasons given by Portland bankers and Liberty loan workers why bonds should not be sold. They say, furthermore, that a promiscuous sale of bonds will have a pernicious effect on the Victory loan campaign in April.

"The war is won, but we are still paying for it and we have soldiers yet in France," said Robert E. Smith, state manager of the Liberty loan workers. "Bonds were sold as a way to finance democracy's victory. They yield interest and to their holder mean thrift. Bonds should be sold at lower than par only when imperative."

Bondholders are cautioned to beware of various offers of doubtful value to exchange stock, a method, it is said, to take bonds from the wage earner and place them on the open market.

Lend Helping Hand To Ireland, Is Plea By Bishop Carroll

Impassioned appeals for freedom of Ireland from England's rule by the Right Rev. John P. Carroll, bishop of Helena, Mont., and other eminent speakers, and a program of music and humor made up a successful St. Patrick's celebration in the auditorium of the Lincoln high school Monday night. It was given under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who were all there and who brought many friends.

"Let America pay her debt to Ireland, to whom she has been indebted since the revolution. America has never been better able to pay that debt than she is today." In such words the Rev. Mr. Carroll urged Americans to lend Ireland a helping hand as they did France.
