

SERVICE OF THE AMERICAN NAVY OVERSEAS—IN NEXT SUNDAY'S JOURNAL

Stage, Screen and Features

And when I speak of the nations of the world I do not speak of the nations of the world. I speak of the peoples who constitute the nations of the world. They are going to see to it that if present governments do not do their will, some other will, and the secret is out, and the present governments know it.—President Wilson.

Here Again and Asking $2 a Seat

Snappy Comedy Drama, "Turn to the Right," Playing Return Engagement.

By S. H. Jr. "TURN TO THE RIGHT," that snappy little crook comedy drama with a heart throb, opened a return engagement at the Heilig theatre last night, and proved, as before, a satisfactory entertainment. Comparisons are odious, 'tis said, and there is really no call, anyway, to pit last night's performance against that of any other road company, or against that of a local stock company.

However, without prejudice, and recognizing the merit of the players who were well received by last night's audience, it may be said that "Turn to the Right" is primarily the type of stock company show, and that after an initial appearance en tour, is not, upon a return engagement a $2 attraction. Not for any company nor in any house. "Turn to the Right" on this visit features Joseph Striker as Joe Bascom, who after a year in Sing Sing for a crime he didn't commit, is released clear his name and his mother's peach orchard and marries the girl, and Ethel Strickland, as the mother. Both give convincing portrayals, as does Rose Wilson, the girl in the case. There is special merit, too, in the comedy work of Howard L. Smith and Allen Mathes, Muggs the "dip," and Gilly, the "veggs." Joe's two prison pals whose ways of life are transformed and who are reformed and become successful law-abiding citizens by virtue of the virtue of Joe's mother and love of his sister and her friends. Max Thompson gets by big, too, physically and otherwise, as Sam Martin, and minor parts are in capable hands.

The attraction is well presented the stage pictures, as is the story, in fact, patterned much along the lines of the "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" play that amused and entertained us a year or so ago.

"Turn to the Right" goes tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night.

Bed Time Tales

First Aid to the Injured JIMMY COON'S heart must have been made of stone or flint, for he really enjoyed seeing those dogs in trouble. Too many times they had chased and hunted him and his family, and now he felt they were having a good punishment. And how those quills of Uncle Porcupine did hurt! Bower was an old dog and so he had sense enough to come up and allow the quills to be pulled out by his master.

You know, the main part of a porcupine's quill is smooth and white and like the quill of a bird's feather, but near the point it is hard and black and slender, and armed with barbs. Ranger had the most quills in his face, mouth and neck, and he would break away when the hunters tried to pull them out and whine and cry, and his little master, William, just fairly cried to see him suffer. After a while the men had to sit on Ranger to pull the quills out, and little William talked to him all the time and tried to brace him up.

It is a curious and fearful weapon that Uncle Porcupine has, and Jimmy Coon, when he heard the men counting how many quills they had pulled out, said to Teddy Possum, "Well, Teddy Possum, this is too much for me. I am sorry for Ranger; there isn't any sport in this, like a good hunt and a chase, but not this kind of fighting." And Teddy Possum said, "Let's go and find Cousin Bruin at the old swamp and find some frogs and some fresh water clams," and Chatterbox said, "It just serves those dogs right for spoiling our lovely musical evening."

And those poor dogs followed their master back to the camp and they slept along with their tails between their legs, and they looked too miserable for words, and they could hardly eat because their mouths hurt so much.

Tomorrow—The Lumbermen's Shack. craft, will give a St. Patrick's party at W. O. W. hall, Russell and Rodney avenue tonight. Dancing will be held after cards and continue until midnight. Members and friends are welcome. The committee has secured prizes for the card players.

The Overlook Woman's club will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. P. Montag, 891 Longview avenue. Talk on pure literature will be given by Mrs. E. H. Frazelle. A large attendance is desired.

Chapter C of the P. E. O. Sisterhood will hold a reception from 2 to 5 p. m. Friday at the home of Miss Carrie Odell, 815 Eleventh street. Members and unaffiliated P. E. O.'s who are living or visiting in the city are cordially invited.

The dance given by Portland Star Homestead, Brotherhood of American Yeomen, Thursday night was one of the most successful this year. Many young men in the uniform of the United States army and navy were guests, and the floor of the Moose temple hall was well filled.

The D. O. K. K. of Abd-Uhl-Atef temple will fill a car Saturday morning at 9:30 when the train pulls out for the Dalles. There will be a knightly greeting extended to them on their arrival by the Knights of Pythias of the Dalles and just how many neophytes will receive the degrees of this social and dramatic order of the K. of P. will not be known until they come in from the hills and valleys of Wasco, Hood River and Sherman courses. The royal visit is Mrs. C. Larsen. The gaudy degree team of "Brookwood" is commanded by Herbert A. Gracook, and the master of ceremonies is W. J. H. Clark. Fred Johnson of Astoria, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, and many prominent officers of the grand lodge will participate.

East Gate lodge, A. F. and A. M., will give the Fellow Craft and M. M. degrees in a double session Saturday night. Supper will be served at 7:30 between the two sessions. Officers and members of Sellwood lodge have been invited to attend.

From assembly, United Artisans, Tuesday night had M. W. A. hall filled with happy St. Patrick celebrants. The floor committee was bedecked with green ribbons, and the music was enjoyed by all.

Another council, Knights and Ladies of Security, gave degree work to a class of 25 members Tuesday night at W. O. W. temple. It is preparing for a class of 100 to be presented in April.

Oregon Circle, Neighbors of Wood-

A Wee Bit Personal

CAPTAIN J. P. SHAW, new commandant at the Old Soldiers' Home at Roseburg, when he was on active duty, was among those who recommended to Governor Olcott that another person be appointed to the Old Soldiers' Home position. He received the first information of his own appointment shortly after the conference broke up. His daughter informed him by telephone, a few days before he had been offered the appointment as justice of the peace and declined it. A justice of the peace in Milwaukie, his home town, is the height of ambition and glory in the minds of many aspiring citizens in Clackamas county. For a man to turn down an opportunity like that and then accept a mere commandant's job at the Soldiers' home in roseburg is understanding. They are inclined to conclude, however, that Captain Shaw takes it just to be patriotic, as a sort of living sacrifice of himself for the good of his country.

Joseph L. Hammersly, chief deputy in the office of District Attorney Evans, recently was called in as special prosecutor in Eugene in the trial of James Fullerton, publisher of The Hornet, for criminal libel against the University of Oregon. He won his case, Fullerton being found guilty and sentenced to a month in the county jail with a suspended sentence of 11 months in the penitentiary. As an aftermath of the case the following congratulatory telegram has been received by Mr. Hammersly from President Campbell of the university: "Owing to heavy pressure of work delayed in sending congratulations. Assure me we all appreciate splendid work you did in prosecution of case. Your deep personal interest could not fail to impress jury. I am sure there was never a better organized case in Oregon. Please accept our heartfelt thanks of entire university."

One of the individuals in Portland most heartily welcomed by returning members of the Third Oregon (One Hundred Sixty-second United States Infantry) is William Reid, the "daddy" of the regiment. Many a smoke and many a drink in the camp "mess hall" and many a young fellow was helped over a tight place in the pocket between pay-days. After the regiment went to Camp Greene in South Carolina the thoughtful regard of "Daddy Billy Reid" followed them. Across the seas he did not forget them. And when Mr. Reid, himself just out of the hospital, met Colonel May and some of the boys at Vancouver recently they carried him on their shoulders, and it is said that he kissed some of them, or they kissed him, or both.

Henry Swanson, a well known member of the Loyal Order of Moose, is exhibiting at the Moose club rooms a number of rifles picked up on the battlefields of France in the camp "mess hall" and many a young fellow was helped over a tight place in the pocket between pay-days. After the regiment went to Camp Greene in South Carolina the thoughtful regard of "Daddy Billy Reid" followed them. Across the seas he did not forget them. And when Mr. Reid, himself just out of the hospital, met Colonel May and some of the boys at Vancouver recently they carried him on their shoulders, and it is said that he kissed some of them, or they kissed him, or both.

Before the Third Oregon went to the front a magnificent regimental flag was presented to it by the citizens of Portland and the flag flung to the breeze at regimental headquarters at Clackamas. The flag was brought back with the headquarters company and detachments of the regiment that arrived in Portland recently. It had flown at the headquarters in France for months. It had been whipped by the icy winds of Long Island before the Third Oregon had departed overseas. It is tattered and there are holes in it. Some members of the Third endeavor to create the impression that the holes were made by airplane fire. This is denied by others. "Just wind and wear," said an officer. "That flag was brought back with the rest of the roll of the artillery, but it could not have been taken into action. Many thousand American soldiers have broken into that shack and take the men of the United States were trained by the Third Oregon. Machine gun companies by the score went under that flag. It is a good old flag, all right, and it is going to be the flag of the Third Oregon again, the new Third Oregon." With the flag Colonel May brought back the gold and purple banner that was now an epic and span looking when it was taken down at Clackamas. It has the emblem of Oregon emblazoned on it, while somewhat dimmed by age and wind the banner still looks as good as ever to every true citizen.

THE Stroller notices

THAT a few hours of sunshine soon hatches a big bunch of bench-warmers.

That he is after all a more or less lucky fellow who can each day spend an hour or so in the sun.

That it is just human nature for a man to put off today what he can do tomorrow.

That the Missouri meerschaum is coming into favor among the office scribes.

That we had to ask Mr. Webster how to spell meerschaum.

That a proposition to arrange some sort of an armistice with General Hicoot Offiviv would carry by a grand majority.

That a fellow can sneeze these days without feeling as though he had been caught sneaking candy from a baby.

That out of 10 persons who enter an apparently crowded streetcar, seven will linger and block up the aisle within four feet of the rear door and of the others three who step forward in the car, two will get seats.

That it is a wind from the north that drives away the clouds.

Chatter

It has been definitely decided by Charlie Chaplin that the next production to be released under his million dollar contract with the First National Exhibitors' circuit will be "Sun-ny-side."

"Sun-ny-side" shows the picturesque rural life of the average New England village community. Chaplin's satire of the farm hand is said to be his best work and besides the members of his company he uses for foils—livestock on the farm.

Roland W. Hayes Sings Tonight

Roland W. Hayes, tenor, and Lawrence E. Brown, pianist and accompanist, both colored, appear in concert tonight at 8:30 o'clock, in the Little Theatre, Twenty-third street, near Washington, under direction of Mrs. Edward D. Cannady.

Made in Portland Act Is Presented At Local Theatre

There is special interest attached to one of the bright features on the new program at the Hippodrome this week because it is an altogether made-in-Portland product, produced by Portland people. This act is "The Doll's Frolic," offered by the George Garrett company, including Mr. Garrett and Ruth and Merle Garrett, of a well-known Portland family.

"The Doll's Frolic," a pretty conceit with music and song, was written by Dudley H. McCosh, musician, and the drop for the act, the dolls and other paraphernalia.

DON'T HAVE GRAY HAIR

It's Easy to look Young and Fascinating by Use of "La Creole"

Advertisement for La Creole hair dressing. "La Creole has made me look 15 years younger." No woman should be handicapped socially by gray or faded hair. Every woman owes it to herself to look her best and avoid the appearance of coming age. Gray, streaked with gray, or faded hair makes many a woman look old before her time, and gray hair is so very unnecessary. La Creole Hair Dressing is the most popular Hair Color Restorer in use among society Men and Women of America today. It is a safe, delightful toilet preparation which uniformly restores gray, streaked with gray, or faded hair to its youthful beauty and lustre. La Creole Hair Dressing will not stain the scalp, wash or rub off, or leave the hair with that greasy or dried appearance. You apply it yourself by simply combing or brushing it through the hair before retiring, and the results will delight you surprisingly. La Creole is sold by The Owl Drug Co., and all good drug stores and toilet counters everywhere. Price $1.00.
