exacting than is possible under any civil review in this country. I shall not repeat its description or its record as shown in my letter to you of February 13, but I shall content myself with an assertion that the most of all to assist and that its record is complete and open to the public.

Will Stand by System

That mechanism added to the power of final review in this system is asked over a year ago will make the system such that I am willing to stand or fall by it.

So much for the controversy that has been magnified in the press and on the floor of congress. I am willing to stand or fall by it. I do not mean to say that, if criticism in the connection is due I am immune. I am not. I agree with the statute, and shall defend it, but I am not responsible for it.

Who Makes Charges?

Considering the charges from the standpoint of the officers who assessed the sentences let us see who they are. They are military men—men trained in an iron and heartless system until the liberal views of civil practice are froed out of their souls? They are not. They are men taken in a general draught through the nation so lately that the civilian clothes they left behind them are not yet out of style. They come from the military walk of the army and are of them. They comprise a faithful cross-section of our whole people, and our national life.

A TONIC IN THE SPRING INCREASES YOUR EFFICIENCY

Lay the Foundation of Good Health Now by Building Up Your Blood and Strengthening Your Nerves.

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the springtime, the most of giving out some common sense and good medical practice. No matter how mild the winter it is a trying time, even in the most favored climates. The weather is many times in the most rugged physical health. Many men, women and children go through the winter upon the reserve strength that they have stored up during the sunny summer months and grow increasingly thin and pale as the spring days approach. A tonic for the blood and nerves at a time like this is a tonic for efficiency, as well as to save you from suffering later on. A non-alcoholic tonic is best suited for most cases of debility, for stimulants aggravate many forms of nervousness. That such a remedy is available, with complete directions for home use that makes building up your strength a comparatively simple matter, is shown by the following well authenticated cases:

Gained Several Pounds. "Sometimes ago," says Mrs. C. J. Cleveland, No. 4204 Snelling avenue, Minneapolis, Minn., "I began to lose strength and color and it seemed as though nothing could restore my health. I was so badly run-down that my nerves seemed to be on the verge of giving out completely. I tried all the time and couldn't sleep at night or if I did sleep I was so restless that I didn't feel refreshed in the morning. The crying of my children used to get on my nerves and my face was colorless. Frequent headaches also caused me great distress and my digestion was disturbed. I read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a newspaper and was so impressed by what they had done for others that I decided to give the remedy a trial. After I had taken half a box I could see that they were helping me. My appetite was better and I began to pick up strength at once. I continued the treatment until my nerves were restored to strength. I no longer become excited and nervous. My color is good and I have gained several pounds in weight and feel fine. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to my friends."

No Longer Has Indigestion

Indigestion is one of the commonest symptoms of general debility and what is frequently called that "run-down condition." During the processes of digesand were steeped in the reasons making it grave, and who assessed the sentence on the performance of the highest civil duty of man—the defense of home and country.

Are Cross Section of Nation

These men cannot merit the indictment and distribute that has been heaped upon their actions. I have said you cannot indict a nation. These men are a portion of the nation—the portion that has the honor and the duty to save the nation from destruction. Their expression, and not that of men 8000 miles from the field of action, is certainly the voice of the nation. The punishment that should be meted out to men who imperil its honor and its safety. Why should the offense by a soldier of sleeping on duty be punished by death? Because cities and fortifications and armies have been lost through the drowsiness of sentinels; because cities have been disintegrated and nations humbled by desertion; because battles have been lost and peoples sold into captivity by the disobedience of some of the officers of the army.

I cannot enter this discussion further. To us at home, in comfort and in present peace, it is next to impossible to reconcile the almost unanimous view of soldiers on the field or those of war on the gravity of these and many other lesser offenses by their comrades. Therefore the execution of not one sentence of death for these things has been approved by me, and not one such sentence has been executed. Also, as I showed you in my letter of February 13, heavy sentences have been meted out to men who have been convicted of offenses by me, and not one such sentence has been executed. Also, as I showed you in my letter of February 13, heavy sentences have been meted out to men who have been convicted of offenses by me, and not one such sentence has been executed.

All On Same Basis

There, Mr. Secretary, are the main lines of the official discussion at this place neither individual cases nor minor principles that have been put in issue. They all come back to the essential bases that are here, and are being treated equally and uniformly. But even with that said, I can neither condemn the 100,000 officers who assessed the sentences, nor the law of congress, nor the manner under that law that made them possible.

Hostile critics will undoubtedly assert that the regulations have submitted commit me to a support of excessive sentences, which, of course, is not true. I only speak the probable viewpoint of the officers who have assessed these sentences. I am not a military officer, and my accuracy that on the day the sentence was signed, November 11, 1918, no person was serving the sentence of a general court-martial who had on that date entered upon the execution of the excessive portion of his sentence. As you are aware, shortly after my resumption of full charge of the office of judge advocate general, I recommended the convening of a board of clemency to undertake with the greatest expedition the adjustment of war-time punishments to peace-time standards, and that an admonition was issued, upon my recommendation, to court-martial and reviewing authorities, both at home and abroad, to conform, unless special reasons influenced them to a contrary course, to the limits of punishment observed in time of peace.

Personal Vindictive

I come now with the utmost reluctance, to a few distasteful paragraphs of personal vindictive. My motives and my actions have been attacked and I have been advertised as having hampered the efforts of General Ansell. I have been set off against him as reactionary. It has been said that the present military code is archaic and that I began what proved a tedious and heart-breaking task of years to obtain a complete revision of the old military code early in my service, paying my own expenses for the task. Ansell, I am sure, has been set off against him as reactionary.

Discusses Ansell Case

Indeed the first time that I was advised of such a view was in November, 1917, on the occasion of my being invited to go through me and entirely without consulting me—the first of the elaborate briefs about which so much has been said. It was charged that, as a result of that brief, an order designating him as acting judge advocate general was revoked, and further that he was relieved from his duties of serving as judge advocate general. Ansell, I am sure, has been set off against him as reactionary.

Ansell Asked, His Help

General Ansell asked me in formal writing to secure an order giving him secure an order appointing him acting judge advocate general in charge of my functions. I did not wish to be relieved of my duties, and I suffered from occasional spells of faintness and shortness of breath. I had a pain across my back and as the weakness continued I lost sleep.

Improve Your Appetite

Those who take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as a tonic invariably say that their improvement began with the first dose. It increased the appetite. When you are sick and your appetite is low your appetite fails. Nothing tastes good. You take no pleasure in eating. Under such circumstances good digestion is impossible. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills tone up the entire system, the blood is enriched and good food is essential to normal digestion. The fluids that are made of digestive fluids are strengthened, not merely stimulated, and you once more enjoy a good appetite. Looking forward to the next morning, the first sign of returning health, strength and vitality.

EUGENE ASSOCIATION INSPECTS MILL PROPERTIES

Present System, Declares Secretary, Is Forcing Mills to Close; Appeals Fall.

Eugene, March 21.—The Western Oregon Tie & Lumber association, with headquarters in Eugene, is prepared to do its share in the fight for regulation and inspection of ties, according to O. H. Ball, secretary of the association. Representatives from this organization will attend the meeting of manufacturers interested in the regulation of the railroad administration's tie purchasing policy, which will be held in Portland March 29. At this meeting it is hoped to take concerted action against the system of grading ties, which forces mills to shut down in this part of the state.

At least a dozen mills in this district have been closed because of inability to run under present conditions. Millmen do not object to the existing tie purchasing system of grading ties, a waste of 50 per cent is necessary to meet requirements. They say the price offered now for their product is the same as given them before the war, and that with labor 25 per cent higher, and with the present rigid inspection, it is impossible to operate at a profit. At least one mill has been forced into receivers' hands by the emergency.

Major Lenihan Says Alleged Complaints Without Foundation

Alleged complaints of timber and lumber operators, that, after having bid unsuccessfully on equipment of the spruce production corporation, they are met by agents working on a commission basis who offer to sell them this same material, are said by Major Lenihan to have been voiced by a few dissatisfied ones who hoped to sell some of the material on commission themselves. "Any individual or corporation may buy any of the material direct from the government at the same price the agents pay," said Major Lenihan. "We had to have this equipment appraised and valued by someone who knew its value to do it."

Eugene Raises Big Sum

Eugene, March 21.—With more than $16,000 pledged, the workers for the University of Oregon want building fund are hopeful of cleaning up the campaign within the next few days. One friend of the university who withholds his name is the amount. The drive follows action by the legislature in appropriating $100,000 to be available when a like sum had been raised by subscription. The effort of General Ansell to raise $75,000 will be raised throughout the state, the campaign to start next week.

Schultz resides at 125 Nebraska street.

Overseas Men Banqueted

Eugene, March 21.—Returned members of the Sixty-ninth coast artillery, the 12th infantry and the 11th engineers, who arrived in Eugene within the past few days, were banqueted at the Chamber of Commerce Thursday night by the members of the Sixty-ninth auxiliary and kindred societies. Twenty-five Eugene boys, who had seen overseas service with the three organizations, were present with their mothers and fathers. The program was enjoyed. E. C. Simmons, president of the Eugene Chamber of Commerce, was toastmaster.

PROMINENT LEGISLATOR OF CLACKAMAS PASSES

SENATOR DIMICK DIES AT OREGON CHAMBER SESSION

Made Strenuous Fight in Legislature Against the Paving Trust in Oregon. Oregon City, March 21.—Death came Thursday evening at about 6 o'clock to State Senator Walter Aaron Dimick at his home in the city following an illness of about two weeks' duration, brought on by the strenuous legislative session. He had not been well for months previous to his illness, suffering from organic trouble. Upon his return from Salem, realizing that his work was too wearing and that he was far from well, Mr. Dimick planned to abandon his law practice and buy a farm.

Governor Honors Memory

Salem, March 21.—Governor Olcott today delivered the following brief statement relative to the death of Senator Walter A. Dimick: "I feel very keenly the passing of Senator Walter A. Dimick of Clackamas county. During all the years of my official life I knew Senator Dimick well. He was essentially a fighter, of strong, rugged personality. But those he fought the hardest seemed to him the best, if anything. As a legislator he was straightforward and shot at the mark regardless of consequences.

Everett Ames Not Out of Danger

Everett Ames, who is ill at his home with pneumonia, is reported by his physician, Dr. Herbert Nichols, as being still in a critical condition. He has not developed any new unfavorable symptoms in the last 24 hours, and that in itself, according to Dr. Nichols, is encouraging. It is to be expected that the patient will be in a critical condition for the next two or three days, after which an improvement may be expected.

Shelburn Educator Dies

Shelburn, March 21.—Assa P. Hiron, a prominent educator, died at his home near Shelburn March 19, aged 51 years. Practically all his life was spent in the school room as a teacher, and he was in a critical condition. He has not developed any new unfavorable symptoms in the last 24 hours, and that in itself, according to Dr. Nichols, is encouraging. It is to be expected that the patient will be in a critical condition for the next two or three days, after which an improvement may be expected.

FRANCE DEMANDS GERMAN WARSHIPS

Paris, March 21.—France insists that the surrendered German warships be distributed among the victors as legitimate prizes of war. As for these ships being called "white elephants" by those who advocate their sinking, France is willing to take a chance. Having suffered most, France demands a share corresponding with her sacrifices. France also opposes the suppression of the establishment as a war weapon.

SAYS ACID STOMACH CAUSES INDIGESTION

Excess of hydrochloric acid sours the food and forms gases. Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by Hyperacidity, meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food poisoning. The acid ferments and forms acids in the stomach much like garbage sour in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a hot balloon. "IT SURE WAS A LUCKY DAY FOR ME," SAYS STATOVI

Declares Way Tanlac Built Him Up Was Biggest Surprise of His Life. "I am telling everybody I hear complaining to take Tanlac because it did me so much good," said J. N. Staton, 305 East Eighty-seventh street, Portland, receiving a check for the Tanlac Biscuit company, the other day. "My trouble began about five years ago," he continued, "but in the last two years it got so much worse that every thing I ate disagreed with me and after every meal I would have a lump in my stomach almost as heavy as lead. My food would sour and form gas that would blow me up and would be miserable for hours. I got so that I was afraid to eat solid food and I lost weight and strength until I seemed almost a part of what I once was. I had a little energy that I could hardly keep going and such a pain in the small of my back that if I stooped over I could hardly straighten up again. I also had dizzy spells so bad that often I would almost fall before I could grab hold of something to steady me. I was so weakened by the time I had finished a day's work that I would have to lie down and rest awhile before I would be able to get to the supper table. I couldn't find anything in the way of medicine that did me any good but finally a friend advised me to try Tanlac because it had helped him so much and it surely was a lucky day for me when I took his advice."

THE MEN IN CLASS A

A sound, healthy man is never a back number. A man can be as vigorous and able at seventy as at twenty. Condition, not years, puts you in the discard. A man weakened by overwork and carelessness loses his vigor and his ability. The bodily functions are impaired and unpleasant symptoms appear. The weak spot is generally the kidneys. Keep them clean and in proper condition and you will generally find your self in Class A. Take GOLD MEDAL Heaston Coughs, colds, and all the troubles of your system will be relieved in order. Your spirits will be enlivened, your muscles supple, your mind active, and your body capable of hard work.
