Fish Commission Office Reports - Run as Large as Record Movement of Last Year.

SIGN OF SPRING

Even Sure to Draw Throngs Today Bent on Acquiring Large Food Supply Cheap.

Smelt by the millions are invading the river. During the early morning Saturday the vanguard slipped in from the Columbia. At noon the run was ascending the river in massed formation, and by late evening word was received at the Fish and Game commission head-quarers that the run will be as large as the record movement last year.

Sunday noon the main body of the run will likely be at or above routdale, the Mecca for tens of thou s of people from Portland anxious opinion of the anxious fishermen, the run could not have come at a more op-portune time, as the main body of the invading hordes a ill be crossing the faspots for dip-netters on the day when the majority of workers are able one day away from

Chance for Fish Stories

In addition, this run is coming before game fish season has opened, so it fishermen who have been awaiting the day when they can try their prowes with the rod may take jaunts along the river bank Sunday and whet their fishing appetite by using a scoop shovel or a gunnysack and then write to their distant friends the season's biggest story of the number of fish they caught. As a matter of fact, tons of the smelt were scooped out of the Sandy river during the record run last year. Every known contrivance and a few that took the breath away from spectators were used to rake up piles of the fish that consider the best of all. Gunnysacks, dipnets, colanders and buckets with holes punched in the bottoms were he principal means of getting the denizens of the deep. Overalls with the legs tied up and silk underskirts were among the implements.

Lure Engulfs Spectators The surprise came when those who went merely as spectators became so engrossed in the catching of fish that they had the keen desire of catching a few smelt themselves, even though they nowld be bought for a trifle. Necessity being the mother of invention these fishermen then brought into play such ima result of the fish run being rested in full progress, the price of elt in the public markets took a sudden drop Saturday afternoon, grocers laid in an extra supply of salt to be used ective catch and sporting goods houses reported a big sale of all classes of dipnets.

Special deputies of the law will likely dale in an effort to keep the roads in that vicinity open to travel. Last year it was practically impossible to keep moving in this vicinity. The state fish and game commission will likely make an effort to obtain a large supply of these fish for use in feed-

Say Section Entitled to Development Which Would Come to the hall and spent the evening in the next meeting of the highway comsion, April 15, according to R. A. Booth state highway commissioner, who re-turned from Portland Friday night. The commission has had engineers in the field for several weeks surveying on a proposed new route, which would west of the Oregon Electric and Southern Pacific railways the entire distance between Eugene and Junction City, the intention in view being to eliminate railway crossings. Advocates of the preseent highway, locally known as the River road, have objected to the new proposal. They argue that the new road would be no shorter and would run through a sparsely settled section. Property owners on the proposed road state that their section is entitled to development and that the highway routed west of the railways would be a big advantage on account of the elimination of crossings. The angineers, who conducted the work, have handed in reports on the project which have not yet been made public, Mr. Booth says.
