

2000 VETERANS EXPECTED TO BE IN VICTORY PARADE

Captain Conville Who Is in Service as Director of Federal Employment Service, to Lead.

HALF HOLIDAY IS PLANNED

Proclamation of Mayor Expected To Enable Shipworkers to Have Place in Line of March.

It is the prediction of Chairman A. C. Black of the Victory loan parade committee that 2000 veterans will be seen in the grand military parade of Thursday afternoon. Men who fought in all branches of service, under American and British flags, and those who served in relief organizations will have place.

Captain J. O. Conville, who has just been discharged from the coast artillery and who has been serving as director of the employment service work for service men in Portland, has been selected as grand marshal of the parade. Captain Martin W. Hawkins, former member of the old Third Oregon and late of the field artillery forces overseas, will command section No. 2, which is to be composed of Yankee veterans of Oregon. Commander of the British and Canadian sections will be named in a few hours.

Registration of returned service men for participation in the parade has a trifling slow, reports Chairman Black. He requests that every ex-service man consider it his duty to participate and proceed at once to the registration desk in the Soldiers' and Sailors' club, Royal building, taking along any comrades who may not have heard of the need of registering for the parade. British and Canadian veterans will register with Corporal W. J. Enright, who is looking after details of participation by his comrades, at room 502 Oregon building.

Establishment of a half-holiday for Thursday afternoon by proclamation of Mayor George L. Baker is expected to make it possible to have shipyard workers in the parade. Efforts were started Monday by members of the parade committee to align several thousand of these workers for participation.

Boy Feeds Polar Bear Peanuts; Gets Hand Badly Torn

John J. Gallagher, postoffice messenger, drew his gun and fired, hitting the bear in the head.

VICTORY BONDS ARE BETTER INVESTMENT THAN FOURTH LIBERTY

In Addition to Cash Value, Interest is More Attractive and Exemption Features Greater.

One dollar spent for a Victory loan bond at par is a better investment than a Fourth Liberty loan bond bought in the open market at 93 cents on the dollar. It earns more money for the investor.

Fourth Liberty loan bonds have been selling in the money markets of the country at a discount. The ruling price has been around 88 cents on the dollar. In other words, a $100 bond could be bought for an investment of $88. The bond draws interest at 4 1/2 per cent annually. Purchased for $93 in the market, a Fourth Liberty loan bond would yield to the purchaser approximately 4.70 per cent on the investment.

The Victory loan bears an interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent. Purchased at par, $100 for a $100 bond, it will give the investor 4.75 per cent on his investment. It is a better investment at par than the former issues at a discount such as has prevailed in the financial markets up to this time.

The Victory note has still other advantages over former Liberty loan issues. It is exempt from taxation. None of the income from it is reduced by war tax or other federal charges. All of the interest comes to the investor for him to keep. It has a shorter maturity, running for four years only. Without doubt it will be quoted at a premium before many months have passed. When it goes to a premium it will become a 5 per cent investment, or better.

Men who make a business of investing in the market realize the advantages of the Victory loan. They know it is a better investment at par than the bonds of the preceding loans at a discount. It will yield more return on an investment of $100 than the other bond yields on an investment of $92. It is convertible, exempt from taxation, of short maturity and desirable. It holds out a certainty of gain, and no chance for loss.

PENDLETON RESIDENT TELLS OF PROSPERITY OF EASTERN OREGON

Clarence Penland Says Business is Thriving in Way Unprecedented in Years.

Clarence Penland, for 28 years a resident of Pendleton, was in Portland Monday bubbling over with stories of prosperity of Pendleton and Umatilla county.

"Business in Pendleton is thriving in a way that we haven't seen before in years, in fact, I believe it is better than ever," Mr. Penland enthused Monday morning.

"Building activity is greater than ever before; new houses are under construction, automobile agencies are erecting quarters and everything appears to be stimulated. Even during the war there wasn't as much activity as there is at present. Pendleton is filled with people, some newcomers, others returning from shipyards, and still others, farmers retiring and coming to the city to reside. People cannot find houses to rent, and three of my four storage houses are filled with furniture."

Mr. Penland asserts that farmers and fruit men are expecting great returns from crops this year. "The wheat yield will be as good if not better than last season, and fruit men are promising a heavy crop. Everything is humming, and the fact that the automobile people are coming to Pendleton shows what the business prosperity is."

Mr. Penland is one of the Pendleton brothers, engaged in the transfer and storage business. His father is a prosperous Umatilla county farmer. "I have been in Portland a few days on business and will return home this evening," Mr. Penland explained.

Davis, a young man in the neck and in the back at Willis boulevard and Washburn streets Sunday and died that afternoon in the Good Samaritan hospital. Davis, who had not been home, or even written for several years. The description contained in the note corresponded exactly with that of the man who was shot in the back. ## PROSECUTION BEGINS OFFERING EVIDENCE IN SAM ROLL TRIAL

Defendant Charged With Murder of Mrs. Betty Taug, to Plead Unwritten Law.

The prosecution began the introduction of its testimony today in Circuit Judge Gates' court hearing the trial of Sam Roll charged with the murder of Mrs. Betty Taug on February 14, 1919. Mrs. Rose Fleming of 556 Congress street identified the accused as the man she saw prowling about the house in which Mrs. Taug was killed on the night on which the alleged murder was committed. She stated that she saw Roll enter the house, pass through the kitchen, leave the house and fall upon the sidewalk. According to the witness she saw nothing that happened within the building and neither did she hear any shots fired. "The only indication she had that anything was wrong was, she said, when Roll pitched forward unconscious on the sidewalk in front of the house."

Neil McEachern, a neighbor of the Taugs, told of being summoned by a woman on the night of the murder, to call for the police. He stated that after telephoning the police he went to the Taug home and there found Mrs. Taug apparently dead from several bullet wounds. He identified Roll as the man whom he saw lying on the sidewalk in front of the house, unconscious and bleeding from bullet wounds.

Attorney Morris Goldstein for the defense stated in his opening remarks yesterday that his client would plead the unwritten law of insanity.

Roll married Mrs. Taug shortly after her divorce from Hans Taug last August in Circuit Judge Tucker's court. She returned to Portland and became reconciled to her former husband after learning that her marriage with Roll was illegal, having been performed before the statutory six months had elapsed. It was at the home of Mr. Taug that she was killed.

RAILROAD WORK WILL BE RUSHED, REPORTS ROBERT E. STRAHORN

Klamath Falls Road to Take Shape This Summer, Says Builder.

Returning to Portland after a trip of 10 days to Klamath Falls to begin making arrangements for taking over the Klamath Falls railroad, which he has been building for the city, Robert E. Strahorn, railroad builder, now promises that the road work will be pushed a distance of 20 miles, or as far north as Sprague river, this summer.

This, Mr. Strahorn says, will be guaranteed, providing the extension from Klamath Falls to Dairy which he has been building is turned over in accordance with the agreement as to the Klamath Falls terminal and rights of way to Sprague river.

In addition, Mr. Strahorn says that he has determined to push construction on beyond Dairy even if slowly so the project does not languish, but he believed that it was more important to get into the Sprague River district this year because of the immediate business the railroad would draw from that section.

Mr. Strahorn is gathering more financial aid. He says that he has increased the first nominal amount to $1,000,000 to get ready for the more important conditions which he believes the future holds in store. The extension this year to Sprague river will take about $500,000. After the line is pushed this far he hopes that larger capital can be interested so that the line may be pushed on through to Bend.

While the work is painfully slow, Mr. Strahorn is pleased with the attitude of
