

WOOD PROPAGANDA GOING STRONG ON EASTERN SEABOARD

Backers Are Testing Out Country to Determine If He Is Republican Political Moses.

ASSETS ARE ENUMERATED

Universal Military Service Is, However, Only Thing Country Can Be Certain He Favors.

Washington, May 12.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL)—Some clever political propagandists are being conducted in Washington and some other cities of the east in behalf of General Leonard Wood for the Republican nomination for president. The country is to be tested out to decide if he is indeed the Moses.

Wood is being boosted on the theory that the temper of the country calls for a soldier, that he is popular with veterans of the Spanish war, that his failure to receive high command abroad in the world war will draw sympathy, that his administration of affairs in Cuba is a strong point, that his friendship with Roosevelt will make him acceptable to the Roosevelt following, and that he has no political record to embarrass him.

In some quarters it is said that the advocates of universal military training are especially anxious to promote the talk of Wood. The army has been his profession and universal service the one thing the country can be sure he favors, for on public questions generally his views are unknown. He would be a much greater enigma than Hughes was in 1916.

Friends of some of the other candidates say they are glad to see Wood trotted out for a trial heat in good season, because they do not believe he will wear. It is realized that the racers will warm up earlier than usual this time and they are glad to see Wood put through the course. He will be less dangerous, they think, if the people have plenty of time to study his outlines.

It has also been suggested that the Wood gossip, which is evidently being skillfully directed, has been set going as a flank attack on Taft, who appears to have accumulated a large supply of good will on his recent speech-making tours, and seems to have a chance to harvest some delegates in the west as matters now stand.

A discerning observer may see signs of the Leonard Wood rainbow at several points of the horizon, and those who are interested in presidential gossip on the Republican side of the fence will not be surprised if "Wood warbles" are heard in many sections within the next few weeks. It is part of the process of trying out the horse to see how fast he can trot.

SWITCHING CHARGE TO BE DISCUSSED

regard to the St. Johns terminal. It is argued that all extra charges should be applied to the North Pacific mill on the west side of the river and that the distance from the Albina junction to the mill on the west side and the St. Johns terminal is about the same.

It is contended in behalf of the dock commission, as related by Engineer Hegardt, that all extra charges should be removed. Frank Randall, assistant secretary of the commission, stated that it would be difficult to get new industries to locate at the St. Johns terminal section under present rate conditions.

FEDERAL ASSURANCE RECEIVED
In its own behalf the federal traffic committee assured the people of Portland that everything possible would be done to relieve the burdens that the port may have, but it was explained that, with the exception of a few instances, the St. Johns terminal now has the Portland rate.

Chairman Frank W. Robinson said that the port of Portland was in no need of being alarmed about being able to take care of itself; that its position was strong and favorable from a port of view.

"We must protect the federal revenue," he said, "and the charges must be based on the service performed," he said.

Mr. Robinson stated that the extra charge of 25 cents a ton for print paper and the extra charge for lumber shipments would have to remain.

Committeeman W. D. Skinner said: "The shipments of paper, for instance, from Oregon City to St. Johns, then to San Francisco, requires extra service, whereas the paper could be delivered at

Pigeon Finds Way From Bend to Old Home in Portland

Cats and bad money aren't the only things that come back. Demonstrating the efficiency of the carrier pigeon, Silver Hen, a pigeon recently sold to the United States forest service and sent to Bend, Or., to raise young pigeons for use in the Deschutes national forest, came back about a week ago to her former owner, R. C. Hamill of Lentz.

The pigeon had been away from her original home for more than two months and had been well treated in her new home, where she was raising a family of squabs. She was let out of the cage by mistake, however, and turned up with a contented coo at her old home.

Mr. Hamill, who is a bird and animal fancier, has communicated with the forest service and will send the pigeon back to Bend.

municipal dock No. 2. The rate to San Francisco is low now, and the roads can not afford to absorb any more of the costs.

Ex-Governor Oswald West, who appeared for the Port of Portland commission and the smaller mills of the valley, stated that since the railroads are being managed as a unit, there should be no difference in the switching charges and the question of switching charges by the Southern Pacific line should not enter into the issue.

It was admitted by the federal experts that the charges referred to applied only to the west side division of the Southern Pacific and the Oregon Electric.

J. B. Campbell, P. D. Burroughs and John H. Lathrop, other members of the commission, were present. Lathrop said the switching charge question should be settled at once.

It was the sense of the majority of the committee that the whole question be presented in a specific form in order that the nature of the commodities and their origin should be determined before further action is taken.

New Lumber Mill At Clear Lake Is One of Largest

Clear Lake, Wash., May 12.—The new mill of the Clear Lake Lumber company, just opened at this place, is one of the largest and best equipped in the world. It was built at a cost of $800,000 on the site of a mill destroyed by fire in May, 1915.

The mill is operated entirely by electricity, generated by turbine engines, waste from lumber manufacture being used as fuel. Capacity of the mill is 250,000 board feet per day and employment is given from 1000 to 1200 men the year round. The company owns approximately 1,200,000,000 feet of standing timber and operates 40 miles of railroad, connecting its logging camps with the mill at this place.

Bucket Brigade Is Efficient in Saving Ancient Building

Fire caused by a spark from the chimney falling on a moss covered roof, burned the roof on an old dwelling house at 185 West Park street about noon today. The building is now used by M. J. Reiser as a carpenter shop.

Assistant Fire Marshal Roberts said the chimney would have to be removed, as it does not comply with the fire ordinances. Firemen put the blaze out with buckets and dispensers full of water, no hose being laid into the place.
