Lou-Tellegen Is Signed Up for the M. P.

Will Play Opposite His Wife, Geraldine Farrar, in Number of Celluloid Plays.

THE latest featured player in the Goldwyn roster is Lou-Tellegen, who will play opposite his wife, Geraldine Farrar, in a series of photoplays. They are now at studios in Culver City, Cal., where they will begin work immediately.

Tellegen's art is not confined to the dramatic, for he has achieved recognition as a poet, an author and a sculptor. At the age of 14 he ran away from his home in Holland, where he received his early education. His father was a nobleman, but despite the fact that his home was a Dutch castle, the young man insisted on tearing loose in order to see the world. He has traveled extensively.

In order to make a living after running away from his source of support, Lou-Tellegen followed various trades—baker, carpenter, tailor, dramatic critic.

Several years later he returned home, and applied himself to the study of the plastic art, working in a sculptor's studio. Here he fell in with a theatrical entrepreneur, who was taken with Tellegen's knowledge of the theatre and the richness of his voice. This led to an engagement to play in Toscani's "The Gods," the part Oswald being an auspicious start for any actor. "Obtaining success"—to use his own phrase—followed young Tellegen, and one day he satisfied his own ambitions by playing Romeo.

Subsequently Tellegen went to Paris, where he spent some time at sculpture and entered the Conservatoire. Bernhard invited him to come to America as her leading man, and in 1912 he made his first appearance in the United States in "Joan of Arc." He was seen in Portland with Barnhardt at the Orpheum. His most recent performance was in "Blind Youth," which he himself wrote in collaboration with Willard Mack.

In February, 1916, Lou-Tellegen married Geraldine Farrar. This is the first time the two have appeared together. Aside from an appearance when the screen was in its earlier days, Lou-Tellegen has never before appeared in motion pictures.

Polytechnic Girls To Give Operetta As Curtain-Raiser

"The Death of Julius Caesar," an operetta which is a travesty on the Shakespearean tragedy, will be given as a curtain raiser to the senior class play, "The Conspirators," of the Girls' Polytechnic school this evening. All the parts will be taken by the members of the graduating class. The play is a comedy concerning the pranks of the senior class in a girls' school.

The operetta cast consists of Alice Purdy, Ada Lambert, Elizabeth Arata, Margaret Martin, Kulla Flint, Edith Reed, Agnes Naurath and Margaret Gabriel, with Eddy Reynolds as accompanist. Parts in "The Conspirators" will be taken by Loraine Muglie, Ellen Keller, Thelma Swank, Martha Henrich, Mabel Morse, Mildred Clayton, Etta Barker, Margaret Morrison, Virginia Banes, Hilda Laasch and Bertha Stern.

Proceeds of the play will go toward paying commencement expenses.

Mask and Dagger Selects Officers

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, May 22.—Mask and Dagger, the dramatic club of the Oregon Agricultural college, has made its selection of officers for the coming school year. Don Conklin of Ontario is head of the organization. Other officers elected were: Irene Curtis, Salem, vice president; Vera Funk, Corvallis, secretary; Helen King, Salem, barometer reporter; W. B. Hayes was recommended to the board of control as manager. This organization comprises about 35 members, who put on two or three dramatic productions each year.

An electric motor keeps the water aerated in a tank car built by a European railroad for transporting living fish long distances.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE is one of the motion picture stars whose rise to popularity has been somewhat meteoric and in "A Lady's Name," the current attraction at the Majestic, she is seen to splendid advantage.

NATIONAL GUARD NOTES

The engineers of the national guard will give a dance at the Armory Saturday night that will be an attractive social affair to those who enjoy good music, considerate attention and good company.

Major J. Francis Drake presided over the school of commissioned officers of the national guard organizations in Portland at the Armory Friday night.

Captain I. R. Niles gave the non-commissioned officers at the Armory Friday night a drill in the manual of arms along the lines of the A. B. C.

Colonel H. C. Cooleedge of La Grande was in consultation Thursday with officers of the national guard and attended the officers' school and visited Colonel North at the Armory. He thinks a battalion of infantry can be organized in Eastern Oregon as soon as the national government is in a position to defray part of the expenses.

Colonel W. C. North of the Third Oregon is counting the days to about June 9, when he fondly hopes to be relieved of command and to be succeeded by Colonel John L. May, now adjutant general of Oregon. "I can do more good as a booster than as a colonel," declared the veteran of the old Second Oregon.

Company I is to give a dance at the Armory a week from Saturday night, May 31. It is expected that the members of the company will have a most attractive bevy of young ladies for guests.

The old quarters of Battery A, field artillery, is now occupied by the machine gun company, but arrangements will be made to restore to Battery A its home in the Armory upon demand, although where the M. G. company will be placed is a deep problem with the already crowded condition of the building.

Pendleton Launches Water System Work

Pendleton, May 22.—Contracts will be let at once for extending the mains for the Pendleton water system 1300 feet to Chaplain springs. The work will be rushed, with the object of connecting this spring with the city water supply before the dry season.

Glencoe School Concert on Saturday

Proceeds Will Go Mainly Toward Support of Belgian Babies Adopted.

By Vella Winner THE entertainment to be given at the Glencoe school auditorium Saturday, May 24, at 8:15 p. m., promises to be of more than usual interest. Tickets are being sold by school children. Proceeds will go toward the support of the Belgian babies adopted by the school and to maintain expenses of the Parent-Teacher organization, which is especially active in the Glencoe district. General admission tickets will be on sale at the door.

Mrs. E. L. Knight, assisted by more than 20 of the finest stringed instrument musicians of the Stranded Musical club, is directing the program. She will be further assisted by Miss Wilberta Babidge, prominent aesthetic dancing instructor, with several of her pupils, and by well known soloists.

Those who have the affair in charge are hoping for the generous patronage of all who have an attractive club, in directing the program. She will be further assisted by Miss Wilberta Babidge, prominent aesthetic dancing instructor, with several of her pupils, and by well known soloists.

The Adventures of Jimmy Coon

Little William's Escape WHEN Cousin Bruin found the bundle of little William's clothes he examined them all over, turning them over with his great paws and growling a little. He turned the bundle over and over and set his claws in the shirt and the blue jeans. They were ragged, and so little William, peeping over the edge of his log, didn't care how much they were torn, but when Cousin Bruin began to tear and claw the nice red sweater that was too much for little William and he stood on top of his log and waved his arms and yelled at Cousin Bruin, "Say, you there, do you know whose sweater that is? You tearing it up this minute," and Cousin Bruin was so surprised to hear the voice from the middle of the pond that he stopped tearing and decided to catch that cat boy. Cousin Bruin waded right into the pond and swam for the log in the middle, but little William didn't wait for him to land but jumped at the same moment and swam for dear life for the opposite bank. Teddy Possum swung by his long tail from a tree on one side and caught the branch of a tree on the other. Chatterbox jumped from bough to bough. Jimmy Coon swam part of the way and waded and jumped the rest of the way, but when they reached the farther bank, little William was not there. Not a sound but the note of a wood pigeon could be heard. Cousin Bruin couldn't think what had become of little William. "Come," said Jimmy Coon, "follow me, for I know where the Jones' Farm is and that is just where little William is. If we don't catch him, I know a trick worth two of catching him, and here are no good to eat anyway. Frog

Submits to First Arrest When Only 18 Months of Age

San Francisco—Jack Theodore Walters, 18 months old, was arrested recently on a warrant issued by Superior Judge B. J. Flood. He was brought into court in the arms of Sheriff Thomas F. Finn and awarded to the custody of his mother, Mrs. Hazel Walters, so to remain until further orders from the court. A few minutes before Jack's mother had placed on the secret file a suit for divorce from his father, Jack Otto Walters. In the affidavit Mrs. Walters declared that her husband was planning to kidnap little Jack and take him beyond the state line, where the San Francisco courts would have no jurisdiction. Mrs. Walters accompanied Sheriff Finn and her baby into court and identified Jack as her son. The warrant accused Jack of being the son of a man who, it was reported, wanted to kidnap him. He was released on his "own recognizance."

THE Stroller notices

THAT President Wilson is in favor of granting a little more time for friends of the milder beverages to "pass around the bier." That Antonio and his fellow laborers are working on the Burnside bridge—again. That it's poor garden growing weather. That some day we're going to follow the girl who slips into the church basement in the late afternoon, just to see what happens. That it's great to meet a fellow from your old home town. That the first thing you know you're talking about those good by-gone days. That then you come to a realization that you're not as young as you used to be, and that many, many of your old pals have "gone west." That this colyum is fair to organized labor. That the colyum conductor wears a union suit. That J. Chandler Egan can drive an automobile with one hand and talk with the other. That you can never tell what's at the bottom of a box of strawberries from the looks of the berries on top. That Phil Metcham Jr. eats the same kind of food he serves to his guests. That it seems to agree with him. That Japanese tenwans make effective costumes for feminine office wear.

Praises Portland Hotels "There are better hotels in Portland than any city on the coast," said Albert Pick, who has just opened up a branch office for his firm in Chicago which deals in hotel equipment. "The accommodations and service cannot be duplicated in any of the other coast cities." Mr. Pick has his eye on all the new hotels being built in the Northwest, with the idea of supplying their equipment. During the "Greeters' convention in June, Mr. Pick expects to have a display of the latest things in hotel furnishings at the Multnomah.

AMUSEMENTS THE OAKS AMUSEMENT PARK

CHAT NO. 5 Today the weather is threatening a rainy spell. Who cares? Certainly not we at THE OAKS. We have shelter and delightful entertainment for thousands. We defy the weather. Of course, it may not rain at all, but if it does... The Armstrong Folly company, headed by some of the most notable entertainers who ever appeared on this coast, includes a beauty chorus that is by many shades superior to anything you have yet seen in its class. Not only are the girls pretty and clever, but their comedies are sparkling bits of interest that are a cure for tired nerves. The elaborate shows are beautifully staged and from the most settled miles in the chorus to pretty Perqueta Courtney, the charming leading lady, all are costumed in the richest, most pleasing manner. For side-splitting comedy that famous pair, Ed Armstrong and George Rehn, would be mighty hard to beat. And for music, the popular and tuneful melodies of the orchestra, THE OAKS auditorium is doubly an attraction. The largest theatre orchestra now playing to Portland audiences in supporting the Armstrong company artists.
