Compiled as a digest of the opinions of various commercial organizations on the subject of industrial work by pub ic bodies, a booklet entitled 'Industrial H. Crawford, manager of the Depart-ment of Industries of the Portland Chamber of Commerce. The compilation of this book is based on the question naires sent out several months ago by the United States Chamber of Com merce to the larger commercial organi-been received and Mr. Crawford is hopeful that enough interest will be taken to says, he will have a reprint made as he pelieves the information carried in the in industrial development. In summar-izing the text the following is said of questionnaire that most commercial organizations place greater value upon the industrial expansion of their communities and that this is brought about through the growth of established industries and acquisition of new. Of the two factors of industrial growth, the most important, so far as results are concerned, is the expansion of industries already on the ground.

"Growth of this kind, being responsive to trade demands, is what most orquestionnaire that most commercial organizations seek, and only such new ineral industrial scheme. Most organizarealize that new industries are only helpful to a community if they con-tribute to its healthful growth. of conditions that may make for disaster is without much regard to welfare con-
