

PREVENT INJURIES
BY SAFETY FIRST,
DECLARES EXPERT

General Manager of the National Safety Council Speaks Before Industrial Employers in City.

COOPERATION IS NECESSARY

Figures Showing How Education of Workmen Saves Big Loss Presented to Manufacturers.

To convince employers that safety methods and safety education, aside from the ethical aspect, is a good business proposition, and to interest employees and the public itself even down to the homes and to the school children, in putting Portland on a safety basis, C. W. Price, general manager of the National Safety Council, is in Portland.

Mr. Price spoke before the employers of a number of Portland industrial firms at a dinner given at the Benson Saturday night. He will speak Monday night before the foremen, telling them what they can do to lessen accidents in industrial plants.

HAS LONG EXPERIENCE
Mr. Price is forceful and convincing, with a head full of figures that he rattles off without hesitation. For 12 years he was with the International Harvester company, and then he organized safety work for five years he was with the industrial commission of Wisconsin, organizing that state on a new basis that has since been copied by many other states.

By the installation of safety machinery and devices, three-fourths of the industrial accidents can be eliminated, says Mr. Price.

STRIVE FOR SAFETY
Accident prevention, for the last 10 years has been the common ground on which employers and employees can meet.

Ninety per cent of the accidents in plants adhering strictly to state regulations and insurance laws are due to lack of education of the employees. Safety methods yield not only ordinary, but extraordinary dividends on the investment. The campaign is a business proposition.

These are the facts that Mr. Price is giving to employers. He related many stories as proof of his argument. In a United States arsenal last July 4500 men were employed at extremely hazardous work. The number increased to 3300. Such an abnormal situation always increases accidents, but results of the safety campaign showed that in April, 1918, accidents had dropped 77 per cent under the number in July, which had been 11-3 men out of every 100 men in a period of three days. The education work among employees is handled by a safety engineer.

SAVING SHOWN
The United States Steel corporation, the pioneer in the safety movement, showed a saving of 23,196 lives or permanently disabled men during the period from 1907 to 1918, in which safety methods were practiced. Besides lives, the company saved $1,000,000 annually which would have been spent on accidents.

"Every great railroad today has organized a safety department," said Mr. Price. "During the first five years they reduced the number of passengers killed in wrecks one-half and train operators 47 per cent. During the last year there were 325 railroads with 162,900 miles of track, carrying 485,000,000 passengers, without an accident."

"Five things must be done. The general manager must put safety on the map and get back of it so unmistakably that every foreman will be convinced and will do his part."

"The attitude of the workman on safety depends absolutely upon the foreman. In every plant there should be a man called 'safety inspector,' who has acquainted himself with methods of doing safety work in other plants and who should devote his whole time to looking after the safety."

"The bulletin board should be posted each week with pictures bringing home to the workmen the need of carefulness."

"Each plant should organize an inspection committee of the rank and file of the workmen, which is given absolute authority to make inspections on the company's time and make recommendations. The only way to win the confidence of the men is by giving them an active part."

Club Will Meet to Plan Entertainment

To plan a series of summer entertainments, the Coast Athletic club of Portland will meet in room 520 of the courthouse next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.
