Mary Pickford Says N. Y. Owes Her Money

Seeks to Recover Funds Deposited to Cover Judgment Issued Against Her.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Mary Pickford wants $115,000 from the city chambeflain of the city of New York, together with interest, minus legitimate charges, since November last.

The money was deposited with the city's custodian of finances in November last, after a jury had awarded judgment against her to Mrs. Cora Wilmerding, theatrical and literary agent, for $104,000 with interests and amounting to approximately $108,000. Miss Pickford appealed, and deposited the money as security for the payment of Mrs. Wilmerding's claim, in the event of an appellate court decision in her The appellate division, however, sent the suit back to the county court house for a new trial.

Miss Pickford believes that, under the circumstances, she should get her $115,-300 back with interest. An application for its return has been filed in the county clerk's office.
