

Challenger Anxious to Get Back Into Ring to Put on Finishing Touches for Big Bout

DEMPSEY WANTS TO RENEW BOXING COMING CONTEST

Challenger Anxious to Don Padded Mitts for Daily Workouts; Sparring Partners Cautioned Not to Hit Cut; Willard Goes Through Several Rounds; Still Has Some Extra Weight.

Toledo, Ohio, June 19.—It is hardly expected that Jack Dempsey will resume his boxing tomorrow, but preparations are being made to again speed up the training of the challenger of the world's heavyweight title. When he does start again it will be with a surprising vigor. The lay-off put him on edge for a resumption of stiff work. The result of yesterday's workout in the Willard camp was a replica of what had taken place the day before. He slugged with the heavier fellows, and had his face mugged up to some extent by the zippy work of the 161 pound Joe Chip. Willard looks to be in excellent condition, following a week of uncertainty regarding his fitness. His color is mounting to the brownness attained by Dempsey, one thing that makes the challenger appear to such good effect. The muscles across Willard's back, especially at the shoulders, are drawing down.

Marshfield to Have Ring Bouts On July Fourth

Marshfield, June 19.—Boxing is to be permitted in Marshfield, although there exists a city ordinance against the sport. The city council was petitioned to appoint a commission to have charge of boxing contests with jurisdiction under the state law recently passed. The city attorney advised that the state law conflicting with the city ordinance, the latter was set aside. The petition was presented at this time particularly because those arranging the Fourth of July celebration for Marshfield want to stage a bout here on that occasion.

HEAT HELPS BIG FELLOWS

Dempsey is yearning, however, for a renewal of boxing. Undoubtedly he could pick up again tomorrow, but he probably will wait until Sunday. The cut on Dempsey's eye followed the line of the eyebrow and has a difficult forehead to heat after a clash in this particular place. The sparring partners will be instructed to help the cut with a particular portion of Dempsey's face. It should be very easy for them to do so place their blows that the injured part will get none of the effect.

WILLARD IS BETTER NOW THAN WHEN HE FOUGHT J. JOHNSON

Champion's Chief Sparring Partner Puts in Boost for His Boss; Kansan Can Hit Harder and Has More Skill Than in 1915; Dempsey Style Right for Jess.

(International News Service Staff Correspondent) TOLEDO, Ohio, June 19.—"Jess Willard won't be in Havana condition when he fights Jack Dempsey," he will be a dozen notches beyond it," declared Walter Monahan today. And Walter, who trained with the champion for the Jack Johnson battle, and is performing like a champion now, ought to know a lot about it.

"It may seem strange to some," added Monahan, "that Jess can be better in 1919 than he was four years earlier—like the weeks and months of circus nothing strange about it when all the facts are considered. Jess never took a boxing lesson in his life. All he knows about the game is what he learned in the ring, in his circus work, or in training camps. When a man has been studying the game in the ring for the last four years, as Jess has, isn't it logical to assume that he is a far better ring man today than he was in 1915."

"That part of the public which is skeptical as to the ability of Willard to 'come back' on July 4 will be treated to a startling surprise. For it's going to see a super-human fighter; a Jess Willard wonderful beyond the wildest hopes of the champion's most ardent admirers."

HEMPLE ALSO TALKS. "That's right," broke in Jack Hemple, the other veteran sparring partner of the champion. "The improvement over Willard since he fought Johnson is bewildering. He hits harder than he ever did before; his punches come faster and his defense is the most remarkable I ever tried to penetrate. He is a hundred per cent better than he was in Havana—and he was good then."

"I look for Jess to win—and without an awful lot of trouble," interrupted Monahan. "None of us is spoofing Dempsey. We recognize in him a first class fighter and I guess that boy can hurt when he hits, too. But he must hit Jess to hurt him—and hitting the big fellow is the job that I don't think Dempsey can handle. On the other hand, Dempsey appears like a mark for Willard's three best punches—a straight left, a right cross and an uppercut with either hand."

UPPERCUT DANGEROUS. "Dempsey's open style, with head down, seems to be just made for uppercuts of the kind that Jess specializes in. If Jess hooks Jack with one of them, propelled with all the force of his great body, it will be goodnight for Dempsey right then and there. No man ever stood up under one—and I don't figure that Dempsey can prove the exception."
