

CAMPAIGN TO HELP SALVATION ARMY WILL BEGIN TODAY

Story of Labors of Lassies in France and Vice Fight Here to Be Told at All Churches.

$250,000 AMOUNT SOUGHT

Elks Have Charge of Drive and Will Be Busy All Over State Getting Subscriptions to Work.

The story of the Salvation Army lassies on the battlefields of France and the work of this organization in the "home trenches" of vice will be told in many Portland pulpits this morning as the beginning of the campaign to raise money for the home service of the Salvation Army in Oregon.

Monday, a score of teams composed of prominent members of Portland lodge No. 142, Elks, will begin canvassing the city under the direction of "General" J. J. Berg, exalted ruler of the lodge, and "Major General" Henry E. Reed. The campaign throughout the state is being conducted under the auspices of the Oregon State Elks' association.

AMOUNT SOUGHT $250,000
Oregon's quota is $250,000, of which $125,000 will be raised in the city of Portland. All of the money will be spent in work of the army within the state of Oregon.

For many years the Salvation Army has been handicapped by lack of funds. Workers in the organization have been forced to spend a large amount of time and expend energy in making constant appeals to the public for financial assistance.

During the world war, the Salvation Army sent its workers to France to take part in furnishing comforts to the American soldiers. Up in the front line areas they found plenty of work to do. The Salvation Army lassies established the huts, made the famous doughnuts and were sisters to men.

Through this work in France the Salvation Army learned that systematic campaigns for funds not alone save energy, but avoid duplication of work. Consequently the home service campaigns for the support of the work in all states was decided upon.

STUNTS NIGHT SATURDAY

One of the features in connection with the Portland Elks' campaign is a stunts night next Saturday night. This affair will be in the nature of a street carnival in which many Elks will take part. George O. Brandenburg, chairman of the "Pet" committee of the State Elks' association, is in charge of this event.

Headquarters for the Portland Elks' Salvation Army drive have been established in the ground floor of the Elks' building, Broadway and Stark streets, with Stanhope S. Pier in charge. Sam B. Martin, county auditor, has been designated by General Berg as official auditor of the drive. The state campaign is being waged by the Elks under the direction of Dr. William S. Kennedy, president of the Oregon State Elks' association, with Harry G. Allen, state secretary, as chief aid.

BUDGET TO GOVERN

The money collected will all be expended in Oregon, and systematically in accordance with a budget passed upon by a committee of prominent citizens of Oregon, headed by Governor Ben W. Olcott and Mayor George L. Baker. In this budget is $7000 for operation and maintenance of the Portland Rescue and Maternity home at 392 East Fifteenth street north. This home is one of a chain of the largest rescue homes and maternity hospital in the world, all established and maintained by the Salvation Army. The girls and their children remain in the home at least three months and as much longer as is necessary. They are taught to work, special instruction being given in cooking, sewing and general housework. The Salvation Army keeps in touch with the girls after they leave the home and they can always count on welcome to these homes when out of employment or ill.

UNFORTUNATE MEN CARED FOR

Fifteen hundred dollars will go to operating and replacement of equipment of the men's social institution at 24 Union avenue. Here the door is open to every man willing to work. It matters not what his past record may have been, his creed or his nationality, whether he is whole or crippled. If he is willing to work he is given a chance. Many hospital patients who are not strong enough for regular employment are cared for during the convalescent period.

One of the big items of the budget is for the erection of a central Salvation Army building in Portland, containing facilities for senior and junior work, relief and missing friends, free employment and dispensary, and rooms and baths for men. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars is to be used to pay for the land and building.

OTHER ITEMS OF BUDGET

The other items of the budget are as follows:
For operating expenses and enlarging operations, Salvation Army work in Oregon, $4000; operating and enlargement of young people's work, state of Oregon, $1500; executive work, training and training of Salvation Army officers, also disabled officers' funds, $3500; prison work for the state of Oregon, in state prison and with prisoners, $2000; for relief of poor families in the city of Portland, $7500; deficit of corps budgets in the state of Oregon, $18,000.

Red Cross Shop Is Asking Donations To Keep Up Work

The American Red Cross shop, 70-72 Third street, is filling two remarkable functions in Portland.

In the first case, it is part of a great conservation movement, initiated by the American Red Cross, to collect unused trifles and things that were not so trifling and precious as they are. All the articles offered for sale are donated to the Red Cross and all proceeds from those sales go direct to the American Red Cross and, at this time, furnish the Red Cross with its largest share of revenue.

In the second case, the Red Cross shop has offered for sale a number of beautiful things but not being able to afford them, to obtain them at a comparatively low price.

The two largest items of revenue lie in the sales of used clothing and books. Literally scores of persons are thus able to obtain clothing of a class that otherwise they could not afford.

Auspices of the Red Cross

In Our Auditorium on the Sixth Floor, Fifth Street, Beginning Tomorrow, an Exhibit and Sale of Articles Made by Interned Allied Prisoners

During the war thousands of allied prisoners were interned in Switzerland. Some were seriously disabled, others partially incapacitated. The Red Cross, that great agent of mercy, took them in hand—supplied the skilled ones with the materials suited to their ability and training and patiently taught the unskilled, thus enabling the men cut off from home and friends to earn a little money for comforts or send it to their dear ones.

It is these articles, eloquent of a most touching side of the great war, brought to us from abroad, that make up the collection we offer for sale beginning tomorrow. We will sell them at their exact cost, there being no profit to the Red Cross or to the store.

Included are articles in enameled glassware, raffia work, rugs, hand-carved chairs and tea tables, painted and decorated wooden boxes and trays, many attractive specimens of toys and miscellaneous articles in great variety.

Uniformed members of Portland Chapter, American Red Cross, will be in attendance from 10 to 4:30 daily to show and sell the merchandise, assisted by our own people. This is a splendid opportunity to secure one or more souvenirs of the great war, many of the articles possessing real utility and all of them rich in human interest, at moderate cost and to have the satisfaction of knowing that you are aiding a most worthy cause besides.

Sale will be held from 10 to 4:30 daily in our Auditorium on the Sixth Floor.
