

WILSON SAYS HUN DEFEAT WARNING TO OTHER NATIONS

American Executive Warns That Any Nation Emulating Germany Will Meet Similar Fate.

WORLD WAKENED BY WAR

Great Moral Necessity of Seeing That There Is No Repetition of Great Wrong Done Is Shown.

Paris, June 27.—(U. P.)—President Wilson, speaking at a dinner given by President Poincaré to the allied delegates, warned that any nation attempting to emulate Germany's effort at world domination in the future would suffer a like fate.

"Merely to beat a nation that was wrong once is not enough," he said. "There must follow the warning to all other nations that would do like things that they in turn will be vanquished and shamed if they attempt a dishonorable purpose."

You can see, therefore, sir, with what deep feeling those of us who must now for a little while turn away from France shall leave your shores; and, though the ocean is broad, it will seem very narrow in the future. It will be easier to understand each other than it ever was before, and with the confident intercourse of cooperation, the understanding will be strengthened into action and action will itself educate alike our purpose and our thought.

"Sir, in saying good-bye to France, I am only saying a sort of physical good-bye; not a spiritual good-bye.

I shall retain in my heart always the warm feeling which the generous treatment of this great people has generated. And I wish in my turn, sir, to propose, as you have proposed, the continued and increasing friendship of the two nations, the safety and prosperity of France, the closer and closer communion of free people, and the strengthening of every influence which instructs the mind and the purpose of humanity.

GLAD TO GO HOME

The president spoke as follows: I thank you most sincerely for the words that you have uttered. I cannot pretend, sir, that the prospect of going home is not very delightful to me, but I can say with the greatest sincerity that the prospect of leaving France is very painful to me.

I have received a peculiarly generous welcome here, and it has been pleasing to me to feel that that welcome was intended not so much for myself as for the people whom I represent. And the people of France know how to give a welcome that makes a man's heart glad. They have a spontaneity about them, a simplicity of friendship, which is altogether delightful.

SUFFERING REALIZED

I feel that my stay here, sir, has enlightened both my heart and my mind. It has enabled me personally to see the evidence of the suffering and the sacrifices of France. It has enabled me to come into personal touch with the leaders of the French people and through the medium of intercourse with them to understand better, I hope, than I understood before, the motives, the ambitions and the principles which actuate this great nation. It has therefore been to me a lesson in the roots of friendship in those things which make the intercourse of nations profitable and serviceable for all the rest of mankind.

Sometimes the work of the conference has seemed to go very slowly indeed. Sometimes it has seemed as if there were unnecessary obstacles to agreement, but as the weeks have lengthened I have seemed to see the profit that came out of that. Quick conclusions would not have produced that intimate knowledge of each other's mind which I think has come out of these daily conferences.

FRIENDSHIP GOOD THING

We have been constantly in the presence of each other's minds and motives and characters, and the comradeships which are based upon that sort of knowledge are sure to be very much more intelligent and to breed a much more intimate sympathy and comprehension than could otherwise be created.

These six months have been six months which have woven new fibers of connection between the hearts of our people. And something more than friendship and intimate sympathy has come out of this intercourse.

Friendship is a very good thing. Intimacy is a very enlightening thing. But friendship may end with sentiment. A new thing that has happened is that we have translated our common principles and our common purposes into a common plan. When we meet we are not going to part with a work one portion of which is finished and the other portion of which is only begun.

COOPERATION IS BEGUN

We have finished the formulation of the peace, but we have begun a plan of cooperation which I believe will broaden and strengthen as the years go by, so that this grip of the hand that we have taken will not need to be relaxed. We have been and shall continue to be comrades. We shall continue to be coworkers in tasks which, because they are common, will weave out of our sentiments a common conception of duty and a common conception of the rights of men of every race and of every clime. If it be true that that has been accomplished, it is a very great thing.

As I go away from these scenes I think I shall realize that I have been present at one of the most vital things that has happened in the history of nations. Nations have formed contracts with each other before, but they never have formed partnerships. They have associated themselves temporarily, but they never before have associated themselves permanently.

The wrong that was done in the waging of this war was a great wrong, but France has shown a world to a great moral necessity of seeing that it was necessary that men should hand themselves together in order that such a wrong should never be perpetrated again.

BEATING IS NOT ENOUGH

Merely to beat a nation that was wrong once is not enough. There must follow the warning to all other nations that would do like things that they in turn will be vanquished and shamed if they attempt a dishonorable purpose.

You can see, therefore, sir, with what deep feeling those of us who must now for a little while turn away from France shall leave your shores; and, though the ocean is broad, it will seem very narrow in the future. It will be easier to understand each other than it ever was before, and with the confident intercourse of cooperation, the understanding will be strengthened into action and action will itself educate alike our purpose and our thought.

Indolent Youths, Pool Room Type, Under Police Eye

"Jazzy" youths, whose sartorial tastes run to var-colored collars and screeching clothes, who adorn street corners, infest poolrooms, abhor work and live off pa or ma, are now being eyed with disfavor by the police.

Acting on the complaints of scores of business men of the downtown section, Chief of Police Johnson has detailed a squad of six plain clothes men to check up on the manner of livelihood of the hundreds of youths who spend the major portion of their time lounging about poolrooms, or posing on prominent street corners. Three youths, under age were taken from a poolroom at Broadway and Washington streets Thursday by Officers Phillips and Lillis, of the poolroom squad, and were charged with violating the poolroom ordinance. The three gave their names as Alfred Winter, C. S. Kern and Raymond Kallis. P. N. Clark, proprietor of the pool hall, was also arrested on the charge of allowing minors in his place of business.

Property owners and business men claim that the pool hall hazards, who stand about the street corners, block entrances to the stores, line up in front of show windows, prevent the public from seeing the goods on display. The principal complaints have come from Washington and Sixth street and Broadway merchants.
