WILSON TO STAND ON PEACE LEAGUE

President, Convinced That Bulk of People With Him, Will Fight for Pact.

By William M. Butler

Paris, June 28.—President Wilson does not propose to budge an inch to congress on the ratification of the League of Nations.

This was the impression gained by the American correspondents after a conference with the president, who talked with them for 45 minutes.

President Wilson will go before congress in his fighting togs and he will keep them on until the treaty is ratified—that conclusion was inescapable after what was said at the conference.

As a matter of fact the president is thoroughly convinced that the great bulk of the American people is with him. He does not believe that more than a handful of men support the Fall resolution. He holds that the adoption of that measure would incur the ill will of the entire world toward America.

The president, indeed, conveyed the impression that he believes the peace treaty with Germany to be wonderful and liberal and more consistent with his 14 points than he had ever dreamed of being able to make it, in view of the mass of obstacles he had to overcome.

As for the proposal of a military agreement whereby the United States, like Great Britain, pledges herself to come to the aid of France in case of a future attack on that country, Mr. Wilson regards this proposition as entirely just and fair, despite the fact that it might appear to conflict with the principles of the League of Nations, in that it places upon America, not upon the league, the task of deciding whether such an attack is provoked.

President Wilson is prepared to leave the impression that he favors American mandates both for Constantinople and Armenia, but that he will leave this matter exclusively with the decision of congress and the American people.

With regard to the Irish problem, it was made plain that the president is not in a position at present to foresee or to favor any particular proposition.

Rival Challenged Her to Duel, Says Movie Star's Wife

Los Angeles, Cal., June 28.—(I. N. S.)—Declaring that beautiful Roma Raymond had challenged her to a "love duel" and had threatened to kill her, Mrs. Earle R. Williams, formerly Miss Florine Walz, New York heiress, took the witness stand in her husband's defense in the trial of Miss Raymond's $160,000 heart balm suit against the motion picture star today.

Mrs. Williams testified that she had clashed with Miss Raymond many times before and after her engagement to her husband. On one occasion, she said, Miss Raymond called upon her at her hotel.

Mrs. Williams said that she had asked Williams about Miss Raymond's statement that they were living together.

"What did he say?" asked Miss Raymond's attorney.

"He lied like a gentleman," answered Mrs. Williams.

Brinsley B. Shaw, defense witness, testified Miss Raymond and another woman were in his apartments one day in October, 1913.

"They were discussing love and impulses," Shaw said. "Miss Raymond held herself as an instance of inconstancy. She said she had heartlessly thrown down a number of men but that if she ever landed Earle Williams she would go straight with him."

Williams on the stand today admitted that he frequently visited Miss Raymond's apartments while he was engaged to Miss Walz.

EX-ARMY OFFICER OF OREGON APPOINTED TO HANDLE ARMY GOODS

Henry L. Bowlby to Handle Surplus Supplies; States Will Receive Machinery.

Washington, June 27.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL)—Henry L. Bowlby, former state highway engineer in Oregon, recently resigned as colonel in the army and now connected with the office of public roads of the department of agriculture, has been placed in charge of the reception and distribution of road material transferred to that bureau from the war department.

Colonel Bowlby was deemed an especially good "find" for this work, for as an officer of engineers he was familiar with the equipment in France which would be useful for road-making if returned to this country. The equipment is being turned over to the states without charge upon the proportion of allotments made to each state under the federal road act, under a law authorizing the secretary of war to dispose of surplus equipment in this way.

About 1500 caterpillar tractors and 400 road rollers are being brought from France, along with concrete mixers, graders, rock crushers, steam shovels, hoisting engines, industrial locomotives and railroad track, dump cars and motors.

In directing this work of distribution, Colonel Bowlby is an assistant to the newly appointed director of the bureau of public roads, J. H. McDonald of Iowa.

FAMINE STALKING GERMAN STRIKERS

Situation Hourly Growing More Serious; Hunger Is Chief Cause for Unrest.

Basel, June 28.—(U. P.)—The strike situation in Germany is growing more serious, according to advices received here today. Railroad and telegraph troubles are becoming general. Raids on food stores have been reported. Spartacan uprisings occurred in several cities where, however, forces of German government troops were ready to suppress them.

The threatened tie-up of transportation, which might lead to famine in districts dependent upon outside sources for their food supplies, has caused much alarm in those districts.

To offset the Spartacan menace, a number of counter-revolutionary movements are said to have been planned.

Leading Berlin newspapers, realizing the gravity of the situation, pleaded for coolness and reason.

The riots in Hamburg grew out of an unequal distribution of foodstuffs and profiteering. Exploited by the Spartacans, the situation excited the populace to such a point that gunplay was engaged in. Hundreds were killed or wounded. Hamburg was completely controlled by armed workmen, it was reported here. They overthrew government troops, established a dictatorship and threw up defenses against advancing government reinforcements.

Seek American Food

Suggestions are being considered for the United States to take up with Canada and Mexico means of stopping smuggling.

Efforts will be made to obtain concerted action on the part of city, county and state health authorities to curb the trade.

Educational campaigns in all parts of the country have been suggested to acquaint the public with the menace of the situation.

A recent report of a commission named by the secretary of the treasury to investigate the traffic in narcotics, said from 10 to 60 times more opium is consumed by the people of the United States than by any other country.

WILSON CONSIDERS POGROMS INQUIRY

Senate Notified President May Send Commission to Poland to Learn Situation.

Washington, June 28.—The appointment of a special commission to investigate Jewish massacres in Poland, Roumania, and other European countries is being considered by President Wilson. This was learned today through a communication which was sent to the senate by Acting Secretary Polk of the state department.

An investigation is now being made by Hugh Gibson, American minister to Poland; Dr. Boris Bergen, who is in charge of the Polish work of the Jewish joint distribution commission, and Lieutenant Colonel Walter C. Bailey, director for Poland of the American Red Cross.

Upon the report which they will forward to the president at Paris, will depend whether or not a new commission will be appointed to make a further investigation.

Secretary Polk made this report to the senate in answer to the resolution recently adopted requesting the president to call to the attention of the diplomatic representatives in Paris, from the countries in which the massacres have occured, that the senate disaproves of the pogroms of Jewish residents.

It is stated in the report that the text of the resolution was communicated to the president, who instructed the state department to inform the senate that steps have been taken to investigate the reports of the massacres and that the president has given some thought to the advisability of sending another commission to Poland, which probably will be decided after Minister Gibson has had an opportunity of discussing the subject with the president.

The American minister at Bucharest has been instructed to investigate the reports of massacres in Roumania, Mr. Polk says, but no report from him has been received.

Wound Buttons Are On Hand at Army Recruiting Office

Issue of the silver wound buttons to men wounded in the army during the last war, began at the recruiting office in the Worcester building Friday, when Lester I. Bullard of 500 Vancouver avenue presented his discharge papers for one. Bullard was serving with I Company second field battalion, signal corps, when he was wounded in the left forearm at Soissons, July 18, 1918, by a high explosive shell fragment.

At the time he was wounded, his battalion was serving with the First division and he was stringing telegraph wire.

The procedure of securing the wound buttons, and the service buttons when they come, is simply to present one's discharge papers to the nearest recruiting officer. Questions are asked by him to determine if the applicant is satisfied with the job which he found on returning to civilian life, so that the army reemployment service can look into his case if he is not.
