MACKMEN SNARE CLOSE CONTEST, EVENING SERIES

Sutherland, in Good Mound Form, Allows but Six Scattered Hits to Bengals, Who Fail in Ninth Inning Rally Try, but Fill Bases.

OS ANGELES, June 28.—Trimming the Vernon Tigers in Friday's contest, 3 to 2, the Beavers evened up the series, each team having annexed two games.

Walter McCredie protested the battle in the third inning on the grounds that Bill Finnerman was using oil on the ball. The "oily' ball did not stop the Beavers, however, and in the next two frames the Beaver machine was thrown wide open and three runs were chalked up.

"Suds" Sutherland, hurling for the Beavers, sailed along in great style until the ninth inning, when he issued walks to Chadbourne and Meusel, which, with Borton's infield tap, filled the sacks. Things looked bad for the Beavers, but Eddington forced Chadbourne at the plate, and High flied to Speas, Meusel scoring after the catch. Fisher ended the game by fouling to Koehler in

The tourney will be part of the interallied games to begin here a week from next Sunday.

Since the meet is for army men only with the old-time fans of Portland. He the golfers who will proceed overseas will have to have been in Uncle Sam's uniform some time during the war. Francis Ouimet of Brookline, Mass., the present holder of the French championship through his victory in 1914, a few months before the war was declared in Europe, and Robert Gardner, the Chicago player who won the national open in 1914, are available, as both were officers in state cantonments.

> MAJOR WHITE IN CHARGE A cablegram has been dispatched ask-ing that the United States Golf association and the Western Golf association select five of the best players and make arrangements for having them transported overseas in order to reach France at least a week before the opening of the golfing joust.

> The golf program will start shortly after the interallied track and field games commence. The La Boulie links, near Versailles, just beyond the Paris gates, will probably be the links chosen. Ouimet is familiar with these links. Major Edward L. White, in charge of army golf, an ex-Yale man from Connecticut, has been chosen to speed up golfing arrangements, which have been lagging. France, England, Australia and New Zealand will probably have

CHAMPION WORKS IN

Puts Little Effort Into Bout of Eight Rounds With Four Sparring Partners.

By H. C. Hamilton OLEDO, June 28 .- (U. P.) -The only excitement in Friday's training workout of Jess Willard was the champton's appearance in full length tights because of a chilly wind and his tossing around of Bill Scott, one of his sparring part-

Willard worked eight rounds, three with Hempel, two with Monoghan, two with Chip and one with Scott. He didn't harm the first three, but he roughed up Scott. Jess took things easy, though he showed plenty of pepper and a lot of speed when he chose to cut loose. Over 4000 fans saw the champion in action and then went over to the Overland club to watch Dempsey flog his training associates.

In the Dempsey workout the challenger clouted Jamaica Kid on the jaw with a left hook and spwarled him on the canvas. Jamaica was not knocked out but he was very wobbly when they let him out of the ring.

Dempsey worked only three rounds two with the kid and one with Jock Malone. Bill Tate's ribs are sore and he was given a vacation. Jess Willard is eminently satisfied with the officials selected for the big scrap, he announced today.

AMERICAN FORMER MANAGER OF CHAMPION IS A OF CHAMPION IS A BOOSTER FOR JACK

Jack Curley Going to Place His Money on Dempsey; Says Western Man Is One of Toughest; Willard's Age Will Count Against Him in the Title Battle July Fourth.

By Ed. W. Smith

OLEDO, Ohio, June 28 .- (I. N. S.)-"There's only one thing the matter with Jess Willard. He needs a good square meal. This was the comment made yesterday by Jack Curley, one of the champion's former managers, who arrived in town for a day to see how things are going. Jack is on his way to Omaha, where he has underwritten Ed Lewis' end of the match there the Fourth of July between the Strangler and Joe Stretcher. Jack therefore will not see the big battle of Toledo, but isn't going to lose a great deal of sleep on that account. He will bet his money-$10,000-at even money, if he can get it on, and let the thing ride.

Jack and Jess ran into each other during the morning hours just after the former had stepped off the New York train, and there was a friendly greeting between them despite all of the stories that have gone out about the bitterness of feeling. Jack complimented the big fellow on his looks and then told him he was in for a licking.

"Sorry, but I've got to bet against you this time, Jess." Curley said. "You look fine, but this fellow you're boxing is one of the toughest and I've got to drop any sentiment I may have for oldtimes' sake and put my money where I think it ought to be."

DEMPSEY A CINCH Willard smiled at this sally and said he didn't wish Jack luck in his betting operations. Curley went out to the camps after that and watched the day's work, then he was more than ever convinced that Dempsey would be the winner and didn't hesitate to say so. "Dempsey's the biggest cinch I ever saw and will win beyond the shadow of a doubt." he said. "There are several reasons for my thinking so and perhaps my ideas are more pronounced than anybody else because I have such a close and intimate acquaintance with Willard. "First of all, there is the age thing nearly 40 for Willard against only 24 for Dempsey. Willard for the last four years has been leading a free and easy life, going as he pleased with plenty of comfort, while Dempsey has been struggling for an ex-istence and always training and fighting. His was not the life of a loafer in any sense.

TAKES INTEREST IN WORK "Jess Willard is sour on the whole world. He is unwilling to even discuss his ring work. He is tired of it all and the subject constantly uppermost in his mind is, 'If I wasn't champion of the world they wouldn't even notice me.

"Then there is Dempsey, anxious to shine as a fistic star and going along unnoticed. The thought always uppermost in his mind. Till show them yet, and then they'll have to recognize me as the champion. That's the difference between these men and it is a big difference. "Willard makes his training work torture. With Dempsey it is a keen delight, a real pleasure. "Willard doesn't love a single thing in the whole world, and Dempsey loves everything, even every stray dog that he meets on the Champ Herman Gets Big Offer To Meet Winner
