RIVER FORECAST illamette river at Portland will fall unday and remain nearly stationary of Tuesday.

TODAY'S FORECASTS Washington—Tonight and Sunday, probably showers west portion, fair east portion; moderate southwesterly winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS MEATHER CONDITIONS

Moderately high pressure prevalls on the Atlantic, gulf and North Pacific coasts. Elsewhere the pressure is generally low, the lowest readings being in Saskatchewan. Precipitation has occurred at scattered stations on the extreme North Pacific coast, in the extreme Southwest, in the northern Rocky mountain region, and in the middle Mississippi valley. The weather is much cooler in parts of Idaho, Washington, Montana and Utah, and much warmer in Wyoming. The temperature is generally below normal on the North Pacific slope and in the Eastern and Southern states, and above normal in the Southwestern and Middle-western states.

Good Season Ahead The Jackson county pear crop this season bids fair to eclipse all previous seasons, is the word C. C. Tull of Medford brings to his inquiring friends. "The Rogue river valley never looked better than at present," he says. "The fruit men all see a good season ahead, both as to quantity and price. The fruit business in Jackson county is no longer a haphazard business. We consider a fruit grower a professional man and his success depends upon his scientific knowledge of the business. Jackson county conducts all of its horticultural and agricultural activities under the direction of Claud Cate, a county farm agent. Our land is far too valuable to work in a land is far too valuable to work in a land is far too valuable to work in a careless manner and it is simply a mat-ter of good business to see that our
