

FIGHT TO OVERTHROW VETO OF DAYLIGHT REPEAL IS BEGUN

Senator Calder, Who Fathered Original Bill, Sends Out Call to Friends of Scheme.

OPONENTS ALSO ARE BUSY

Representatives of Rural Districts Are Urged to Be Present to Support Repeal of Act.

Washington, July 12.—(U. P.)—The battle of the city against the country will be resumed in the house Monday when the fight to override the president's veto of daylight saving begins.

Senator Calder, father of the daylight saving act, today sent out a call for all friends of the measure to flood congress with petitions against repeal of the act.

Representatives whose districts are largely rural are urging the return of absentees to insure a full attendance of daylight saving opponents.

The vote by which the house passed the repealer was 222 to 122, a few votes less than the two-thirds majority necessary to override.

Washington, July 12.—The sundry civil appropriation bill was vetoed by President Wilson today because of objections to the provisions made for the vocational rehabilitation of wounded soldiers, sailors and marines.

The president declared in his message returning the bill to congress that too great restrictions and limitations were placed upon the plans for this work and the estimates for funds needed to carry on this work were too greatly curtailed.

On motion of Chairman Good of the appropriations committee, the bill was recommitted to the committee for further consideration.

Mr. Good stated the committee would attempt to amend the objectionable provisions so as to make them conform to the president's desire.

Mr. Good pointed out that what the president complains of was passed by the house without a single dissenting vote.

Col. Chas. H. Martin To Be Decorated at Seattle Wednesday

Colonel Charles H. Martin, recruiting officer at Portland, will be decorated with the distinguished service medal Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in Seattle by Brigadier General Hodge, commanding the military department of the Northwest. The notification of the award of the medal by General Ferringham came about two weeks ago and it was not heard of until Saturday afternoon when or where it would be conferred.

The medal was awarded to Colonel Martin especially for his efficient services as the major general commanding the Ninetieth division in the army of occupation and for his brilliant professional attainments. Colonel Martin, serving during the emergency as a major general, built up the Eighty-sixth division from raw material at Camp Grant, Ill., and took it overseas. There he was detached and served with the First Army corps in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, his division not participating.

After the armistice, Colonel Martin was given command of the Ninety-second division and brought it home in May.

Colonel Martin is well known in Portland, having been for many years at Vancouver barracks as an officer in the Fourteenth Infantry. Later he commanded and organized the Third Oregon and still later was made recruiting officer in charge of the Oregon district. At the outbreak of the war he was relieved of this duty and given a regiment. Later he was made senior instructor at a Texas officers training school. Then he was given command of a brigade, and finally given the task of forming the Eighty-sixth division.

Lansing Declares He Is Pleased but Is Not Complacent

Paris, July 12.—"I am leaving for home, pleased but not overly complacent at the outcome of the last six months," said Secretary of State Lansing this evening just before his departure for Washington.

"The treaty is not all we had hoped for. There were too many conflicting interests, but regarding the background of its creation and the sweep of its spirit, the treaty is a step upward from the old international methods. It carries with it the evident purpose of overthrowing the old methods of international intrigue and plotting."

Mr. Lansing added that the situation throughout the world is serious and requires the alert, intelligent interest of public opinion and cooperation between the nations.

It is learned that Mr. Lansing and his fellow members of the American peace commission have communicated to the president their views regarding the Shantung decision. These views may be made public at Washington.

DIRIGIBLE R-34 REACHES IRELAND ON RETURN

Woman and Child Are Tossed From Auto in Collision

Attempting on Saturday afternoon to dodge a machine driven by Charles Heit of the Lillian apartments, Herman Huer, 420 East Twenty-second street north, purchasing agent of Portland Lumber company, drove his car across Front and Montgomery streets, hitting a third machine, driven by L. C. Tibbets, turning it over and throwing the occupants to the ground.

Mrs. Vivian Tibbets, and her three-year-old child, Marietta, were bruised and cut, but are reported not seriously injured. They are at the Good Samaritan hospital. Mrs. J. H. Brett, 87 Front street, who was also in the Tibbets car, was carried to the Emergency hospital, where she is reported only slightly bruised.

Huer stated that he was driving along Front street, and had just passed the intersection when the machine driven by Charles Heit ran suddenly out of a garage, forcing him to cross the street and run into the third machine, which was headed in the opposite direction.

Imperial Potentate To Visit This City In November Next

Imperial Potentate W. Freeland Kendrick of the American Shrine council is coming to Portland in November, word received from the lodge officer Saturday indicated. Interest in the plans for the annual convention of the Shrine in Portland jumped ahead again with the word of Mr. Kendrick's impending visit, inasmuch as he is coming to "look over the field" before the convention. In a letter from the potentate Saturday, it is said that clubs are forming throughout the country for the pilgrimage to Portland and a record-breaking attendance is predicted.

The Portland convention committee will establish offices in the Gasco building, room 302, this week, committee members announced.

Old Jupe Pluvius Pulls Stakes in Salt Lake Region

Salt Lake, July 12.—Today was the forty-third consecutive day without rain in this section. Rain is forecast within the next 24 hours by the local weather bureau.

A cattle food famine is predicted for this winter by District Forester L. F. Kneipp, and hundreds of thousands of cattle and sheep will have to be shipped from this district, if starvation is to be avoided. Forest conditions are serious, it is declared, and the ranges are fast drying up.

Aristocrats Kept Busy by Visitors With Nasty Bites

Indianapolis, Ind., July 12.—(U. P.)—Aristocratic north Indianapolis is complaining, although it has something with plenty of hops and a real bite. "How do you get rid of them, doctor?" was the telephone question that revealed the condition.

Them—if the doctor really had to know—was, well, they were just plain fleas and they just can't imagine where they came from.

DIRIGIBLE IS SIGHTED AT CLIFDEN, IRELAND

master craft of the history-making dirigible, would not fly out to meet her, as had been planned.

About 350 men were ready to aid in hauling the R-34 down and housing her safely in her hangar. Hundreds of flames will be employed to light up the landing field and serve as a guide to her.

If the R-34 arrives on schedule time she would have made the return flight in 7 1/2 hours.

She left Mineola, L. I., at 8 a. m. Greenwich time (midnight New York time) Thursday.

Major Scott predicted just before leaving Mineola that the R-34 would make it in 70 hours.

By changing the landing place to Pulham it was estimated unofficially that her trip would total about 3000 miles. Her westward course from East Fortune to Mineola was about 2300 miles and was accomplished in 108 hours, 10 minutes.

Up to the time of the R-34's arrival over Clifden she had averaged 40 miles an hour. Her early speed was much greater than that, averaging nearly 80 miles an hour for several hours and at one time reaching nearly 100, but engine trouble yesterday forced Scott to reduce her speed.

Thirsty Ones to Find Surcease in Tia Juana Resort

Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.—(U. P.)—More than $1,500,000 has been raised among Los Angeles capitalists to reopen Tia Juana, Lower California, which has been variously described as a Mexican Monte Carlo, according to reports today, on a scale never hitherto attempted.

The subscribers to the huge fund are men who have made large sums in the liquor business in and near Los Angeles. It is proposed to build a great casino and to have the other added attractions of certain popular European resorts, including a race track.

Work has been started on the race track, and it will be ready for a program of races at an early date. It was said.

The project is part of a plan to establish automobile bus lines operating between San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and Tia Juana, giving direct service to thirsty souls and those who still long for the thrills that come from watching the erratic course of the ivory ball in the roulette wheel, or the turn of a card at the face dealer's table.
