

Miss Westaway One of Lovely Summer Brides

ONE of the lovely summer brides was Miss Mary Westaway whose marriage to Dr. Raymond W. Shannon of Minneapolis was solemnized on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew R. Porter in Irvington.

The service was read by the Rev. W. A. Shannon, father of the bridegroom, who came to Portland from Minneapolis for the event. He was assisted by the Rev. E. H. Penney of Westminster Presbyterian church. Less than 100 relatives witnessed the ceremony, which was performed before an altar decked with Shasta daisies and glowing with cathedral candles.

The bride was crowned in heavy white satin with rose point lace, her veil arranged with a graceful head dress. Her flowers were orchids and white lilies, pinned to her shoulder. She wore a smart frock of cloth of silver and carried an arm bouquet of Columbia roses.

Little Elizabeth Porter led the bridal procession, carrying a dainty basket of pink sweet peas. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Kenneth V. Hauser. Elizabeth Mulvane and Helen Jean Randall were ribbon bearers. Mrs. Andrew R. Porter was the bridegroom's only attendant.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at which the collation was served. Presiding in the dining room were Mrs. James M. Ambrose, Mrs. H. M. Haller, Mrs. M. J. Woodward, Mrs. C. Lewis Mead, Mrs. Don Mulvane, Mrs. A. E. Allen, Mrs. E. K. Strode and Mrs. Guy R. Porter.

Mr. and Mrs. Shannon left immediately following the reception for Seattle, going from there to Lake Louise and thence to their future home, which will be in Minneapolis.

Dr. Aurelia H. Reinhardt, president of Mills college, who was in Portland at the home of Mrs. Helen Ekin Starrett this week, was a speaker at the Chautauqua in Gladstone on Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Reinhardt was the guest of honor on a motor party up the Columbia river highway on Sunday afternoon, for which Mrs. Starrett was hostess, and also on a similar trip on Saturday, after which Mr. and Mrs. Richard Montague entertained with dinner at Forest hall. The California visitor was asked to speak on Wednesday evening at the Portland Credit Men's association at the Benson hotel, for which Mrs. Wilson Johnson was hostess at the Benson hotel, and in the afternoon Dr. Reinhardt was the guest of Mrs. Frank M. Warren.

Mrs. Alva Lee Stephens was hostess at her home in Irvington on Tuesday for a rose luncheon honoring Miss Helen Ekin Starrett. Pink and green was the color motif used throughout the rooms for the occasion and dainty corsage bouquets marked the places for the guests at the luncheon table.

Guests invited to meet Mrs. Starrett were: Mrs. Alexander Thompson, Mrs. A. R. Mattingly, Mrs. P. G. Nealson, Mrs. Thomas B. Carroll, Miss Helene Desmond, Mrs. E. G. Leiby, Mrs. Roy Peterson, Mrs. Thomas G. Greene and Mrs. E. J. Steele.

A distinctive feature of the afternoon was a rose guessing contest which occasioned much merriment. A bowl of pink roses which centered the living room furnished the medium. The winning number was guessed by Mrs. Thomas G. Greene, who was awarded a beautiful book.

Miss Agnes Clark became the bride of Robert Meyer of Haines, Alaska, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Sheldon at Haines, on Thursday, June 12. The service was read by the Rev. F. R. Falconer of Kluckwau. The bride was charming in a soft gown of white voile trimmed in point fillet lace and carried a shower bouquet of for-get-me-nots. Miss Caroline Meyer, attractively gowned in blue silk, and Albert Meyer were brides attendants. Mrs. Meyer has made many friends in Alaska during the past three years in which she has made her home with the Sheldons. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer will make their home in Haines.

An announcement of interest for the summer is that of the program of social activities for the Laurelhurst club which included a series of dancing parties to be held on the second and fourth Thursday evenings at the club house instead of at Christensen's hall. The first party of this series was given Thursday evening of this week. All members of the club are urged to lend their support to make the affairs a success. The parties will be informal and it is hoped that all members of the club will reserve Thursday evening for these affairs at the clubhouses.

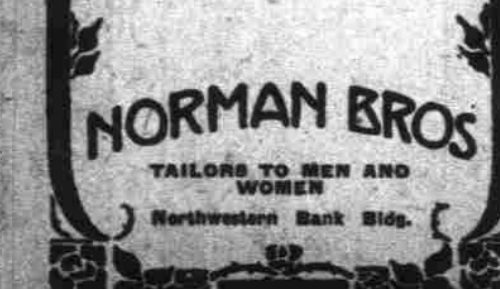

The Victory club held its annual tea at the home of Mrs. Moores on Wednesday afternoon. The rooms were effectively decorated with red rambles for the occasion. Games were the diversion of the afternoon followed by a musical program. The dramatic readings by Mrs. Wolfe were well received. This closes the meeting of the club for the summer months.

Mrs. J. F. Twoby, who has been visiting in Portland for the past few days, has returned to her home in Seattle.

Your Personality

should be reflected in the clothes that you wear. That is why a tailor or sport costume carefully fitted to your measurements is infinitely better than a ready-made one.

Visit this establishment for correct styles.

MRS. RAYMOND W. SHANNON (Mary Westaway), whose marriage, solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew R. Porter on Wednesday evening, was one of the smart events of the week. Miss Sarah Patrick, maid of honor at the Shannon-Westaway wedding.

MRS. RAYMOND W. SHANNON (MARY WESTAWAY)

MISS SARAH PATRICK

BUSHNELL PHOTOS

Nydia Temple Entertained at Blaesing Home

NYDIA temple, Daughters of the Nile, were entertained on Wednesday evening at a delightful supper and lawn fête at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blaesing in Rose City park. Decorations were placed throughout the rooms of the residence and in the garden surrounding the house for the occasion and supper was served out of doors. Nydia temple has a membership of more than 100 members and includes wives, sisters, mothers and widows of Shriners. The committee in charge of arrangements for the occasion included: Mrs. Elvyn Boyd, Mrs. H. J. Blaesing, Mrs. Roy Pike, Mrs. H. T. Hutchinson, Mrs. William F. Fiebig and Mrs. J. A. Stewart. Those present included: Mr. and Mrs. Dale Slusher, Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Lively, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Brower, Mr. and Mrs. W. U. Sanderson, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Norman, Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Nordon, Mr. and Mrs. Marlon Verstees, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Trego, Mr. and Mrs. G. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Boomer, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hoffmann, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Goss, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Reinhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Judge and Mrs. George L. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stapleton, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Holman, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Hug T. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Blaesing, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hoffmann, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Runyon, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Cellars, Dr. and Mrs. William F. Fiebig, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Jaeger, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Eittinger, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Willis, Dr. and Mrs. George E. Henton, Mr. and Mrs. Roy F. Pike, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Murhard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Mensies, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sison, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Callan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGrilla, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Krohn, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cullers, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mackenzie, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gadsby, Mr. and Mrs. H. Munroe, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. McClung, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stewart, The Misses Dorothy Carpenter, Dr. and Mrs. Blaesing, Johanna Cramer, Stapleton Anderson, Logan and a number of others.

The marriage of Herbert C. Miller and Eva L. Robinson was quietly solemnized Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the home of the bride, 623 East Burnside street. Dr. Thomas L. Elliot officiating. nly immediate relatives were present.

Mrs. Miller's wedding breakfast Dr. and Mrs. Miller immediately following the summer lodge at Clackamas lake where they will spend two months in the heart of the Cascade mountains, midway between Mount Hood and Mount Jefferson.

Dr. and Mrs. Miller will return to Portland about September 15 and in October will leave on an extended Eastern trip, returning by way of New Orleans, where Dr. Miller will attend the annual meetings of the National Dental Association and National As-

Our First Presidents Of the first seven presidents of the United States, four were from Virginia, two of the same name from Massachusetts and one from Tennessee. All but one were 61 years old on leaving office, having served two terms, and one who served but one term would have been 66 at the end of a second term. Three of the seven died on the Fourth of July,

Hot Lake Attendant, Known to Sanatorium Patrons, Wedded By Proxy to Maid of Nippon.

Hot Lake, July 12.—During the month of June and brides, Hot Lake ran true to form, but of the several marriages celebrated in conventional occidental fashion, none approaches in uniqueness or exalts in permanence the union of Sakuji Izuikawa of this place to Chiyo Teramura, his picture bride in Japan. Although these young Japanese have never seen each other, the match was arranged in true Japanese fashion by their parents and they are joined for life.

Visitors to the Hot Lake sanatorium during the past six years will scarcely have failed to get to know Japanese "George," porter and attendant, whose many American friends in the Pacific Northwest will be interested to know how he has been married to a "picture bride."

George, or to give him his acquired American name of George, was born in Japan 35 years ago. His father was a fairly prosperous farmer, growing rice on his terraced acres. George was the eldest son of the family, who numbered two boys and two girls. He attended high school for six years and in 1904 came to America, landing at San Francisco. After working at various jobs in California he came to Hot Lake some six years ago and has been a trusted employe at the sanatorium ever since. His father died a few years ago and George as the eldest son according to Japanese law inherited the home and acreage in Japan, subject to his providing a permanent home for his aged remaining parent. His mother and younger brother live on the farm and enjoy the profits accruing from the rice crops which industrious Japanese laborers harvest in the cherry orchard of her widow, the younger son being still at high school studying for a business career. In between times of sowing and harvesting the Japanese mother visited around, much, I suppose, as do American mothers, but she had a very distinct purpose in her visitings now. She was looking for a wife for her eldest son.

CHERRY BLOSSOM TIME A dozen miles from the Izuikawa homestead she saw a pretty slant-eyed maiden in the cherry orchard of her father. George told me it occurred this year when the cherry trees were in full bloom and his mother saw little Chiyo in the midst of a bevy of Japanese girls celebrating the cherry blossom festival in their own Japanese manner. With a reasoning instinct, we of the Occident know little or nothing of the widowed mother then and there made up her mind that Chiyo was the only girl for her son over in the United States, who, must, according to Japanese law, marry only a girl chosen by his mother to become the head of the house and to perpetuate the family name during the next generation. Curiously and very appropriately the literal translation of the name Chiyo is "the thousand ages of longevity." A visit to Chiyo's father and mother followed, during which George's mother asked for Chiyo to be given her for her eldest son. The girl's parents remembered George as a young fellow just left school setting out to go to America, and as travel abroad is considered by the Japanese a step up the social ladder the absence of the groom elect was not detrimental to the success of his suit.

BRIDE NOT CONSULTED In all such cases the bride to be is not consulted, though Chiyo was permitted to see a photograph of her future husband which was taken in this country. The outcome of the visitation was that Chiyo must leave her own home and go live with George's mother to learn her housekeeping, and to take care of the aging widowed mother of her absent husband. George never has seen his little wife, and in answer to my query, said that no Japanese boy would ever and two of them on the same day and year. Two of them were on the subcommittee that drafted the Declaration of Independence, and these were the two who died on the same anniversary of our independence, and just half a century from the day of its declaration. Of the first five, only one had a son, and that son also became president. Dr. Miller received his education in the public schools and at the University of Washington, later studying medicine and dentistry at St. Louis Medical and Missouri Dental colleges in St. Louis. In 1898 he organized the Oregon College of Dentistry, which afterwards became known as the North Pacific Dental college, of which he is president and treasurer.

Dr. and Mrs. William H. Wilder of Chicago are visitors in the city. Dr. Wilder will give a series of lectures at the medical clinics in the city and later, with Mrs. Wilder and their two children, will be the guests of Judge and Mrs. Charles H. Casey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mackenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brown have returned from a delightful motor trip to Rhododendron, Arrah Wanna and other Mount Hood resorts.

Dr. and Mrs. Frime of Hamilton, Or., with their young son, Buddy, are visiting in Portland at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Loveridge on Eighty-fourth street north.

Mrs. James Alexander Ellis (Helen Lytle) has arrived from St. Louis to spend the summer as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lytle of Irvington.

JAPANESE TAKES PICTURE BRIDE AS CUSTOM RULES

Hot Lake Attendant, Known to Sanatorium Patrons, Wedded By Proxy to Maid of Nippon.

PARENTS ARRANGE MATCH

Newlyweds Have Seen Each Other in Picture, But Actual Meeting Is Set for Blossom Time.

By Charles E. King Hot Lake, July 12.—During the month of June and brides, Hot Lake ran true to form, but of the several marriages celebrated in conventional occidental fashion, none approaches in uniqueness or exalts in permanence the union of Sakuji Izuikawa of this place to Chiyo Teramura, his picture bride in Japan. Although these young Japanese have never seen each other, the match was arranged in true Japanese fashion by their parents and they are joined for life.

Visitors to the Hot Lake sanatorium during the past six years will scarcely have failed to get to know Japanese "George," porter and attendant, whose many American friends in the Pacific Northwest will be interested to know how he has been married to a "picture bride."

CHERRY BLOSSOM TIME A dozen miles from the Izuikawa homestead she saw a pretty slant-eyed maiden in the cherry orchard of her father. George told me it occurred this year when the cherry trees were in full bloom and his mother saw little Chiyo in the midst of a bevy of Japanese girls celebrating the cherry blossom festival in their own Japanese manner. With a reasoning instinct, we of the Occident know little or nothing of the widowed mother then and there made up her mind that Chiyo was the only girl for her son over in the United States, who, must, according to Japanese law, marry only a girl chosen by his mother to become the head of the house and to perpetuate the family name during the next generation. Curiously and very appropriately the literal translation of the name Chiyo is "the thousand ages of longevity." A visit to Chiyo's father and mother followed, during which George's mother asked for Chiyo to be given her for her eldest son. The girl's parents remembered George as a young fellow just left school setting out to go to America, and as travel abroad is considered by the Japanese a step up the social ladder the absence of the groom elect was not detrimental to the success of his suit.

BRIDE NOT CONSULTED In all such cases the bride to be is not consulted, though Chiyo was permitted to see a photograph of her future husband which was taken in this country. The outcome of the visitation was that Chiyo must leave her own home and go live with George's mother to learn her housekeeping, and to take care of the aging widowed mother of her absent husband. George never has seen his little wife, and in answer to my query, said that no Japanese boy would ever and two of them on the same day and year. Two of them were on the subcommittee that drafted the Declaration of Independence, and these were the two who died on the same anniversary of our independence, and just half a century from the day of its declaration. Of the first five, only one had a son, and that son also became president. Dr. Miller received his education in the public schools and at the University of Washington, later studying medicine and dentistry at St. Louis Medical and Missouri Dental colleges in St. Louis. In 1898 he organized the Oregon College of Dentistry, which afterwards became known as the North Pacific Dental college, of which he is president and treasurer.

Dr. and Mrs. William H. Wilder of Chicago are visitors in the city. Dr. Wilder will give a series of lectures at the medical clinics in the city and later, with Mrs. Wilder and their two children, will be the guests of Judge and Mrs. Charles H. Casey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mackenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brown have returned from a delightful motor trip to Rhododendron, Arrah Wanna and other Mount Hood resorts.

Dr. and Mrs. Frime of Hamilton, Or., with their young son, Buddy, are visiting in Portland at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Loveridge on Eighty-fourth street north.

Mrs. James Alexander Ellis (Helen Lytle) has arrived from St. Louis to spend the summer as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lytle of Irvington.

Our First Presidents Of the first seven presidents of the United States, four were from Virginia, two of the same name from Massachusetts and one from Tennessee. All but one were 61 years old on leaving office, having served two terms, and one who served but one term would have been 66 at the end of a second term. Three of the seven died on the Fourth of July, and two of them on the same day and year. Two of them were on the subcommittee that drafted the Declaration of Independence, and these were the two who died on the same anniversary of our independence, and just half a century from the day of its declaration. Of the first five, only one had a son, and that son also became president. Dr. Miller received his education in the public schools and at the University of Washington, later studying medicine and dentistry at St. Louis Medical and Missouri Dental colleges in St. Louis. In 1898 he organized the Oregon College of Dentistry, which afterwards became known as the North Pacific Dental college, of which he is president and treasurer.

Dr. and Mrs. William H. Wilder of Chicago are visitors in the city. Dr. Wilder will give a series of lectures at the medical clinics in the city and later, with Mrs. Wilder and their two children, will be the guests of Judge and Mrs. Charles H. Casey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mackenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brown have returned from a delightful motor trip to Rhododendron, Arrah Wanna and other Mount Hood resorts.

MARRIED BY PROXY

CHIYO (THE TERAMURA) SAKUJI IZUKAWA

George describes the costume his bride is wearing as the "Blossom Bride," dress the pearly gray coat being of fine silk, black dress with a cherry colored wide silken sash or "Obi," around the waist. The decorative design worked in gold thread and seen worn on the left sleeve of the coat is the family crest, only the eldest son and his wife being entitled to wear the insignia. As previously mentioned the elder Izuikawa who was a direct descendant of the great Saumauri fighting nobles or barons of old Japan, died since George came to the United States and his remains after being cremated and placed in a small wooden box will be handed over to George, when he goes back to Japan for him to take to the Buddhist temple, when he will hand the body to a priest of the sect along with a sum of money which will be applied to the purpose of caring for the remains for generations of time to come.

This is a ceremony imposed compulsorily on the eldest son of the relict and must be faithfully observed by the eldest son.

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

George intends going back to Japan during the time the cherry trees bloom again next year, when he will, for the first time meet the pretty little wife to whom he will then have married a year. I asked George if in the meantime he was not afraid of someone running off with his pretty Chiyo, his reply was "O no, no. Japanese boys and girls are different to Americans in that respect."

GRANDFATHER AT 35 ADVOCATE OF EARLY MARRIAGE

'Meet Right Girl and if You Can, Marry Her,' is Advice by Frank Miller of Philadelphia.

'NO HAPPIER MAN ALIVE'

Family Is One of Great-Greats, Great, Grand and Just Plain Parents and Children.

Philadelphia, July 12.—"Meet the right girl early, and if you're lucky enough to win her quietly, marry her," is the bit of advice that comes from Frank Miller, 1728 West Passyunk avenue, the man who is, at the age of 35, the youngest granddaddy this side of the ocean. Tonight the 30-day-old daughter of Miller's daughter will be christened Helen.

"There can be but few grandfathers and grandmothers younger than my wife and I are," said Mr. Miller. "I married Mary Shields when she was only 17 and I was just turning 18, and I dare say that there's not a happier man living today. Of course, I'm in favor of marrying young."

To his wife, therefore, belongs the distinction of being one of the youngest grandmothers, if not the youngest in the city and maybe in the State.

Mr. Miller is the father of four children and is probably a little happier than the average father, because this young daughter of his child, Mrs. Mary Donovan, 1509 Emily street, makes him a proud grandfather. His other children are two boys and a girl—Johnny, aged 13; Emily, aged 8, and 18-month-old Charlie, who has a bad habit of stealing and hiding visitors' straw hats. "Certainly, marrying young is practical," said Miller. "The whole thing is in meeting the right one; then you're all right."

This family of great-greats, greats, grand and plain parents and children begins with Mrs. Helen Higgins, 5222 Larchwood avenue, 40 years old, her daughter, Mrs. Helen Miller, 3015 Siegel street, is 31. Her son, Frank Miller, 1728 West Passyunk avenue, is 25. His daughter, Mrs. Marie Donovan, 1509 Emily street, is 16, and her child, Helen, 30 days.

Printing Business Courses Are Urged

St. Louis, Mo., July 12.—(I. N. R.)—St. Louis employers are urging high schools to turn their attention to the printing business. The Ben Franklin club of this city, composed of employing printers and men in allied industries, has begun a movement to interest boys. "The need for apprentices was never so urgent as now," says Oliver Wroughton, secretary of the Graphic Arts association of Kansas City.

We Are Showing Diamonds of Wondrous Luster

Right now is the time to invest in more diamonds. We offer stones of various sizes at prices which make it decidedly to your advantage to buy.

No matter what size stone you may wish to buy, we can gratify your desires from our stock, which is replete with fine gems, mounted and unmounted.

Diamond Engagement Rings $25, $50, $75, $100, $125, $150 Exceptional Values

"A Stitch in Time Saves 9"

Wages to weavers in the Orient have increased from 20c to $1.50 a day. Invest now in

Oriental Rugs

—before the increases are felt here. Our stocks were never larger or more attractive. Our expert will care for your repairing, cleaning and storage.

We Develop Kodak Films Free

when prints are ordered. and pay for postage. Send us six Stamps for each desired print. We return excess. No charge for unprintable films.

Woodard, Clarke & Co. Photo Supplies, Wood-Lark Bldg. PORTLAND, OREGON Ask for Catalog and Special Offer

THE NAME OF

H. Enke, Owner D. Levine, Manager

Stands for Quality Service and Reliability

The Creole's Secret Of Keeping the Hair Young

FOR generations La Creole Hair Dressing has been favorite among the aristocratic Louisiana Creoles whose wonderful hair is a mark of their pure Spanish-French blood.

No Gray Hair

La Creole will bring back gray, gray-streaked, or faded hair to its youthful color and beauty.

It contains no dyes but works with nature—gradually but surely.

La Creole must not be confused with dyes—gives no dyed look—can't stain scalp—nothing to wash or rub off. Makes hair lustrous, soft, beautiful. Promotes healthy condition.

Guaranteed to bring back hair's color or money refunded. Write for fascinating booklet, "La Creole," Hair Beautiful. Shows best hair dressing for each type of face. At drugists and toilet counters, price $1.00. If your dealer can't supply you, send his name and address. We will see that you are supplied. Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Makers, Memphis, Tenn.