Miss Jones to Be Head of School

Former Principal Returns to Resume Educational Work in Portland.

By Vella Wisner
Alice Jones, formerly connected with Miss Catlin's school, will be delighted to know that she has returned and will next year again assume the principalship of that institution. Miss Jones left Portland two years ago to become the head of St. Mary's school for girls in Raleigh, North Carolina, the largest residence Episcopal school in the United States. She was eminently successful in the line of her work, and was too great to be withstood and she has returned to Portland to make her home. Miss Catlin has invited in a few friends to have luncheon today to meet Miss Jones. The table is simply adorned with summer blossoms and covers are placed by Mrs. George Whiteside, Mrs. George Reed, Mrs. William D. Wheelwright, Miss Mary Frances Isom, Mrs. Lee Hoffman, Mrs. Henry Hughes, Mrs. Fred A. Wall of Denver, Mrs. Thomas Talbot, Miss Adams, Miss Jones and the hostess.

MRS. WILLIAM CHRISTENSEN (Della Jackson), whose marriage was an event of the latter part of June. Mr. and Mrs. Christensen have gone to Nehalem to make their future home.

Miss Lillian Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Martin of 463 Rodney avenue, and Inspector Dan Keliher of the police detective bureau, son of Mrs. John Keliher of 457 Rodney avenue, were united in marriage at 2 o'clock this morning by the Rev. Father Wallace. The ceremony was performed before a small group of relatives in the Church of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, Williams avenue and Stanton street. Shortly after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Keliher left for the coast, where they will spend their honeymoon. Mr. Keliher was employed as an stenographer by the McCarger, Bates & Lively company before her marriage. She is a graduate of St. Mary's academy.

The members of the "All Star Chess club," who have met at each other's homes for a number of years for their favorite game, entertained their wives with a picnic supper at Eagle creek Tuesday evening. Additional guests were Mrs. William Warrens, whose husband, Major Warrens, now in France, is a member of the club, and Mrs. Harrison Corbett. The club members and their wives enjoying the outing were: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ayler, Mr. and Mrs. C. Chris Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Keliher, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Felling, Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Talbot and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Munro.

Dr. and Mrs. George Ittebe entertained with a most enjoyable party Saturday evening in honor of Dr. Devine, Dr. Speth and Dr. Liebric. Additional guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seal, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Gerlinger, Dr. and Mrs. B. B. Biederbach, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wheelwright, Dr. K. A. J. MacKenzie, Miss Jean MacKenzie, Miss Bernice, Miss Camille Dosch, Miss Ruth Catlin and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Will R. Albee of Los Angeles are visiting friends and relatives in Portland during his vacation, and are at the home of R. C. Townsend, 31 East Third street north. Mr. Albee has been the Southern Pacific agent at Redondo for a quarter of a century. Thirty-four years he was in the railway mail service in Portland. His wife was formerly Miss Ada Wilson of Pendleton.

The Iowa State society picnic will be held in Laurelhurst park Monday afternoon, July 21, at 4 p. m. Dinner at 6:30 p. m. Bring the customary well-filled picnic basket. Coffee, cream and sugar will be furnished by the society. All former residents of the state of Iowa and their friends are cordially invited. Party in the club house in the evening. Major Crockett now on his way home from France, will be present.

Scout Young Camp No. 2, United Spanish War Veterans will entertain all members and families and members of the auxiliary on Tuesday evening, July 22, at the club house. The special feature of the evening will be a presentation of a large flag to the auxiliary. Comrade Condol is in charge of the committee.

Mrs. John R. Dickson will entertain with a dinner dance for members of the younger set Saturday evening at the Waverley club in honor of her son, Frank Dickson, who recently returned from overseas, he having first served with the American forces in France and later with the army of occupation in Germany.

Mrs. Charles J. Smith entertained with a beautifully appointed luncheon Wednesday at her home on Alameda. Covers were placed for 12 at a table made fragrant and attractive with a bowl of sweet peas in the pastel shades.

The Misses Marshall of Alexandria Court are entertaining with a small and informal luncheon today to meet Mrs. Washburn of St. Paul, formerly of Portland. Covers were placed for eight of the friends of the honor guest.

THE DRESS

By Anne Rittellhouse

HAVE you seen a woman come to a party recently wearing a white wig, a short flowered skirt, and a taffeta overdress? Did you think she was in fancy dress costume? Well, she was not. This type of costume has been worn at sedate and formal American affairs. It is the high-water-mark of coquetry. It does not suit all our women, but when it is becoming, it is very, very attractive. It is one of the novel touches in summer costume. It is entirely against the chemise frock, the draped satin gown, the Oriental tulle dance frock, and the colored cotton net with its garland of roses.

It is merely a lady off a fan; it is a bit of china taken down from the mantle. THE WHITE WIG It is full of allure and of that type of femininity which was once adored above all other kinds. Somehow, the panniers and the flowered skirt need the white hair and as Paris wore white wigs before the war, America thinks it attractive to do so now.

We are weary of brilliantly colored hair. We cannot eye the hair white, but we can wear white wigs in the evening. There are women who wash their hair in a peculiar kind of bluing that turns it from gray to dead white, in order that they may carry off these eighteenth-century fashions.

If one does not wish to wear the wig and has not the white locks by nature, then one must do the best with the hair that grows on the head. If it is brown, it goes ill with a Watteau frock; if it is blond, it is extremely attractive.

So the woman who wants to wear the taffeta pannier and the slightly full, flowered skirt of the eighteenth century, should consider her hair first, or rather, she should have a broad vision that encompasses the entire coloring and featuring of her head. One cannot look like a shepherdess if nature has fashioned one in the manner of an Amazon or vampire.

There are certain critics who think that the average American woman cannot achieve the demure archness and coquetry of the eighteenth century; that her mind has gone too far beyond it. Not that the women of today are any cleverer than those of the eighteenth century but their mentality is of the kind that goes away from archness, from appeal through weakness, from the over-stressing of femininity.

GOWN WITH PANNIERS If a woman feels that she has an eighteenth century air, let her adopt one of the revived shoddy frocks. It would be well for her to try out such a bit of costume and get away from the commonplace. It would be a kind of boast, it is true, that she had the allure which was made so much of in the eighteenth century; but women are always boasting of their "different type" of innocently or subtly.

The sketch shows such a gown worn at a summer dance. The short skirt is of printed chiffon frankly gathered at the waist, and over it is a slim little bodice and big panniers on the hips made of rose pink taffeta. There are no sleeves, except a bit of drapery that comes down from the bodice and there is a large sash which ties in an immense bow at the side.
