

REPUBLICANS SAY THEY WILL FIGHT LEAGUE TO FINISH

President Told Opposition Will Do Its Best to Defeat Treaty if Changes Are Not Accepted.

COMPROMISE IS SUGGESTED

Anti-League Men Say They Have Thirty-three Votes to Block Program of Wilson's Leaders.

Washington, July 19.—President Wilson was bluntly told by Republican senators Friday that the peace treaty will be rejected by the senate unless reservations proposed by opponents of the League of Nations and the Shantung award are accepted.

The president was notified that he must make up his mind to agree to certain of these reservations or witness the defeat of the entire treaty at the hands of the senate.

Nothing short of a compromise with the opponents of the league can save the treaty, the president was told, and the compromise, if made, will be forced by the opponents rather than of the president's own making.

CHANGERS WANTED BY 23
A new poll made by the Republican leaders shows that more than 33 senators will vote against the treaty unless a definite statement is made by the president with respect to article 10, the Monroe doctrine, domestic questions and Shantung is contained in the resolution of ratification.

This information was conveyed to the president by the Republican senators who went to the White House in response to the invitation to discuss the treaty and hear from the president the reasons for the treaty provisions which have provoked opposition in the senate.

The senate had already adjourned and Senator Hitchcock had gone to his home to prepare for a midnight journey to the hot links of Swampscott.

HITCHCOCK IS PLEASED
Nevertheless, the president hastened to the capitol and Senator Hitchcock postponed the packing of his luggage long enough to go to the president's room on the senate floor and confer with him for nearly an hour.

At the end of the conference the president stated that the situation demanded more than anything the senate has ever known and that many of the objections raised to the treaty were based upon misunderstandings.

Senator Hitchcock, after the conference, said that he does not believe reservations on the league covenant are necessary. The conference was gratifying to the senate in many ways than one, not the least of these being that it served to restore him officially to the position of Democratic leader, from which it was thought he had been displaced by Senator Swanson of Virginia.

Senator Hitchcock discussed with the president the Shantung decision and made the guarded statement that from China as well as from Japan it is expected statements will come which will set at rest many of the objections which have been raised in the senate to the decision.

STILL STANDS FIRM
He declined to say whether or not the president intends issuing a statement on the Shantung matter.

According to Senator Hitchcock, the fight for ratification is to be waged for straight ratification without any reservations or amendments, and after talking with the president he declared that he remains unconvinced that any changes should be made.

As to what methods the president and Democratic senators will adopt to overcome pronounced opposition to the treaty, Senator Hitchcock declined to say.

The Republicans who went to the White House today were Charles L. McNary of Oregon, William S. Kenyon of Iowa, Arthur Capper of Kansas and Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota.

submission of the treaty should be made. The president suggested that there might be some form of "interpretation" made which would define the standpoint of the United States. It was apparent to the senators that the president has an extreme dislike for the word "reservations" but that the term "interpretative resolution" might prove acceptable to him.

AGAINST INTERPRETATION
But Senator Kenyon made bold to say in reply to this suggestion that the supreme court decided in the case of the Hay-Pauncefote treaties that "interpretations" or "reservations" are not binding unless they are part of the treaty itself. Such statements appended to the treaty, Senator Kenyon said to the president, merely express the opinion of the individual senator who voted for them.

Such statements were supported by the entire senate. One of the leaders is reported to have informed the president that he had some very stubborn senators to deal with and that the majority of them would vote in favor of the reservations. These senators, it was stated, would not stand for meaningless "interpretations" and would insist upon making the reservations the condition upon which the treaty should be accepted.

In other words, they want the reservations with a "punch" in them.

Colonel Chandler said, however, that all airplanes to be built by the United States will be so made that they can be changed easily into implements of war.

NEW GAS DISCOVERED
"By the use of helium gas, which was perfected by the United States during the war, the airplane will be able to disregard the inflammable and a few bullets from the small guns of the airplane would do the ship no harm. The airplane also should carry such heavy armament that no airplane could get close enough to harm it. French airplanes already have carried and fired 3-inch guns."

R-24 PROVED VALUABLE
Colonel Chandler said that the trip of the R-24 across the Atlantic had proved the commercial possibilities of the airplane.

The British government had appropriated $100,000,000 for the air service, while the United States has appropriated only $50,000,000.

CONGRESS KEEPS POWER
The president was told by Senator Capper that sentiment against the league is becoming stronger in Kansas and adjoining states at the middle West.
