REPUBLICANS ARE DISGRUNTLED OVER BUNGLING OF PLAN

Mistake Seen in Robbing Democrat of Credit of Suggesting Pershing Reception.

FUMBLE SOLDIERS' MEASURE

Another Example of Misleadership That Rank and File Provoked at Its Appropriation Bill.

Washington, July 26.—(WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE JOURNAL.)—Some Republican members of the house are disgruntled over what they declare the blundering of their leaders, the latest instance being the manipulation of plans for a congressional welcome to General Pershing into a party measure.

Representative Caldwell of New York, who has been student of military affairs and won distinction during the war period by informing addresses of military questions, has disclosed that he went to Speaker Gillett and asked if the speaker would recognize him to ask unanimous consent for passage of a resolution for a joint session of congress in General Pershing's honor.

The house does everything by program, and preliminary arrangement with the speaker is necessary before a member can secure recognition for a motion of this sort.

MEETINGS HEARD

"The speaker told me he would be glad to do so," said Mr. Caldwell, "but as I am a Democrat, it is better for me to refer the matter to the Republican steering committee before deciding what should be done. The next day I asked him if he had referred it, and he said he had not, but was glad I had called it to his attention. The following day he informed me he had taken it up with the steering committee, but it had been decided to have the matter passed on by the rules committee.

By this means the Republican organization will be able to "point with pride" to having decided to welcome Pershing.

MEETINGS HEARD. Meetings are heard, however, from Republican members who believe the speaker and the whole staff of leaders made a mistake, and that the suggestion about the appropriation as it came through a lot of committee foolery, even though it was first proposed by a Democratic member.

HERE MISLEADERSHIP

Another example of misleadership, in the estimation of many, was the manner in which the Republicans fumbled the appropriation for rehabilitation of disabled soldiers, sailors and marines. Under the plea of economy this appropriation was fixed at $6,000,000, which resulted in the veto of the sundry civil bill by the president.

The president asserted that at least $8,000,000 is needed for this work, declaring it a matter of grave concern that when men are coming in increased numbers to receive the benefits of this act, vocational education should be restricted by insufficient funds. Chairman Good of the appropriations committee wanted to pass the bill over again with $8,000,000, but was finally overridden and $6,000,000 inserted.

Thus, while the Republican leaders have talked of their resolve to aid the returning soldiers, the intervention of the president was necessary to uphold the appropriation for vocational training, and the house, with its big Republican majority, voted to discontinue support for the federal employment service, which has done so much to help soldiers to secure jobs. This service was continued only after Senators Robinson of Kansas and Ashurst of Arizona, Democrats, assisted by Progressive-Republican senators, made a sharp issue in the senate.

Now some of the leading Republicans are preparing to fight the soldier settlement bill. Every few days a statement in opposition comes from some leading Senator. Senator Wadsworth, or some other majority leader. There is still plenty of talk of aiding the soldiers, but practical measures seem to have hard standing under existing auspices.

Dr. Schafer Will Give Lecture Here Wednesday Evening

Dr. Schafer of the University of Oregon, who has been acting head of the historical research bureau at Washington, D. C., for the past year, will give an address at the Central library, for the teachers and citizens of Portland on the evening of July 31, at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "The Course in History Projected by the New Committee of Eight."

Sermon on Jonah to Be No Fish Story

At the First Methodist church, Twelfth and Taylor streets, on Sunday next, Joshua Stanfield will preach in the morning at 10:30 on "The Mighty Acts of God," being a study of God in providence, in history and in saving grace. To see God in all life is the finest and best seeing.

In the evening at the summer hour service from 8 to 9 the sermon will be on "A Strange Bible Story," being the story of Jonah, one of the best misadventurous stories of the Old Testament literature. This will not be a fish story, but the story of Jonah, one of the best in the book.

Year's Pay Wanted For Service Men

Washington, July 26.—(U. P.)—A bonus of one year's pay for each soldier, sailor and marine who fought in the war is provided in a bill introduced today by Representative Foster. The bill provides that the bonus would be raised by income taxes assessed against incomes of $20,000 or more.
