OF knowing how to put on and how to assemble an outdoor daytime costume better than any other women in the world is a distinction that American women have won in Europe. And probably they deserve it. There is a fine attention to detail in the wearing of what we call street costume that is sometimes overlooked by French women, even those who hold the distinction of being best dressed. More than that, the American woman has a close regard for the ensemble. She realizes that to be well dressed outdoors she must know that there is an unbroken chain of careful adjustment from the tips of her shoes to the topmost feather on her hat, and she knows that she cannot hope to depend on the softening or enhancing effect of a background as she can in her own home.

This knowledge of dressing for outdoors is a fairly recent acquisition, for not many decades ago the outdoors was so far as American women and their clothes were concerned, simply a place that had to be endured. The woman who got from one house to another, Shawls and mantles and wraps and toilet. Now it is the arrangement of these outside things that is half the battle when one is dressing to go outdoors.

Keeps Her Jacket On.
It has long been the feeling of well-dressed American women that even in warm weather they should not go out without some sort of jacket or wrap unless their frock was of the sort that was distinctly built not to be worn with a wrap. Wearing a shirtwaist and suit skirt, sans suit jacket, was something that the discriminating woman didn't do. And another thing that she didn't do was to remove her suit jacket. To be sure you did see women at lunch in restaurants or their devotion in church slip off the jacket, but it looked much as it would to see a man remove his suit coat under similar conditions. And the well-dressed woman never wore a suit in her own home, then it simply meant that a suit skirt was never worn without a suit jacket and the shirtwaist beneath was simply something that you knew was there but never saw, save perhaps for a little glimpse in front that might just as well be a substitute in the form of a little gimpie or waistcoat. Why wear a jacket at all? Or why wear a shirtwaist? Men in their clothes may long cling to absurd devices in their dress. All the king's horses and all the king's men could not persuade a man's tailor to make up his next coat without all of those pockets that they never think of using. But women have no such respect for the traditional. And so it came about that a new sort of costume was evolved—one that looked like a coat costume but wasn't, or at least one that gave the impression of being very soon to be taken off for the street without an additional wrap, but that really was all in one piece, and

The navy blue of this dainty suit is relieved by the burnt orange silk binding and the burnt orange and blue that show themselves in the lining of the detachable cape.

It is quite genuine.

There was nothing fakey about that type of costume. It was not on a par with the false bluffs of old-fashioned houses or made ties or gas legs. For there was no effort to give the impression of wearing a jacket or coat, for Engagement of Miss Beatrice Maurice Sanders to O. A. Jenkins Announced.

Albany, Aug. 13.—The engagement was announced of Miss Beatrice Maurice Sanders, who is to be married in September to Open Ault Jenkins. Both Miss Sanders and Mr. Jenkins are graduates of Albany high school. Mr. Jenkins, a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, was in his junior year at the University of Oregon when he enlisted in the army, being later detailed for instruction in an officers' training camp from which he was commissioned a second lieutenant.

Miss Dora J. Dixon and Harry MacHugh, accompanied only by a sister of Miss Dixon and one of her friends, were married Tuesday by Rev. A. M. Williams. The parents of both live near Albany.

John Haberly and Miss Bernice Hall were the principals in a quiet home wedding Monday evening, the ceremony being performed by the father of the groom.

James Christ, one of the proprietors of the Imperial cafe, and Miss Lillian M. Rebitske were married in Eugene.

Assault Charge Denied.
Oregon City, Aug. 13.—Luther Brackett, George Berry and William Berry, arrested by Constable Ed Fortune Monday at Jennings Lodge on the charge of assault on a battery, brought by C. R. Bridenback, pleaded not guilty.

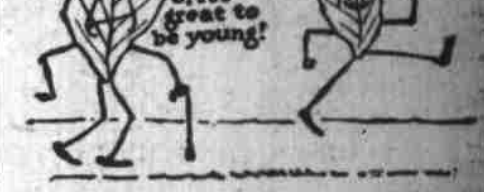

The very cut and mode of the costume of course, some women never took to these one-piece costumes. They preferred the separate wrap and many of them eagerly went in for capes and wore them for every outdoor occasion. In fact, they became so accustomed to capes that they hardly felt "dressed" without one. It is then for the woman who likes the mode of capes and the woman who wants a compact little one-piece street frock that the tailor-made shown in the sketch was devised. The material is sturdy, which, by the way, is the fabric without a rival for early autumn suits and frocks and would be very generally worn were the price not exorbitant to make it beyond the reach of the many. The color is, as one might guess, navy blue, but this made vivid by the binding of burnt orange silk. The lining of the cape is burnt orange and blue in an interesting design. By some very easily managed fasteners in the back the cape can be removed or added as you wish.

Garden Hints

Water in which cut flowers are kept should be changed every day, and if a little of the stem is cut off each time the change is made the blooms will last longer.

Chrysanthemums will need liquid manure if they are backward. The growth must be hastened in every way possible from this time on in order that the plants can do their utmost to produce fine blooms later in the fall.

Die-budding dahlias should be thoroughly done now, so that the fall blooms will be large and fine. The sooner this work is done the larger blooms for the strength of the plant is sent into the one large flower on each stem, instead of being diffused over buds that have no chance to mature.

When the tea-leaves are young and full of sap, they have more flavor and less tannin than at any other time in their growth.

That is why Schilling Tea has more cups per pound of real tea-flavor than common tea.

There are four flavors of Schilling Tea—Japan, Ceylon, India, Oolong, English Breakfast. All one quality. In parchment-lined moisture-proof packages. At grocers everywhere.

Announcement of Wedding Is a Surprise

Miss Helen McCusker and Omer Wells Married on Day Ahead of Schedule.

(By Helen M. Hutchison.)
AT THE wedding reception at the home of Mrs. George Willard Brown, at Riverside on Tuesday afternoon, announcement was made of the marriage of Miss Helen McCusker and Omer Wells, which was solemnized on Monday afternoon instead of just previous to the reception as had been planned. The announcement caused no little stir of surprise among the assembled guests, as not even the family relatives had been informed of the wedding taking place a day sooner than had been announced. The service was read on Monday afternoon at the Grace Memorial church by the Rev. Oswald Taylor.

Summer blossoms and greenery were used about the rooms of the Brown residence for the reception. Receiving with the bride were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCusker, and her aunt, Mrs. George Willard Brown. Mrs. Joseph Wood, godmother of the bride, presided in the dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller left Portland immediately following the reception. They will go to South Dakota, where Mr. Miller is engaged in special agricultural work.

The bride, who was graduated from Portland academy, is a member of Junior League and has been active in work for the War Camp Community service as well as with other patriotic organizations, her special work having been with the Red Cross motor squad.

Following a trip to the Black Hills Mr. and Mrs. Miller will make their home near Wall, South Dakota.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Clara Wallace Woodward Stanley, are visitors at Gearhart at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. O'Brien. They will spend a few weeks in and about Portland visiting old friends before leaving for San Francisco where Lieutenant Woodward will report for duty and sail with the Woodard for Tinian, China. They have just returned from Rockford, Ill., where the lieutenant has been in service. He has recently been transferred to the 15th infantry. Next week Lieutenant and Mrs. Woodward will spend a few days in the city and will be the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. O'Brien.

Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Pernot of Corvallis, accompanied by their daughter, Dorothy, were in the city Tuesday on their way to Rainier park and British Columbia, where they will motor for a fortnight.

Mrs. Grace W. Story and young son, George, accompanied by their daughter, Joan, are spending a fortnight at Seaside, Wash.

The Knights of Columbus will give a complimentary dancing party Thursday evening for the entertainment of the world war veterans at the K. of C. building, Vancouver barracks. At 10:30 o'clock in the evening a special event will be staged for the entertainment of the dancers. Ladies desiring to attend may secure cards by making application at the Knights of Columbus club, 364 Taylor street. Cards must be presented at the door.

Miss Mary Blossom, who has been in San Francisco for a number of weeks during the summer, has returned to the city. Miss Blossom while in the South studied with Miss Jane Sanders, formerly of this city. While in California Miss Blossom visited at Aetna Springs for a short time.

The wedding of Miss Vera Blanche Kelso and Gordon S. Prentice was an event of Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents in Irvington. The service was read by Dean H. T. Hicks of St. Stephens pro-cathedral. About 20 of the friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present to witness the ceremony. The bride was dressed in white tulle and wore a large tulle hat. Her flowers were white roses. Miss Reba Macklin, gowned in pink and carrying pink sweet peas, was the bridesmaid. Rodney Prentice was the bridegroom's only attendant. Following

Stomach-Miseries From Indigestion Relieved Instantly

RELIEF IN TWO MINUTES—PERFECTLY HARMLESS

Do not deceive yourself into believing that stomach miseries must be endured. It may be just possible that your case is not one of the serious kind, but that little uneasiness you experience after meals such as the fermentation of your food, and a constant desire to belch—or that feeling as if your stomach was trying to burn up, (commonly called heartburn) pains in the stomach between meals, constant rising throbings you eat, and which do not properly digest, as well as fermentation which causes too much gas, which in turn is almost certain to bring on that fullness of feeling, especially after meals, causing you some little distress to say nothing of its many annoying features, you are compelled to endure from poor digestion, any and all of these symptoms find quick relief—Two Minutes, by taking one dose of—

Crippled Newsdealer Makes Friends on Favorite Corner

W. C. Chaplin, Journal news dealer at Fourth and Washington streets

W. C. Chaplin, who now sells The Journal on the corner of Fourth and Washington streets, worked as a carpenter for many years, but the accident which cost him his leg made it impossible for him to clamber over the scaffolding and walk the top planks any longer. Therefore, about all that was left for him to do was to sell papers. For six years he has been on his favorite corner, and he has customers in growing numbers.

SPARING the rod does not necessarily spoil the child, according to the pamphlet issued by the Parents' Educational bureau of Portland, which is reproduced in part below. The leaflet is entitled "Stop Whipping Children," an open letter to parents.

"Slapping, spanking and whipping children are very common. In more barbarous times these practices were universal. In our day inquiry proves that most parents believe they have a right to strike children, especially small children. When punishments are known to be extreme, severe, neighbors and officers sometimes interfere in behalf of the victims. For one such case which becomes public there are hundreds where the parent is sole judge and witness, and there is no court of appeal. "Any discussion of corporal punishment is almost sure to include the false statement that 'the bible says "Spare the rod and spoil the child." The Bible concordance contains references to rods and to whipping. But the quotation "everybody has heard and many have quoted is not from the Bible, but from Hudibras, a humorous poem written in 1663 by Samuel Butler.

"Consider the difference in size between a parent and a young child. If a giant 10 or 12 feet tall stood over a man or woman and dealt out blows for infractions of giant made rules, the parent might realize what his own does to children. He probably does not know either the pain, the physical injury, the nervous shock, the mental effects, nor the effects upon the other children in the family. The effect upon the mother or father is another subject.

"The pain is greater than a grown-up person realizes. The injury to the heart is sometimes permanent. The nervous effects are such that the same child frequently offends again within an hour. Feelings of bitterness, hatred and even revenge rankle in the heart. The fear in the mind of the victim and of the other children is wholly bad. Parental control that is wise and good cultivates a child's self-respect, as well as respect of parents. Whipping is destructive of self-respect.
