

CHINA ASKS FOR SECURITY; HOPES PUT IN AMERICA

Foreign Minister Gives Interview in London, Then Leaves for Paris After Visit to King.

ANXIOUS TO BE LET ALONE

Finances Not Chief Issue in the Orient, Says Cabinet Member; Americans Are Respected.

By Floyd Macgriff
London, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—“China wants a period of security against exploitation and the elimination of further domination by foreign powers. This security, we think, has not yet been assured by the treaty of Versailles. China wants to develop after her own ideals, not those of some foreign power.”

The foregoing declaration was made in an interview granted by Lou Tseng-Tsiang, Chinese foreign minister, who has just left for Paris after a visit to London to present the respects of the Chinese president to King George and distinguished members of the British government.

COUNTS ON AMERICA
Replying to a question as to what is China's greatest need today, the Chinese foreign minister said:

“Most of the people say we need finances most. I do not think so. Finances are certainly important, but there is another more important thing. China expects the friendly nations, particularly America, to give her a period of security—a period during which she can reconstruct her administration, which, above all, is very important.”

Dr. Lou declined to discuss the Shantung negotiations or Japan's policy. He indicated that it would be asking too much from him to predict what would be the result from the widening boycott of Japanese goods throughout China.

TOUCHES ON SHANTUNG
“We feel very deeply about the Shantung affair,” said Dr. Lou. “Shantung is a very important province. It is the cradle of Chinese civilization and the birthplace of Confucianism.”

Dr. Lou was asked: “In view of Japan's relations with Korea, and her activities regarding China during the past year what great power does China look to for sympathy and understanding?”

The minister answered: “I sincerely believe America is our disinterested friend. America has done a great deal for my country, but China, in order to be helped, should show that she is able first to help herself.”

Dr. Lou was asked if there was any chance of China drifting into Bolshevism.

CHINESE DEMOCRATIC
“It is most probable that Bolshevism will not come into China,” he declared. “If it does, it will not stay. Bolshevism will not take root upon soil which will not support it. It is a plant that is foreign to our soil for three reasons:—

“1.—The Chinese religion is really Confucianism and the teaching of Confucianism instills subordination and respect for the elders. This teaching permeates the rank and file of the whole country.”

“2.—There are peasants, but no big landlords in China. The peasants own their own farms and have their property, so the common people will oppose it as well as the rich.”

“3.—Big industries have not been developed in China. Our industries are still local and are carried on along arrangements whereby the manager shares profits with the workers. In other commercial life there is much resemblance to profit-sharing. On the whole, Chinese life is very democratic.”

Dr. Lou said that one of the reasons he had come to the Occident was to observe the effect of the war, especially on British life. In parting, he said: “If you go to any town in China today your best introduction will be your statement that you are an American.”

Parents of Zehner Boy Get Message

Albany, Aug. 14.—A letter mailed on a train on the Newport branch of the Southern Pacific is the only word which the parents of Marvin Zehner, aged 15, have heard from their son since he left home last April, and the only message which the letter contained was the oath of the Boy Scouts. Marvin's parents live at Hubbard.

Chehalis Man Hurt When Hit by Timber

Chehalis, Wash., Aug. 14.—Within two hours after he had started to work for the Chehalis Mill company, Ira Groves was painfully injured when a large timber as caught by the conveyor, breaking his collar bone and crushing his shoulder.

Stomach Miseries From Indigestion Relieved Instantly

RELIEF IN TWO MINUTES—PERFECTLY HARMLESS

Do not deceive yourself into believing that stomach miseries must be endured. It may be just possible that your case is not one of the serious kind, but that little uneasiness you experience after meals such as the fermentation of your food, and a constant desire to belch—or that feeling as if your stomach was trying to burn up, (commonly called heartburn) pains in the stomach between meals, constant rising throbings you eat, and which do not properly digest, as well as fermentation which causes too much gas, which in turn is almost certain to bring on that fullness of feeling, especially after meals, causing you some little distress to say nothing of its many annoying features that you are compelled to endure from poor digestion, any and all of these symptoms find quick relief—Two Minutes, by taking one dose of Jo-to.
