could say to the congress of the United States, "Here is a war and here is where you come in."

"All the nations agree to register their treaties and agree that no treaty that is not registered and published shall be valid. Private agreements and secret treaties are swept from the table, and one of the most dangerous instruments of international intrigue and disturbance is abolished. They agree to join in the supervision of the government of helpless and dependent people. They agree that no nation shall hereafter acquire the right to annex territory merely because the people that live on it cannot prevent it, and that instead of annexation there shall be trusteeship under which these peoples shall be administered until they are able to govern the associated nations of the world.

"They lay down rules for the protection of dependent persons of that sort so that they shall not have enforced labor put upon them, that their women and children shall be protected from unwholesome and destructive forms of labor, that they shall be kept free from the opium traffic and the traffic in arms, and agree that there will never be arms there.

TREAT ALL ALIKE

"They agree to do what no nation ever agreed to do before—to treat subject nations like human beings. They agree to accord and maintain fair and humane conditions in labor for men, women and children, both in their own countries and in all other countries in which their commercial and industrial relations extend, and for that purpose agree to join in establishing and maintaining the necessary international organizations. This great treaty which we are hesitating to ratify contains the organization by which the united councils of mankind shall attempt to lift the levels of labor, and to see that men who are working with their hands are treated as they ought to be treated upon principles of justice and right. They agree to entrust the league with the general supervision of all international agreements with regard to traffic in women and children, traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs, they agree to trust the league with general supervision of the trade in arms and ammunition in the course of which the control of this traffic is necessary in the common interests.

PROPOSAL IS ANALYZED

"I want to analyze for you what it is proposed that we should do. Generalities will not penetrate to the heart of this great question. It is not enough to speak of the general purposes of the peace. (Applause outside of the building.) This applause is acceptable but inopportune. Perhaps I might devise some signal when they should cheer on the outside, but if you would mind the sounds without, I think we can make some progress toward the heart of the great matter I want to discuss with you.

"I want you to realize just what the covenant of the League of Nations means. I find that everywhere I go, it is desirable that I should dwell on this great theme, because in some of the parts of the country men are drawing attention to little details in a way that concentrates attention upon certain particular words. I do not want to dwell on this great theme, because in some of the parts of the country men are drawing attention to little details in a way that concentrates attention upon certain particular words. TREATIES TO BE PUBLIC

All nations agree to register and make public all treaties, thus abolishing secret treaties.

AGREES TO ARBITRATION

"In the first place, every nation that joins the league, and that means every fighting nation in the world, agrees to submit all controversies which are likely to lead toward war either to arbitration or to thorough discussion by an authoritative body—the council of the League of Nations.

"These great nations, all the most ambitious nations in the world except Germany, all the most powerful nations in the world as well as the weak ones, all the nations which we had supposed had imperialistic designs, say that they will do either one or the other of two things in case a controversy arises that is not settled by ordinary diplomatic correspondence. They will either frankly submit to arbitration and absolutely abide by the arbitral verdict, or they will submit all the facts, all the documents, and the council of the League of Nations will be given six months in which to discuss the whole matter and leave to publish the whole matter, and at the end of six months will still refrain for three months more from going to war, whether they like the opinion of the council or not. IS GREAT DOCUMENT "They agree to join in obtaining and maintaining freedom of communications and transit and equitable treatment for commerce in respect of all members of the league. They agree to cooperate in an endeavor to take steps for the control and the prevention of disease. They agree to encourage and promote the establishment and cooperation of duly authorized voluntary national Red Cross organizations for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and mitigation of suffering throughout the world. I ask you, my fellow citizens, is it not a great humane document? (Applause.) "Is it conceivable that America, the most progressive and humane nation in the world, should refuse to take the same responsibility upon herself that all the other great nations take in supporting this great covenant?"

CITY READY TO GREET PRESIDENT

and only public address in Oregon, aside from the brief speech he may be induced to make at the Multnomah county fair, where he will stop en route back to Portland from his highway trip.

COMMITTEE TO GREET HIM

To welcome President and Mrs. Wilson, Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the president, Admiral Cary T. Grayson and others of the president's traveling companions at the Union station on Monday morning, the official Oregon reception committee will assemble in their automobiles on Tenth street in front of the library before 8:15 a. m. They will drive to the depot in numbered formation and there, at 9 a. m., will greet the visitors.

ROSES FOR MRS. WILSON

At the station, when Mrs. Wilson alights from her special car, the "Mayflower," Portland roses in a profusion of honor will constitute the expression of welcome to her. The flowers will be presented to the first lady of the land by the Portland Rose society and the Women's Hellenic league. At the Auditorium on Monday evening Mrs. Wilson will again be showered with Portland's favorite blooms by the Portland Rose society. Mrs. C. B. Simmons will present the roses to Mrs. Wilson and a brief presentation address will be made by Mayor Baker.

BAND AND ESCORT

In the procession which will wend its way through Portland streets giving the greatest possible number of people opportunity to see the president, the leading cars will be occupied by the procession pilot and John D. Mann, in charge of the tour, will be the president's car. With President Wilson will be Mrs. Wilson, Governor Olcott and C. S. Jackson, chairman of the program committee. The nations agree to maintain fair conditions of labor. "Traffic in opium, arms, etc., is regulated. The nations agree to take steps for prevention of disease and to set up Red Cross organizations. RESERVATIONS ARE OPPOSED He again said he had no objection to interpretations of the treaty in a separate statement, but opposed reservations which would send it back to the peace council.

AMERICA SHOULD NOT BLOCK

"This is not only the best treaty that can be obtained, but I want to say, because I played only a small part in framing it, that it is a sound and good treaty. (Applause.) And America above all nations, should not be the nation that puts obstacles in the way of peace of nations and the peace of mind for the people of the world. I never had the good fortune to be in Russia, but I know many persons who know that lovable people intimately. They all tell me that there is not a people in the world more generous, more simple, more kind, more naturally addicted to friendship, more passionately attached to peace than the Russian people; and yet, because of their error that the autocratic power of the czar had upon them, and they were unable to bear it and threw it off, they have come under a terror even greater than that. They have come under the terror of the power of men whom nobody knows how to find. And these men have been appealed to again and again by the civilized governments of the world to call a constituent assembly and let the Russian people say what they will not—what they dare not do. Shall we get into the clutches of another sort of minority?"

NATIONS MAY BE BOYCOTTED

"My fellow citizens, I am going to devote every influence I have and all the authority I have from this time on the United States (Loud and continuous applause and shouts.) There was a demonstration when he said "the United States will be a permanent member of the council of the League of Nations."

Ask Government Aid For Ships in Distress Along Florida Coast

Washington, Sept. 13.—(I. N. S.)—An appeal for government aid for many ships in distress along the Florida coast was made by William R. Porter of the Key West Chamber of Commerce in a telegram to Senator Fletcher of Florida, today. "We have just had the most terrible hurricane in the history of the gulf," the telegram stated. "Vessels are reported ashore along the entire Florida coast. We have large steamers ashore in the harbor. All private means crippled. Have no means of sending assistance." Senator Fletcher took the matter up with the coast guard in an effort to have vessels sent to aid the ships reported in distress.

Local physicians do not know a name for the disease, and it has almost assumed the proportions of an epidemic. Its victims have given it the fancy name for want of a better one.
