

IS GRACE D'SNELL CLEOPATRA BACK FOR A GAY TIME?

Her Victim Is an Anthony, Too—
Not Mark, but Anthony Dolecki, a Worker in Shipyards.

WANT AD IS HER WILES

Her Spell Broken, Comely Adventuress Is in County Jail Awaiting Trial as Bigamist.

Are the lotus-scented banks of the silvery Nile and the romantic atmosphere of Cleopatra's ancient domain in any way responsible for the remarkable and astounding success alleged to have attended the matrimonial ventures of Mrs. Gertrude De Snell? She is the wife of George De Snell, wealthy Butte, Mont., architect, and is now in the Multnomah county jail.

It may be, for Mrs. De Snell was born in Egypt.

It is possible that the arts and wiles that encompassed the downfall of Marc Antony of Rome have transcended to the present generation. Anthony Dolecki of Portland, latest victim of the charms of Mrs. De Snell, unhesitatingly admits that he fell victim to her attack via the matrimonial want ad route. Lacking the gorgeous settings that enhanced the person of her famous predecessor, unable to recline upon regally appointed barges, the modern descendant of ancient Egypt has been in no wise a failure, according to the information that comes from police records up and down the Pacific coast.

DOLECKI ANSWERS AD

With as many names as there are articles to the League of Nations covenant, Mrs. De Snell's alleged mode of operations is simple to the initiated. In her most recent marriage in Portland, which came to grief for her when the victim complained, the acquaintance was formed through a want ad.

Anthony Dolecki, a Portland shipyard worker, answered the ad. It was signed by E. Marie Overton and stated that the party advertising was an all-around business woman, making $175 a month and with $17,000 in the bank. Love and companionship were sought, read the ad, and applicants were informed that they need not necessarily be wealthy.

After a correspondence lasting a few months, Mrs. De Snell appeared in Portland, and on March 4 she and Dolecki were wed in Vancouver, his complaint averted. On March 5 Dolecki returned from work to learn that his bride had departed for Seattle to "nurse a dying sister" and that approximately $500 in cash and War Savings Stamps had gone with her. It was the last he saw of his wife.

HAD MANY NAMES

On the records of the police department in San Francisco it is inscribed that on July 29, 1912, T. J. Wright, a mining man, appeared, bemoaning the mysterious departure of his newly wedded bride, and $2995 in cash. A warrant was issued charging larceny and Mrs. Gertrude De Snell was arrested the following day. A list of aliases on the record there shows that the prisoner, at one time or another, used the names, Stella Webb, Stella Cameron, Gertrude De Valle, Grace De Snell, Grace De Blond. Marriage registers in Montana, Washington and California furnish the additional names of Mrs. Gertrude Wright, Mrs. Gertrude De Snell and Mrs. Gertrude Dolecki. After being in jail for six months the superior court of San Francisco released Mrs. De Snell on probation.

Arrest of Mrs. De Snell on the indictment returned by the Multnomah county grand jury occurred two weeks ago at Butte, Mont. Matron Edna Dobbins was sent there from Portland to bring her back. On her arrival an attempt was made to have Mrs. De Snell declared insane, to prevent extradition. It failed, however, as did a later attempt before the governor of the state to prevent her return.

PRISONER REMAINS SILENT

The prisoner is said to be 53 years of age, with blue eyes and dark hair. She has maintained a stubborn silence since her arrival here, with the exception of her contention that she has never been to Portland before. De Snell is said to be a prominent architect in Butte and a member of the state architectural commission.

It is expected that a plea of insanity will be offered in defense to the indictments.

Accommodations for Girls Badly Needed At University of O.

The administration of the State university has announced that owing to the large number of girls who have registered, especially the unexpected number of freshmen, the university will have to call in the several hundred students of the past, to assist in housing this entering class.

It is the policy of Oregon university to take care of all freshmen girls on the campus under direct university supervision. To this plan the sorority groups have acquiesced, though in many cases it means financial hardship.

At the State university the housing facilities are never adequate, and the fraternity system has arisen out of the necessity of the students to make homes for themselves. At Eugene this year there is accommodation for only 180 girls on the campus, including the quarters at Hendricks Hall and two large dwellings near by that have been rented as annexes. Nearly 300 girls have asked the university for shelter, so the authorities are obliged to turn for help, as they have so often done before, to the sororities and they ask them to fill their houses to capacity. The total enrollment of girls will be about 600 this year. In the near future the state will be called on to furnish the University of Oregon with at least one more women's hall of residence.

DAUGHTER OF NILE IN TOILS

Mrs. Gertrude de Snell, accused by (Mark) Anthony Dolecki of beguiling him with Cleopatra want ad wiles into matrimony and then taking cash and departure.

FAILURE TO LOAD CARS AND GROWING LUMBER TRAFFIC ARE BLAMED

Regional Director Aishton Says
Effort Is Being Made to Relieve Shortage.

Salem, Sept. 20.—Failure of shippers to load cars to capacity and increased shipments of lumber throughout the Northwest are blamed for the car shortage in Oregon by R. H. Aishton, regional director of the federal railroad administration, in a telegram received by the public service commission this morning. Aishton's telegram, which is in reply to one sent by Chairman Buchtel of the Oregon commission, appealing for aid in relieving the situation in this state, reads as follows:

"Your wire has been given special attention to car distribution problem. The difficulty appears throughout entire country. Large portion car supply your territory must be moved in empty and positive instructions in effect with the transcontinental lines to maintain field equalization by delivery of as many cars west as they take east. Demands for lumber loads have increased materially and are much heavier than last year, which makes problem more difficult. Serious decrease in total average loading per car compared with last year accounts in great measure for car shortage. Full use of all equipment and will appreciate your assistance in that direction. Special study being made of all delays at terminals and terminal load operations being speeded up on all lines to meet recent emergency. Preference movement car building material only a very small factor in situation. Have asked district director at Seattle to give you direct such local information as you may desire."

Good Highway Need Between Portland and Salem, Says Jackson

"I cannot see why the state cannot have one good road to Salem, especially during the fair," says A. G. Jackson, in charge of educational cooperation work of the forest service. Jackson, accompanied by C. A. Lindstrom of Washington, D. C., motored to Salem Friday and found the roads far from good. In going down I took the advice of the Oregon Motor association," said Jackson, "and followed the east side of the river on the Pacific highway. Every little ways I found a barb wire across the road, and had to detour. Coming back I followed along about a mile from the river, passing through St. Paul to Newberg and then into Portland. This way I found to be fairly good."

Christian Churches To Rally in Tithe Plan in the State

"Ten thousand Tithers in Five Years" is the slogan adopted by the state board of the Christian churches of Oregon at their meeting Tuesday. In order to promote this slogan the last Sunday in October has been set aside as stewardship day. The Rev. E. V. Stivers of Eugene presided at the meeting. The committee also decided to appoint a city evangelist for Portland to supervise the establishment of new mission posts and to direct the activities of those now in operation. They also voted to lend support to the "men and millions" team, which plans to visit every Christian church in the state. The team is composed of the Rev. W. P. Turner of Spokane; Mrs. Louise Kelly of Spokane; Rev. C. F. Swander of Portland, and the Rev. Mr. Muckley.
