PORTLAND WOMAN UNDER FIRE SAW ARGONNE DRIVE

Remarkable Experience of Miss
Mary Henthorne as Member of
Y. M. C. A. Canteen Service.

SERVED IN LUXEMBOURG
Followed the Second Division on
Their Entry Upon German Soil
With the Army of Occupation.

Wearing the neat gray uniform of the Y. M. C. A. canteen service, with the Indian head on a black shield, the insignia of the headquarters detachment of the Second division, Miss Mary C. Henthorne returned to Portland this week. Miss Henthorne will be remembered as the librarian of the children's department at Central library before entering service two years ago. With her sister, Miss Oril Elsie Henthorne, who was awarded the Croix de Guerre, the Portland woman was privileged to be assigned to a combat duty and their experience overseas included relief work with a field hospital unit at the front. Under fire, canteen service in ruined villages, the witnessing of the great American barrage during the last of the Argonne defensive and the unique experience of following their division into the German territory with the army of occupation.

IN CHALONS-SUR-MARNE

Beginning with service for 10 days in the ruined village of Chalons-sur-Marne, Miss Henthorne was sent to Les Islettes, where the canteen was established in a shattered peasant's cottage, the furniture of which consisted of one plate-glass mirror, strangely disfigured, one bench and an old picture. In one room lived an old mademoiselle, 83 years old, partially demented. This same building furnished quarters for an officers' billet. The canteen service table was improvised by the use of a board placed across the window sill, from which the hot drinks of chocolate and coffee were served through the window opening.

WATCHED HISTORICAL DRIVE

On November 1 the two Henthorne sisters arose at 2 a. m. and went to the hills, where, with two other workers, they watched the barrage which had gone down into history in the great American defensive of the Argonne drive. They witnessed the shifting lights of the horizon, which for miles illuminated with weird fires of bursting shells and star shells, as well as the signal fire in the valley below. They experienced the deafening roar and reverberation of the guns, and at the zero hour realized that the Americans were going over the top and heard the return fire of the German counter batteries. Then they hastened back to their post to work with the wounded as they were brought back, supplying them with hot chocolate made outside the room in tents on an open fire and carried into the tents in marmite cans. The human side of the scene, the gratitude of the men who, in many cases, had not had a hot drink in 24 hours, is one of the deepest impressions brought back by Miss Henthorne, who snatched a few moments' sleep that night on a narrow litter brought from the seriously wounded ward.

LUXEMBOURG NEXT

Following the cessation of hostilities, Miss Henthorne went with the division to Luxembourg, where she worked in canteen service at Larochette. The workers were housed in the home of a pro-Prussian family, whose ancestral portraits, with the military aspect, looked down upon them from the walls during their work. Here Miss Henthorne had charge of the money exchange, often having to change the money of three countries for a Yankee boy who wished to send home his allotment. At Neuwied it became the duty of the canteen workers to supply make up, costumes, musical instruments and stage equipment for the various troupes of entertainers which were organized among the men of the A. E. F. COBLENTZ HEADQUARTERS

At Coblenz a large headquarters of supply was established, which employed 12 German dressmakers and secured the output of four hundred dresses daily for its soldier-actors. It was difficult to secure grease paint, and the commodity had become so rare in Germany that it was necessary to buy it wherever possible, and often it had to come from Paris. The Second division had a record of supplying 125 cinema performances per week in August when the service was discontinued with the army of occupation.

Miss Henthorne arrived in New York with her sister August 18, and has been visiting throughout the East before returning to Portland. Before going overseas, she was stationed with the American Library association for 10 months in Washington, D. C., and also worked under Mrs. Finley J. Shepard as acting secretary with the Training Camp Activities, her work being similar to that of liaison officer between the men of the U. S. navy and the American Library association.
