

ARMENIAN WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN NEED OF CLOTHES

Drive for Destitute Nation to Start Monday; Old Garments Will Be Eagerly Welcomed.

LITTLE COUNTRY VALIANT

Loyally Stood by Sorely Pressed Allies Even When Turks Offered Autonomy for Their Help.

"What Armenia wants is not charity; it is appreciation and brotherly help from the allied people, whom they stood by loyally in the war," said H. O. Cartozian Saturday, "in discussing the drive for clothing for the Armenians that will be made Monday throughout the state of Oregon."

Cartozian has many interesting incidents of the war and of happenings in Armenia, where he has many relatives and friends. Fresh, first-hand news was received by him yesterday from his cousin, Lieutenant J. A. Shishmanian, who fought under General Allenby.

GERMANY IS REJECTED

In informing the appeal for garments for the Armenians, Mr. Cartozian said: "At the outbreak of the great war the Turks offered autonomy to Russian Armenia and a part of Turkish Armenia if the Armenians, as a nation, would support Turkey and Germany. The Armenians categorically rejected the Turkish offer, and for their fidelity to the cause of the entente, whose fortunes were at the time at a low ebb, suffered, in proportion to their numbers, larger losses in lives than any other nation or race in the war. At the moment of the supreme test, the Armenians, at heavy sacrifices, stood by those whom they considered, as their friends. It should never be forgotten by America and the entente that the appalling tragedy of 1915 was the price the Armenians paid for their adherence to the cause of right and decency; that the Armenians want nothing from their friends but freedom and their own country."

CHILDREN IN NEED

"Armenia, indomitable in her resolve to live and to be free, invites the civilized world to the support of her case. She asks the friends of liberty, of justice and of fair play everywhere to help her secure her freedom, after five centuries of martyrdom. And now she only asks to be clothed so that she may have a chance to fight off the rigors of winter. She asks Portland to rummage out some garments and give them on Monday to the suffering orphans and women and all of the unfortunate ones of Armenia who will perish if America does not help. Surely, Portland can do its part in providing garments."

Balfour in one of his addresses said, "The liberation of Armenia is one of the war aims of the allied powers." And so Mr. Cartozian wants his fellow-citizens to feel that they are doing something for an ally.

CLUBS RESPOND

Mr. Cartozian stated that he had made an appeal to nearly all the leading men's and civic clubs of the city, and that all had shown great interest this past week.

The First Presbyterian church Sunday school gave $500 this week to the Armenian cause. A man went to J. J. Handsaker, the state director, and donated $5 because, he declared, he had no clothes to spare, but must give something. A woman donated $10 worth of needles, thread, buttons and other sewing materials, so that the Armenian women might mend and repair garments.

Through the influence of Stroig and McNaughton, representing the Hagedorn estate, the second floor of the Phoenix building, Fifth and Oak streets, will be used for packing the garments. Only the department store and grocery wagons should be given the garments, or they should be left at the fire stations. "Do not give the garments by mistake to a junkman," is the warning. The Boy Scouts are distributing tags for the bundles and the housewives are getting ready to contribute liberally.

Labor Situation in The Dalles Easing Up; Loss Not Big

The Dalles, Oct. 4.—The labor situation here is easing up with the arrival of nearly a score of pickers and packers daily. Although the crux of the season has not been reached and harvesting is not past its critical stage, orchardists are hopeful that no great quantity of fruit will be lost. The mammoth plant of the Dufur orchard is handling most of the incoming help.

STRADIVARA

"KNOWN FOR TONE"

Art Phonographs are made in Portland

The Stradivara Phonograph, known for tone—a tone so woody, fluty and sweet as to hold the ear enthralled from the beginning to the end of the record—is an Oregon product. The unique principle that places the Stradivara apart from all other sound reproducing instruments is

—the Patented Stradivara Sound Board

The famous Stradivara, designer of the violin, perfected the Sound Board of edge-grain Spruce. That identical sound-board principle of Stradivara's is the feature that makes the Stradivara Phonograph desirable above all others. The patented sound board gives the same rare quality to the tone which emerges from the Stradivara as to that made by a fine old violin or piano.

Music from a Stradivara is not thought of as reproduction. The tones are so pure, sweet and refined as to be, in their effect upon the most musical ear, the original production.
