Special Session of Port of Portland Failed to Come to Agreement as to Selection of Man.

PLAN IS OPPOSED

Commissioner O'Reilly Against Joining With Dock Commission in Matter: Swan Island Object.

A special meeting of the Port of Portland commission to decide on the employment of a harbor engineer in conjunction with the commission of public docks will be held next Thursday afternoon. The port tracted discussion, its members were unable to agree in the matter.

The two commissions recently held a joint meeting and a resolution should be employed to supervise a channel policy and carry on other harbor construction. It was decided that two members of each commission should be named on a joint committee to assume charge of appointing the harbor engineer and out-JOINT PLAN OPPOSED

At the port commission meeting it de-that Commissioner Drake C. veloped that Commissioner Drake C. O'Reilly was opposed to the joint employment of a harbor engineer. The commissions have nothing in common, he asserted, and each should carry out its own work. It developed that the port commission

sed to complete removal of Swan island and favors the opening of the west channel, improving the island with

TO SELL PULITZER Resolving to open the Port of Port-land coal dock to freight handling when this will not interfere with bunkering of ships and appointing a committee of three to investigate all the insurance business of the commission, the session was concluded with authorization of the sale of the auxiliary schooner Pulitzer

The port purchased the Pulitzer 16 years ago as a pilot boat when the ports took over the business of piloting boats in and out of the harbor. The Pulitzer was last used as the municipal fish boat, as she is no longer adequate for use as a pilot boat.

NEW CROP SHIPMENT LOOMS

Scarcity of Steel Bottoms Has Been Drawback Thus Far.

Portland grain exporters are anticipating that before the end of the year several cargoes of wheat will have gone forth from this harbor. To date there been no grain shipments of the 1919 wheat, although considerable flour body met Wednesday, and, after pro- has been shipped. The fact that no grain has been shipped is explained by the scarcity of steel bottoms.

Where steel ships have been available this fall, they have been used for flour. It was intended, until the shipyards was adopted expressing the opinion strike was declared, to use two of the that a competent harbor engineer steamers coming from the Standifer plant in a few days as grain carriers. In gave a total revenue of $27.306.76 for the meantime grain is not being allowed to accumulate in the Portland warehouses. It is being held in the interior. but a cargo could be quickly assembled should the shipping board assign grain carriers. The government is meeting with extra expense, in holding charges and interest, of retaining this grain in the country elevators. Wooden bottoms for the grain trade have been suggested, but it seems that the underwriters will not carry the wooden ships for grain cargoes. It is further explained that the wooden steamers are so small that, with the present condition of their having to carry fuel for the round-trip passage, where European cargoes are concerned, paid now for dock labor, and will comthere would be little space for grain
