

HOME SERVICE OF RED CROSS MAIN THEME AT LUNCH

State Civic League Hears Scope and Purposes of Organization Discussed From Every Angle.

MUCH IS YET TO BE DONE

Miss Margaret Creech, Mrs. Fay T. Catlin and Stewart Rice Among Those Making Talks.

"Home Service of the American Red Cross" was the subject for discussion at the luncheon of the Oregon Civic League, held Saturday at the Hotel Benson. Judge John H. Stevenson, chairman of the home service section of the Portland chapter presided.

The first speaker was Miss Margaret Creech, executive secretary of the home service section, who gave a general idea of the scope of the work of her department, stressing the point that the work of the American Red Cross is far from finished, and that it is for the purpose of finishing this task that the annual membership drive is to be held from November 2 to 11 inclusive.

As long as there are men still in the service, as long as there are boys suffering or convalescing in military or naval hospitals, as long as there remain any soldiers and sailors, or families of soldiers and sailors not fully adjusted to the routine of civilian life—the American Red Cross must extend its hand to cheer, comfort and supply the necessities, said Miss Creech.

WOB KOUT OF PORTLAND

Mrs. Fay T. Catlin, in an earnest and effective appeal, told of the home service work outside the city of Portland—the Portland chapter covering several counties. She recounted long trips to remote sections by stage and on foot, where she found sickness of both mind and body, ignorance and poverty, the alleviation of which brought not only immeasurable joy and comfort to the recipients, but should serve as an impetus to those who made the assistance possible, to increase their usefulness by future hearty support of that great international social agency, the greatest neighbor in the world, the American Red Cross.

PEACE PROGRAM OUTLINED

Stewart Rice of Seattle, director of the Bureau of Education of the Northwest division, gave a concise outline of the peace time program of the Red Cross, saying in part:

"The problem of the world following the war is fundamentally the rehabilitation and the restoration of the vitality of its peoples. In this country, least touched by the war, the condition of public health constitutes a continuing disaster which will be permanent unless we all cooperate to improve the situation. The influenza epidemic took within a few weeks a toll of lives five times as great as the losses of our nation in a year and a half of war; for years we have lost annually 300,000 babies who need not have died had we taken ordinary precautions; hundreds of thousands of American citizens die every year from wholly preventable diseases, and millions more are unnecessarily ill. In putting its powerful influence behind all movement toward the improvement and preservation of public health, the American Red Cross gives us at least a hope that we may be rid of this dread burden of unnecessary sorrow and economic loss."

PLEA FOR EMPLOYMENT OFFICE
A. J. Hall made a plea for the reopening of the federal employment-office, declaring that now, with the winter coming on, the need was greater than ever before. Mrs. T. J. B. Nicholson, chairman of the woman's committee for the Roosevelt memorial, outlined briefly the plans of her campaign.

A. C. Newell, president of the league, announced that the luncheon next Saturday would be to hear a discussion of the subject of unionism for teachers. Charles B. Stillman, president of the Federation of Teachers, will speak in favor of the union movement, and C. C. Chapman of the Oregon Voter, taking the negative side. All reservations must be made by Thursday by calling Main 527 or A-4340.

Business men on Chamber of Commerce special to Southern Oregon. Above—On a seeing Ashland tour. Center—Portland delegation and their special train. Below—Portlanders visit scene of Strahorn railroad activities in Klamath county.

have got acquainted with Southern Oregon people enough to call many of them by their first names and they intend to help bring transportation to Central Oregon, highways to Crater lake and Josephine, normal school education to Ashland, railroad extension to the Illinois valley and to direct people who would live in a land blessed with every advantage not only to Douglas county, but to all this great sparsely settled half of the state.

Just how directly and definitely these projects will be aided will be revealed when the report and recommendations of the excursionists are received and acted upon by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

Four of the directors are on the train—A. J. Bale, second vice president; T. H. Edwards, David T. Honeyman and William MacMaster.

These men, in common with other members of the excursion, look back upon this region as a modern garden of Eden. They will never be able to escape the fascination of the sunny hills and gemlike valleys where they have tasted of the fruit and the juice of the vine and the orchard tree, eaten of the delicacies of farm and garden and found the reason why their citizens believe in the communities of Southern Oregon.

BUSINESS SHOWING GREAT
The five communities visited have made a business showing that has startled the Portland business men. It is a total of $25,700,000 a year, in which Medford is represented by $4,500,000; Ashland, $4,000,000; Klamath Falls, $6,500,000; Grants Pass, $6,000,000; Roseburg, $4,700,000.

But Portland, according to conservative estimates, secured in each town gets $12,480,000, or 50 per cent of this business.
Klamath Falls gives us only 10 per cent, or $1,050,000; Medford, 40 per cent, or $1,800,000; Ashland, 25 per cent, or $1,000,000; Grants Pass and Roseburg, 30 per cent, or $5,400,000 and $4,230,000 respectively.
Freight rates and service do not account altogether for the small proportion of business given by some of the communities, but the friendliness engendered by the journey has done much to erase antagonistic sentiment.
One would not, of course, be so crass as to suggest that the basis for increased cooperation from Portland is promise of increased trade from the south, but the excursionists have not been allowed to forget that people like to do business with their friends.
Portlanders were pleased with the collaneous, $660,000. These figures were compiled by A. C. Marsters, president of the Roseburg National bank and of the local merchants' association.

From the same source Roseburg neighborhood production is shown this year to be worth $4,507,600, as follows: Eight million pounds prunes at 14 cents, $1,120,000; 200 cars apples at $1500 a car, $300,000; 1,000,000 pounds of pears at $1,200,000; dairy products, $200,000; cattle, 6675 head, $388,500; sheep, 13,000 head, $130,000; hogs, 4400 head, $132,000. Total, $4,507,600.

In addition a recently organized company has a payroll of $2500 week, says C. S. Heinline, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and about $40,000 from the Southern Pacific division organization, not to mention income from other sources. There are about 63,000,000 feet of timber in the county.

VISITORS ARE ENTERTAINED
At 2 o'clock this afternoon the business men of Roseburg quit work and took their guests for automobile rides through the Umpqua valley. At 6 o'clock this evening all joined in a banquet at the Presbyterian church under auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, but served by the women of the community.

H. C. Huntington, president of the Associated Industries of Oregon, awarded prizes for best home industry window displays to the People's Supply company, Bellows store and The Hat shop. Roseburg development, irrigation, agricultural and industrial concerns were represented by A. C. Marsters, president of the Roseburg National bank; J. H. Booth, president of the Douglas National bank; R. L. Gile, prune grower; A. Geddes, fruit canner; J. W. Perkins, timberman, and J. W. Hamilton, President W. C. Harding of the Chamber of Commerce presided.

Speakers representing Portland were T. H. Edwards, D. T. Honeyman, Edgar H. Senechik, William MacMaster and Cameron Squires.

BIG CHURCH MEET INVITED TO COME TO PORTLAND 1922

Chamber of Commerce Sends Cordial Invitation for Next Episcopal Triennial Convention

ENTERTAINMENT IS ASSURED

Resolution Offered to House of Bishops Calls for Inquiry Into Rochdale Cooperative Work.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 18.—(U. P.)—Investigation of the Rochdale cooperative movement of England was asked in a resolution presented to the house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church today.

The Rochdale movement, which includes as a part of its plan a system of co-operative stores, had its inception years ago among the weavers of Rochdale, Lancashire. It has been successful in England, and its extension to this country is planned.

CONVICTED PREACHER TO SPEAK
Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, Chicago, will speak here Monday night. Tucker was convicted with Victor Berger and other Socialists on charges of violating the espionage act, and faces 20 years' sentence.

Having received assurance that ample funds would be provided for entertainment if necessary the Chamber of Commerce has sent a telegram to Rt. Rev. W. T. Sumner at Detroit, Mich., extending a cordial invitation to the Episcopal church triennial convention to meet in Portland in 1922. The message follows: "Portland Chamber of Commerce extends cordial invitation to the Episcopal church triennial convention to meet in Portland, in 1922. J. L. Etheridge and other leading members of the church in cooperation with the chamber assures the raising of an ample entertainment fund. We certainly will consider it an honor to be chosen as the convention city and assure you of every assistance and cooperation. Tell them there is no better scenery or climate."

The 1919 triennial convention of the Episcopal church is in session in Detroit.
