

DR. MACKENZIE'S DREAM BIDS FAIR TO BECOME TRUE

Concrete Plans are Shaping for Building of Medical Center Planned by Dean of U. of O. SOME MONEY NOW PROMISED

New Structure of Medical School on Marquam Hill Above Terwilliger Boulevard, is Nucleus.

Promises of $450,000 for a hospital for crippled children has brought to the brink of realization the dream of Dr. Kenneth A. J. Mackenzie, dean of the University of Oregon medical school, for a great medical center in Portland, a haven for the ill and maimed of the Pacific coast.

A nucleus around which Dr. Mackenzie's dream is beginning to take shape stands already on Marquam Hill, above Terwilliger boulevard. It is the new building of the medical school, opened for the first time this month. There a class of 52 medical freshmen have begun their training for the coveted D. B. There, according to Dr. Mackenzie, the school already begins to find itself cramped, already visions of increased space, other buildings, more campus room and the "medical center" idea heretofore mentioned.

PART OF VISION REALIZED

A part of the vision is coming true almost immediately; other arguments bid fair to follow. Rights recently were secured for a 350-bed county hospital in the vicinity of the medical school. Seven and a half acres were set aside for the future building of a reconstruction hospital, for which a large gift has been promised. The state industrial accident commission voted $150,000 to be appropriated for the building of a hospital to take care of the crippled in industry if the people of Portland would appropriate the same sum. This the people refused to do at the election of June 2.

"But the measure was mixed up with a lot of unpopular stuff that had nothing to do with it," said Dr. Mackenzie. "The people will pass it at the next election."

If the school has outgrown its new building—with 150 pre-medical freshmen coming up from Eugene, as well as increments from Washington, Idaho, Utah and other universities—the 25 acres donated by the Union Pacific for the medical school in 1913 are no longer adequate, according to Dr. Mackenzie. Add to these requirements those of the projected hospitals, which would make of the place a genuine medical center, and the need for more ground becomes obvious.

NOT BEYOND PROVINCE "But we are not going beyond our province in building hospitals on the Union Pacific ground," said Dr. Mackenzie. "The University is authorized by that purpose as well as for the school."

Now, promises of $350,000 and $100,000 for an orthopedic hospital have capped the climax for the ambitious dean. "We have to have more land," he says, "no less emphatically because he is recovering from a severe illness. "We've got to have an option on those 80 acres contiguous to our ground. A wonderful site for a campus! A wonderful place for hospitals! Ask any architect. We'll build public hospitals, sanatoria, laboratories of all kinds. We'll have a medical center such as they have in Baltimore, the envy of all cities."

ECONOMIC BENEFITS Economically, Dr. Mackenzie pointed out, such a medical center would aid Portland in three ways. It would bring physicians and students here, thereby increasing the population and the money spent. It would bring patients from all over the West. Its laboratories would work toward the prevention of epidemics as the recent plague of Spanish influenza.

"Best of all," smiled Dr. Mackenzie, "it will give an opportunity to the poor devils we maim and cripple in our shipyards and in our other industrial plants. The dean is insistent that there is nothing in his plan to interfere with or discourage the campaign for funds for Emanuel hospital, on the east side. "We need a hospital over there, too," he said. "In case of an epidemic, we need all we can get—and then some."

Dr. Mackenzie is about to begin a month or more in Southern California in search of health. He broke down suddenly on a recent trip to Spokane, compelled to walk to his motor car because the arrival of President Wilson in the United States forbade its meeting him at the train, he reached his home in a very weak condition. He has been recuperating slowly.

Dr. Harold A. Myers is acting dean of the medical school in Dr. Mackenzie's absence.

Representative Men Organize and Go on Record as Favoring Full Bonding of Coos County.

Marshfield, Oct. 18.—The Coos county advisory board was formed at a meeting of representative men called by County Judge Wade. The board will meet every month and act in an advisory capacity with the county court in all road matters. It went on record in favor of bonding Coos county to the full limit, $1,500,000, for the purpose of road improvement. A. T. Morrison of Coquille is chairman and W. A. Reid of Marshfield secretary. L. J. Simpson and Charles Hall have been named a committee to confer with the state highway commission with a view of learning how the county can best cooperate with the state in road matters.

Herbert Nye, state highway engineer, is in Marshfield to look into the state work on the road between Marshfield and Coquille, recently taken over by the state from the contractors.

About 100 men are employed on road work in Coos county at present. When the work is stopped, the men let out will find no difficulty in obtaining other work, as men are in demand for both mills and camps.

SUNDAY SERMONS FOR MEMORIAL TO THEO. ROOSEVELT

Thorough Canvass to Be Made in Portland for Quota Appropriated This City.

JUDGE KANZLER HEADS WORK

Campaign to Continue the Entire Week and Close on Birthday of Great American.

Throughout the state of Oregon this morning the spirit of Americanism exemplified by the late Theodore Roosevelt will be the keynote of many sermons. Although Roosevelt Sunday will be generally recognized on October 24, the day before the anniversary of his birth, the opening of the Roosevelt Memorial campaign tomorrow will bring the deeds of the former president to mind.

All is in readiness for the opening of the campaign in Multnomah county as well as in the remaining portion of the state. Judge Jacob Kanzler, director in charge for this county, has his forces organized, and beginning tomorrow morning a systematic canvass will begin in the business section of Portland.

OBSERVED BIRTHDAY The campaign will continue during the entire week, coming to a climax on Monday, October 27, the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt. In Portland The Auditorium has been obtained and a mass meeting will be held on the evening of that date. An excellent program will be prepared, including speaking and music, and the meeting will be open free to the public.

The quota for Multnomah county is $21,000, and it is the hope of the committee in charge to raise this amount through a large number of small contributions.

NEW LUMBER MILL AT KLAMATH FALLS WILL OPERATE IN SPRING

Pelican Bay Lumber Company Replaces Burned Mill With Modern Structure.

Klamath Falls, Or., Oct. 18.—Definite announcement was made today that the big sawmill of the Pelican Bay Lumber company, recently destroyed by fire, will be rebuilt. It is expected that operation of the mill will be begun April 1, 1920.

Removal of the debris from the old mill has been completed and timbers for the new one already sawed. The new mill will be electrically driven with power generated at the plant. It will have two band saws, one horizontal resaw, two edgers, one trimmer, one slasher and a complete lath mill. The mill building will be 70 by 200 feet in dimensions.

The Pelican Bay Lumber company has closed two of its logging camps, but is still operating one camp. By the time the new mill is ready to run the company will have 12,000,000 feet of logs in the pond.

The new mill is the third for this company to build. The first burned in 1914 and the second last month.
