

ALBINA FERRY TO BE TRANSFERRED TO NEW LOCATION

County Commissioners Decide to Move the Craft Below Present Operating Point.

BRIDGE TRAFFIC DISCUSSED

Recommendation Made That Deputy Sheriffs Guard Morrison and Burnside Spans.

The Albina ferry will be given a new river crossing below its present location, in order that its usefulness may not be counteracted by the Broadway bridge, was the tentative decision of the county commissioners at their meeting Monday.

A committee to investigate new locations for the ferry, consisting of Chris Minsinger, J. V. Beach, Henry Barendrick and A. W. Barendrick, was named to consult with C. B. Hegardt, engineer of the commission of public docks. The committee will report back Wednesday.

Cable to guide the ferry will not be used because of interference with river traffic. It is likely, therefore, that the lower Albina ferry boat will be used, the upper ferry boat going to St. Johns, the boat now in use there being in bad condition.

The Albina ferry landing at the north end of the Fifteenth street municipal terminal cannot be used because the Port of Portland intends building a dock there. The south end of Montgomery dock No. 2 has been suggested as the most desirable site for a new ferry landing on the east side.

The question of traffic regulation on the bridges was taken up by Lieutenant H. A. Lewis of the city police department. The 1919 motor vehicle law, Lieutenant Lewis said, apparently gave the commission authority to police the bridges and regulate traffic instead of the city.

He recommended placing deputy sheriffs at each approach of the Burnside and Morrison bridges to see that no trucks of more than two tons capacity crossed, that streets run not closer than 100 feet, and that when cars were awaiting the draws, they should not be spaced closer than one car to a span.

The matter of policing the bridges was referred to District Attorney Evans for decision and to Sheriff Hurlburt for drafting of regulations.

Sammons to Direct Red Cross Drive in Portland for Funds

E. C. Sammons, assistant cashier of the United States National bank, and a former lieutenant colonel in the army, Monday night was chosen by Portland post of the American Legion to conduct that organization's Red Cross drive, November 6 to 11.

Assisting Sammons in organizing the American Legion in the coming campaign are H. E. Raach and Franklin F. Korell. They will try to get $120,000. The ex-service men declared they would not forget the aid given them by the Red Cross while they were in the army and navy. Several hundred men will actively participate in a general campaign for $1 memberships.

A Sale of New Velvetene Frocks at

Model Frocks for Street and Afternoon Wear at Much, $45, Much Below Regular Price.

—A sale of dresses, the like of which has not been seen for many a moon—certainly not this season. And only because they are "samples," and purchased at an absurdly low figure, are we able to sell them at this value-giving price.

—This is an event in which the smartest dressed women in Portland will participate. An event that is of great importance to all women seeking that rare combination of style, quality and value.

Description of the One Sketched Above

—A wistaria colored frock, whose delightfully youthful basque blouse is given a festive touch by the use of quaint, old fashioned buttons that flash a hint of Dresden colors.

—Round self buttons adorn the sleeves, and the vestee is of steel colored Paulette.

—It has a particularly good looking back, too, as you will note. The crush girde is of the velvet. Bindings and folds are of black satin.

—These frocks of simple lines and exquisite lack of "fussiness" represent VALUE right down to the last detail. Lipman-Wolfe value is represented in the style, quality, niceties of finish, excellence of workmanship and beauty of fit. There will be, we are sure, a surprising lack of alteration, for they are designed to fit, as nearly as is possible for made garments—the woman whose size they are made for. And there are all sizes in the collection.

Description of the Two Sketched Above

—Now here are two brisk frocks that will appeal to the "tailored" woman—the one on the right is of beaver brown with brown silk collar, brown braid bindings and shiny brown buttons. The peplum is full in the back, and the waistline sharply defined by the tailored black leather belt.

—The other one is the ever smart straight line model, distinctively lacking in trimming of any kind save the heavy silk cord, black satin covered buttons and the bindings of black silk braid. The frock itself is entirely black—and, of course, it is stunning.

—There are styles and sizes for the debutante and the matron, as well—the colors are those you would choose were you buying the material to be made up.

Description of the Two Sketched Below

—Two smart suggestions for the tea hours of a debutante. The one at the left is trig, straight line affair of dull blue, which introduces color-relief in the seven little gold buttons. Note the smart pockets.

—The other one is the spirit of "Youth" with its creamy lace bertha over the rich claret velvet. A narrow belt of the same, and sparkling jet buttons complete this charming frock.

Since the Number of Frocks Is Limited, None Will Be Reserved or Exchanged—All Sales Must Be Final
