Harris D. H. Connick Chairman of Finance Committee to Handle Expansion.

NEW YORK—Harris D. H. Connick has accepted the chairmanship of the finance committee of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation and has resigned the vice presidency of the American International corporation to devote himself to his new duties.

Connick graduated from Stanford university as a construction engineer and served as assistant city engineer of San Francisco in the rebuilding of the city after the fire.

Connick's election to the Famous Players-Lasky committee is coincident with a modification preliminary to new financing, which will enlarge considerably the scope of its activities.

In order to provide for the extension of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation to authorize an issue of $20,000,000 8 per cent, cumulative, convertible preferred stock, $100 par, and an increase in common stock of 250,000 shares, with par value.

It is the intention to issue at this time $10,000,000 of the preferred stock. Of the 250,000 shares of additional common stock, approximately 125,000 shares will be set aside to provide for the conversion not only of the $10,000,000 preferred stock now to be issued, but also of the $10,000,000 authorized but unissued preferred.

Subject to the necessary stockholders' action, holders of record November 13 will have the right to subscribe at par up to November 28 to one share of the new convertible preferred for each two shares of the common held.

Delayed Letter Is Plot-Germ in John Ferguson

The real story of 'John Ferguson,' the widely discussed four act play by St. John G. Ervine, that comes to the Heilig today for the end of the week, after a sensational successful run in New York, is the story of a delayed letter. John Ferguson is a North of Ireland farmer of strict orthodox.

A. RING LARDNER STORY IN NEXT SUNDAY'S JOURNAL Stage, Screen and Features

Club Talent Presents Romance

Story of 'Madame Butterfly' Brings Out Several Pleasing Features.

THE story of Madame Butterfly was sung and played by the Monday Musical club before an appreciative audience of friends at the Heilig Tuesday night in a unique dramatic arrangement of the Japanese romance, interspersed with selections from the grand opera.

The cast was composed entirely of local talent. Ada Losh Rose interpreted the difficult role of Butterfly through her sad and tragic romance. The parts of Suzuki and Muri were taken by Mrs. Jane Burns Albert and Mrs. Lulu Dahl Miller.

Walter Jenkins took the part of the American consul and Paul Petri as Pinkerton. Little Leona Mignon Frost made a hit as Baby Trouble and Mrs. A. D. Frost took the brief part of Mrs. Pinkerton.

Mrs. Jane Burns Albert won a storm of applause when she sang 'One Fine Day,' and the Flower duet by her and Mrs. Lulu Dahl Miller was equally well received. The Monday Musical chorus under the direction of Mrs. Rose Courten-Redd gave a demonstration of their ability, and the Monday Musical orchestra, directed by Mrs. E. L. Knight, furnished the music throughout the program.

That the young woman who mends our hose will commend to our mutilating two perfectly good pumpkins for Jack o' lantern purposes, only upon condition that we carefully preserve the 'innards' for pie purposes.

Dear Stroller: Anent your wallop at the 'Girl With the Green Eyes,' I beg to state in the interest of fairness: That I do not know the lady; that some 'poor but respectable working girl' possess inherent good taste, clever fingers, and the brain to cultivate both; that the result of the combination, particularly if the lady has remarkable eyes, and a fair share of good looks, usually gives rise to much speculation, some kindly, some otherwise; that that was my own case before I began to raise a family, and gray hairs and wrinkles. A. M. P. S.—Mostly I enjoy your column very much indeed.

Quite so, quite so, A. M., and may your hair never grow grayer nor your wrinkles deeper.

THE REASON WHY

Why Does My Hair Stand on End When I Am Frightened?

It does this under certain conditions, because there is a little muscle down at the root of each hair that will make each hair stand up straight when this muscle pulls a certain way. It is difficult to say just how these muscles are caused to act in this way when we are frightened. We know that when thoroughly frightened our hair will sometimes stand straight up, and we know that it is this muscle at the root of each hair that makes it possible, but why it is that a big scare will make this muscle act this way we do not as yet know.

THE Stroller notices

THAT it seems to be the general feeling among those with whom you talk on the streets, in the breadline at the cafeteria and elsewhere, that if the coal strike is coming it might as well come now and be settled one way or the other.

That the sentiment is that Uncle Sam isn't going to feel just his own jolly, natural self again until capital and labor mix it good and rough for a while and then make up.

That in the olden days we used to speak of getting the car before the horse.

That nowadays it is a case of getting the garage before the house.

That this is being exemplified by a man out on Sandy boulevard.

That, having built a concrete runway and garage on his lot, he now has a house in course of construction.

That after looking at a weather map we never can tell whether we should wear rubbers or buy freckle cream.

'Tinker Bob' Stories by Carlisle H. Holcomb

BY THE time Tinker Bob and Mr. Turtle arrived with Mr. Turtle, Lady Duck had scattered the news throughout the forest. Many of the forest dwellers had never seen Mr. Turtle nor any of his family, so they gathered at the home of Lady Duck to await his coming.

O. Possum was angry and showed his teeth when he heard what had happened to Lady Duck. Major Pole Cat spoke his wrath against Mr. Turtle also. Chief Porcupine mentioned something about punishment.

'Quack! Quack! There comes the villain,' cried Lady Duck. All eyes peered eagerly down the path.

O. Possum started out to meet the criminal but when his eyes beheld an ugly head stretching out from under a black and muddy shell he came back.

'That's a funny looking thing to be alive,' said O. Possum as they came nearer.

'Everyone gather about closely,' said Tinker, 'and we will listen to Mr. Turtle's story.'

They gathered as closely as they dared. Having never seen Mr. Turtle before, they were a little shy.

'Now, Mr. Turtle, you can tell your story,' said Tinker Bob.

'I am very sorry this has happened,' began Mr. Turtle, stretching his head forth and looking around. 'But I have been controlled by an evil spirit which left me when I came out of the river. It came about like this: I was sunning myself on a log when Old Man Fox threw Lady Duck into the river. Then when he became mad because Lady Duck did not drown, he jumped into the river himself. He soon tired of swimming after Lady Duck and when he could swim no more he sank to the bottom of the river. And when I entered the river again his spirit came and took possession of me and ever since I have been waiting for Lady Duck to come to the river to fish. But when I came out of the river the spirit left me. And I have been thinking how sad it is to think that a father's evil spirit works after he is dead to destroy the home of his children.'

'Isn't that sad!' said O. Possum. 'All were sorry for Mr. Turtle and they gave him a home in the forest. And Tinker Bob was still greater in their mind because he saved Lady Duck.'

Pioneer Coal Mine Closed Indefinitely

Bellingham, Wash., Oct. 30.—(I. N. S.)—The Blue Canyon mine, one of Washington's pioneer bituminous coal producers, soon will close for an indefinite period. It has been operated for more than a quarter of a century and its workings are nearly exhausted. Its lessee, the Whatcomb County Coal company, is not disposed at this time to undertake further development, because of labor disturbances and the heavy cost of driving 2 1/2 necessary 6000 feet of tunnel. The mine produces 200 tons daily.
