

CAMOUFLAGE ART FORGES ATTENTION TO IMPRESSIONIST

Unique Painting Resorted to During Period of War Brings Out Many Ideas of Dame Nature.

ARTIST GIVES VIEWPOINT

Michael J. Bardnikoff, Painter of Modern School, Is in Portland to Remain for Winter.

WIELDED DEFT BRUSH IN CAMOUFLAGE ART

Michael J. Bardnikoff

By Phil Parrish
Camouflage painting during the war forced recognition of the impressionist school as standing for the highest in art, maintains Michael J. Bardnikoff, now in Portland. Bardnikoff was an early volunteer in the navy, and until Germany shouted "kamerad" he wielded his deft brush at Mitchell field, Long Island, making seaplanes look like glares of light or pea-green waves.

"Aluminum colors were used almost entirely on the planes," Bardnikoff said yesterday, as he added a tree to a wild looking landscape. "You see, a bird has a white breast to deflect the sunlight and make it difficult to really focus the eye. The bird's back is grey or green to make it invisible against the ground or foliage. We stole all those tricks of nature for the camouflage service."

SECRET IS EXPLAINED
With a wave of his hand, Bardnikoff brushed aside the conceits that have ruled artists since the first pinch-bug posed for an Egyptian hieroglyphic. "Men and women don't realize that they get only an impression when they glance at a landscape, and there is the secret of the new art."

Bardnikoff intends to remain in Portland for the winter, interpreting the beauty spots that have made the Northwest a mecca for nature lovers. He already has a number of paintings on exhibition in the Remick Song Shop, where his easel has been set up.

FAMOUS PAINTINGS NAMED
One of Bardnikoff's most famous paintings was presented to Miss Margaret Wilson, President Wilson's daughter, as an appreciation for the soldiers for her singing in the camps. Another, "The Forest Fire," which would cover the side of a large room, was presented to the Y. M. C. A. This picture was painted after Bardnikoff had studied forest fires for years in California.

Bardnikoff claims to have painted many of the pictures shown by Doctor Cook upon his return from the Arctic as taken from scenes at the North Pole. Not that Bardnikoff was with Doctor Cook, but when he was 14 years old he ran away from home in Russia and finally reached the White North. There he joined the biological expedition organized by Grand Duke Sergius and made several trips into the ice fields. Their ship, the Andrey Terzky, was wrecked on the ice.

ARTIST TRAVELS ABOARD
Bardnikoff was caught in the midst of a revolution in Rio de Janeiro. He failed to make his way to safety. Being without funds, he went to the immigration house in the city where they stopped. The officials didn't wait to ask questions; they simply locked him up with hundreds of European immigrant families for shipment to the interior. One of the men in charge, however, took a liking to Bardnikoff and the next day introduced him to the brother of the president of Brazil, who gave him a letter to the manager of the farm where he was to be sent.

PUT ON SLOW TRAIN
The slow train on which the immigrants were once dragged along for 30 days through dense sylvan on its way to the interior. At the end of the railroad they were herded off and driven to a farm 20 miles away where Bardnikoff was put to work killing white ants.

"I worked for two days," Bardnikoff reported, "and then I made a mistake of drinking out of a pool. In that country you have to ask the natives which pool is poisonous and which clean. I was sick with fever for weeks, and when I regained strength I thought I decided that it was time to run away. Now the law of Central Brazil is that the manager of the farm wears two guns. I started for what I thought was the station, but heeded in the wrong direction and would have died in the jungle if a native hadn't sent me in the right direction. Before I reached the station I met the manager. I showed him the letter from the president's brother. If it had not been for that he would have shot me."

LANDS IN UNITED STATES
When Bardnikoff finally found the United States he didn't want to leave.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR FORMING OF JUNIOR CHAMBER

Purpose of Organization Is Cooperation With Older Body in Education, Commerce, Industry

NO REGULAR DUES EXACTED

Membership Is to Be Drawn From Commercial Organizations in Colleges and Schools.

Organization of a Junior State Chamber of Commerce was practically completed during the week, when Deans Bexell of the Oregon Agricultural college and Merton of the University of Oregon and Professors Hastings of Reed college and Elin of the Portland High School of Commerce, met at the State Chamber of Commerce headquarters and drew up the proposed constitution for the organization.

The object of this organization is to cooperate with the Oregon state chamber, on educational, industrial, agricultural, civic and commercial problems, and the headquarters will be in the office of the senior organization. Any commercial organization in an Oregon college or high school may become a member of this state body with approval of the board of directors. Individual members may be admitted to non-voting membership.

TWO DELEGATES ALLOWED
Each commercial body affiliated with the junior state chamber will have two delegates, one to serve the senior class of the school and one from the instructional staff. The annual meeting of delegates will be held at the place of meeting of the State Teachers' association.

NO REGULAR DUES
There will be no regular dues in the association, and the directors will have the power to levy assessments against member organizations for specific purposes, not in excess of 10 cents a year for each individual member.

Additional Roads Bonds to Be Urged In Grays Harbor

Aberdeen, Wash., Nov. 1.—A proposal to bond the county for $1,200,000 in order to make possible consummation of a program to spend upwards of $4,000,000 on roads of the county during the ensuing five years, was endorsed at a meeting of property owners representing all portions of the county at a meeting last night.

The plan was given indorsement by the county commissioners. The final agreement was to submit the proposition to the voters at an election to be held in December on the same day that the port election occurs.

School Gymnasium For Warrenton Is Nearing Completion
Warrenton, Nov. 1.—A $15,000 one-story gymnasium building, being erected at the rear of the present high school, will be completed in January, according to W. C. Wickline, in charge of construction. The building will be 50 by 125 feet and will house the domestic science and manual training departments as well as the athletic rooms. The basketball floor will be 42 by 78 feet.

Bear Killed at Warrenton
Warrenton, Nov. 1.—Less than an hour after six young Warrenton men had left town they killed a 300 pound black bear about a mile from the S. P. & S. station at Shipman. The hunters were Fred Abbott, Albert Hollenbeck, Henry Smith, Kermit Bestul, Joe Buxton and Hobart Kline. Bears are numerous in this season.

Hail Follows Thunder
Warrenton, Nov. 1.—Ninety seconds after the first clap of thunder the ground here Wednesday was covered with hailstones three-eighths of an inch deep. No hail outside of the town was reported.

PIANIST WILL PLAY CONCERTO AT FIRST ORCHESTRA CONCERT

Rudolph Ganz Is Heralded as Many-Sided and Well-Balanced Artist.

Rudolph Ganz will be soloist for the opening concert of this season of the Portland Symphony orchestra, which will be given Wednesday evening, November 22, at the Heilig theatre, with Carl Denton as conductor.

Rudolph Ganz is regarded as being a many-sided and well-balanced artist. The three "Ta"—technique, taste and temperament, are his in happiest combination. Brilliance, singing quality, feeling all are said to be his. His power is in tone production, not in callisthenics, and with his last note is said to come the feeling that the artist has interpreted his author, and has not merely exploited himself.

Rudolph Ganz was the first of the great foreign pianists to exploit intelligently and consistently the works of American composers. For the past 10 years he has been using American numbers on his programs.

An Important Sale of Odd Pieces for Your Bedroom
We sell scores of fine suites in which the customer prefers to omit some piece—perhaps a dresser, a chiffonier, or a dressing table; or, sometimes a metal bed is substituted for the one belonging to the suite. Naturally, this leaves us with dozens of fine Odd Pieces to be disposed of at a sacrifice, which gives the seeker for a bargain an opportunity. Such a sale we are going to hold this week. The very heavy selling of the past few weeks has left many odd pieces here and there.
