Tinker Bob Stories

by Carlisle H. Holcomb

TINKER BOB found Chief Porky filling himself on the bark of a saasafraz tree. It wasn't the best season in the year to eat saasafraz, but Mr. Porcupine felt that his blood was too thick and he needed a tonic.

"Oh, King! Oh, King!" cried the Sparrow, "some one has stolen your throne."

Sparrow, "Some one has stolen your throne and he tried to kill me."

"Stolen the throne!" exclaimed Tinker Bob, greatly surprised.

"Oh, King! I know not what it was, but his nose was long and his ears were sharp and his face all covered with hair."

Tinker Bob had planned it all in his mind. "Mr. Frog with his Tree Toad chorus will give their last entertainment before their voices freeze up for the winter."

At this point the conversation was interrupted by the appearance of the forest Sparrow.

The book runs the theme of the high cost of man-power and woman's vast contribution to the world.

Much of the charm of Dr. Lovejoy's book is in its simple yet forceful narration, which seems to take one behind the scenes and to give a real, truthful insight into the problems handled at the House of the Good Neighbor.

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all winter, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolized wax.

Petticoats of muslin, lace trimmed or with embroidered flounces, have touches of soft colored ribbons.

Knickers in khaki, wool mixtures, cotton mixtures and corduroy, at sample prices.

Skirts of Palm Beach cloth, pique, novelty weave, poplin, wool mixture and French serge are included.

Crepe de Chine and Seco Silk Combinations in flesh, lace trimmed and embroidered or with insets of embroidered organdy.

Crepe de Chine and Satin Camisoles in flesh with touches of lace or embroidery have ribbon shoulder straps.

Crepe de Chine, Sateen and Jap Crepe Bloomers, lace trimmed or plain.
