Bedroom Farce Pleases at Heilig

Lots of Fun Is Built About the Episode of Pink Chemise.

By S. R. Jr.

THE program says that "Up in Mabel's Room," opening at the Heilig last night for the rest of the week, is a "frivolous farce of feminine foibles." It is all of that, and maybe a little bit more. But whatever else it may be it is decidedly farcical, grotesquely so at times, but it entertains and amuses immensely, and is not in the least harmful—at least not to adults, and particularly if they're married, or have been. The presenting company is quite up to the requirements of their roles, while Julie Ring as Mabel and Sager Midgley giving a particularly clever performance as Garry Ainsworth, pure hearted young husband upon whom suspicion and circumstance fasten vampirish tentacles that threaten to crush out his very existence. He does have a sad time of it before everything is straightened out. Sad for him, but hilarious for the front of the house.

It seems that Garry, before his marriage to a catty little sort of a wife, whom he loves nevertheless, had sent to Mabel, whom at that time he believed he might marry, a rose pink chemise, embroidered with his name, etc. At a house party Garry and h.s wife and Mabel meet. Mabel, to give Mrs. Garry something to ponder over, threatens to show her the pink. Garry is frantic. He coaxes, pleads and threatens in an effort to get the chemise back, but Mabel is adamant.

Then Garry and his valet try to steal it, and that's how Garry happens to be found under Mabel's bed, and to make matters worse, through a misunderstanding, the rest of the people at the house party, including Mabel's fiance, are led to believe that the "little pink thing" is realy a baby.

It's really quite a mess, aud though the action doesn't follow along conventional lines of play construction by any means, everything is finally straightened out.

"Up in Mabel's Room" goes through tomorrow night, with matinee tomorrow afternoon.

"Up in Mabel's Room" is in three acts and there's no music at the Heilig this week to take up time in the slack in the intermissions.

National Guard

Officers of the Third regiment, National Guard of Oregon, are to give a reception and ball early in January to all the officers of the U. S. army and navy and veteran officers of the Mexican border, overseas forces, Philippine insurrection and Spanish-American war, etc. An effort will be made to secure the attendance of every man in Portland who ever held a commission in the service of his country.

Formation of the Third Oregon military band is well under way. Wednesday night at the Armory 21 musicians reported for organization and for practice. Ed Manring led in preliminary testouts. Tom Willis, drum major of the old Third Oregon band, was present, and was given his former position. All musicians are invited to attend the next meeting Wednesday evening.

Captain E. J. Elvers is chairman of the sports committee of the Third Oregon, and has been commissioned to secure, procure, beg, borrow or purchase as a last resort—a full set of baseball, basketball, wrestling and boxing outfits to be used in contests. Colonel William Reidt and Captain Elvers have been designated by Colonel C. C. Hammond as a gogetem committee.

Veterans of Company G, First regiment, O. N. G., held a reunion Wednesday night at the Imperial hotel, R. E. Davis presiding. The occasion was to celebrate the thirty-sixth anniversary of the company. Forty-five members were present.

At a meeting of the board of National Guard officers Thursday night at the Armory, presided over by Colonel C. C. Hammond, Colonel William Reidt, retired, was elected an honorary member. Colonel Reidt has acted as a good angel of the old Third Oregon and is now taking the new Third Oregon under his wing.

Daily Fashion Hint

Prepared especially for The Journal

Emphasizing the winter silhouette

The woman who wishes to give a touch of color to her one-piece frock may combine a long-waisted blouse of autumn-yellow crepe de chine to a skirt of brown satin and trim the front of the blouse with buttons to correspond with the skirt, as shown in the first illustration. Belt, collar, vest and cuffs are of the blouse material. Medium size requires 2¾ yards 40-inch crepe and 1⅞ yards 36-inch satin.

Still another method of brightening a dark fabric is shown in the second frock of very dark gray tricotine with a vest and border of embroidery in gray, bright and black. The belt and deep over collar are of tricotine and the sleeves show a touch of the embroidery about the wrists. Medium size requires 3 yards 48-inch material and 1¾ yards 36-inch lining.

First Model—Dress No. 8517. Sizes 34 to 44-inch bust. Price 27 cents.
Second Model—Dress No. 8496. Sizes 34 to 50-inch bust. Price 27 cents.

Pedestrians Are Blamed for Accidents

Judge Rossman Scores Jaywalkers in Address to Portland Business Women's Club.

By Vella Winner

CARELESSNESS on the part of pedestrians and lack of proper laws for drivers of automobiles were scored by Judge George Rossman in an address given Thursday evening at the monthly dinner of the Portland Business Women's club given in the Tyrolean room of the Hotel Benson. Eighty per cent of the accidents between automobiles and pedestrians are due to the carelessness of pedestrians, the speaker said, who also compared the laws and rules surrounding motormen who operate streetcars with the result that a minimum of accidents are caused by motormen. Young boys, inexperienced drivers, drunken people and people mentally deficient operate automobiles with the result that in November 68 people were struck by machines and one person was hit by a streetcar. Judge Rossman urged enactment of laws to safeguard the public from this wholesale number of accidents.

Resolutions offered by the president of the club, Mrs. Willametta McElroy, placing the club and its individual members on record as heartily indorsing the movement to lessen street accidents in Portland.

The meeting was presided over by Miss Clara Redhaffer. Music was given by Mrs. Katherine Matson and Miss Marie Dooley at the piano. Miss Adelia Prichard gave a comprehensive report of the general educational conferences of the field committee of the Y. W. C. A. recently held in Spokane. Miss Gertrude P. Bader, Oregon state director for the business and professional women's world service program for the Northwest field committee of the Y. W. C. A. illustrated the merits of the association and its ability to meet an emergency by the way it handled some of the big war problems of girls and women.

The silver tea held at the Vernon branch library Tuesday, December 2, proved to be a pleasant and profitable occasion. Miss Jessie Millard, who has charge of all the children's library books of the city, was present to meet the mothers in groups as they came and went, and had with them that close heart to heart talk with each to make her feel the necessity of putting the best books before their children. There was also a display of the books suitable for children. Mrs. E. P. Small and Mrs. Robinson had charge of the tea and managed the affair in a very creditable manner.

Negro Musicians To Jazz at The Auditorium

American Syncopated Orchestra and Singers Booked for Two Performances.

NEGOTIATIONS have been concluded by Hal M. White, manager of The Auditorium, whereby the city will present the famous American Syncopated Orchestra and Singers at The Auditorium at popular prices next Wednesday afternoon and night.

The organization comprises 30 negro musicians, under the direction of Will Marion Cook. The company gives to the public the negro music, both vocal and instrumental, including not only the present-day music, but the original plantation melodies. It is not only an orchestra of strings, banjos, wind, wood and brass, but each member is also a talented singer.

Will Marion Cook, conductor, is said to be one of the greatest musicians of the negro race. The orchestra is at present in California, where it has been playing to packed houses at San Francisco.

The art craft classes at the Y. W. C. A. will hold their first exhibit on Wednesday, December 10. There will be pottery, basketry, tapestry weaving and toys on exhibit as well as Christmas gift novelties, which will be for sale. There are 51 people taking advantage of the classes and each week brings new members. New classes will be formed if there is sufficient demand for the work. At present the classes are arranged as follows: Grade school girls, Saturday, 9:30-11:30, 1-3; high school girls, Tuesday afternoon, 3-5; business girls, Tuesday evening, 6:30-8:30; matrons, Friday morning, 10-12. The fees are 25 cents a term for junior members of the Y. W. C. A. and 50 cents for non-members; 50 cents for adult members of the association, and $1 for non-members. Arrangements for work may be made through Miss Helen Allison Phillips, Main 7876.

Marguerite Hughes, Violinist, Will Play At Organ Recital

Marguerite Hughes, celebrated violinist, has been secured by the city for the program at the popular concert Sunday afternoon at The Auditorium. Miss Hughes will play three popular selections and announcement of her appearance is expected to increase attendance at the concert far over the usual record.

William Robinson Boone is the organist Sunday and has selected several of the old time favorites as revivals.

Drama 'Frat' Formed At the Willamette U.

Willamette University, Salem, Dec. 3.—For the purpose of advancing dramatic art in Willamette university, 10 men of the college of liberal arts have organized a local Greek Letter fraternity. The name, "Theta Alpha Phi," is the same name as that of the normal dramatic fraternity now in the progress of organization with the other chapter in the Oklahoma Agricultural college. The officers of the new organization are: Orville Crowder-Miller, a junior of Salem, president; Edwin Socolofsky, junior of Salem, director of dramatics; and Oscar D. Olson, junior of Woodburn, secretary treasurer. The other charter members are Ralph Thomas, junior of Wenatchee, Wash.; Fred McGrew, junior of Idaho Falls; Lloyd Waltz, a freshman of Salem; Howard Mort, junior of Goldendale; Horace Rahskopf, senior of Salem; Gustav Anderson, senior of Salem; and Paul Fiegel, junior of Portland.

Pauline Frederick at Peoples

Now the popular star of "One Week of Life," her new Goldwyn showing today only at the Peoples theatre, Pauline Frederick hasn't forgotten her first professional appearance. It was in Boston at a vaudeville house and she warbled "Mavourneen" twice a day. Those old time favorites the Nichols sisters taught her how to make up. Who could teach her anything about making up nowadays? She plays two roles in "One Week of Life" and the only change in the widely different characters is the expression that comes from within.

The Bathtub Sea

My boat is on the bathtub sea,
As white a boat as boats can be,
As shining sails, as even keel!
Oh, now I know how captains feel;
For I, too, have the same emotion
Oh, boat upon the bathtub ocean!

College Dance Will Be Big Affair

Ball to Take Place at Multnomah Hotel Monday Evening, December 29.

By Helen H. Hutchison

COLLEGE folk who have been working for the building fund of the woman's building at the University of Oregon are making extensive plans for a big college ball to be given at Multnomah hotel Monday evening, December 29. The ball will be sponsored by members of all sororities represented at the university, also by the University of Oregon alumni and Hendricks hall students. Washington State college and the University of Oregon will also be represented in arrangements for the affair.

Another feature of the program of the State university is the benefit play given this evening at the Little theatre by the University of Oregon players, under the direction of Fergus Reddie. The curtain will rise at 8:15 o'clock. The play is "Real Things," written by Mrs. Edwin Seely Parsons, who is a member of the college faculty. A number of line parties have been arranged for this evening's performance.

Cunning Promises To Unveil Mysteries

How often has the great Alexander tied the brows of Portland audiences into knots of puzzlement? Dozens of times, of course. And just a few days ago, in The Auditorium, Dr. Eddy, spiritualistic entertainer, mystified 3000 fans of the occult by his familiarity with the "spirit" world. Now comes Cunning, who will appear at The Auditorium Sunday night, in an expose of the "mysticists," tearing away the veil of mystery and giving his audience the master key to every stunt that has mystified them. Cunning announces that he will duplicate the most baffling tricks of Alexander and Eddy, and then show his audience how the startling results were attained. Cunning asserts that he is in the field to give the public a taste of the truth, along with an evening of unequaled legerdemain. Gravitation tricks, table tipping, suspended bodies, spirit materializations, cabinet antics, thought reading and crystal gazing are but a few of the mysteries that Cunning guarantees to portray like a master—ere he makes it clear to the audience just how he fooled them.

THE Stroller notices

THAT whenever we eat down town with the family, the little ones want to know why we don't use finger bowls at home.

That they ask it loud enough for the world to hear.

That last evening we saw a fat man whose teeth were chattering so violently that his cheeks were doing a shimmy.

That from time to time The Stroller has noticed that pedestrians should be made to observe the traffic semaphores.

That notices that pedestrians must observe the semaphores were posted on the principal downtown street corners yesterday.

That you can draw your own conclusions.

G. W., 1586 Grand Ave. South, City: Thank you for your complimentary letter.

Answering your question as to whether we would advise a young man to enter the newspaper business when his inclinations lean that way, as you say yours do, we would unhesitatingly say "yes". It's a great business, or "game," as some of the boys call it, and as a matter of fact, during the umteen years we've been at it, in practically every department in the editorial end and in some of the others, we've found it just that—a game, with rewards commensurate with those of any other game that's played well and fairly.

Sure it's hard, sometimes, any game is, and there are disappointments and discouragements and all that—but you'll find them, no matter what career you follow. But newspaper work, it seems, has a certain fascination lacking in most other lines. You meet big people; you're in the thick of things all the time; something new every day, and always, if you're conscientious and sincere and honest and faithful—and you won't be a good newspaper man unless you are. There's the satisfaction of knowing that you're entertaining people; offering them instruction, helping to mould public opinion.

We could write a whole book about how we love the business, and we'd like to do it, but we haven't time. Some really fine newspaper men have done so, however, and we'd advise that you go up to the library and get one or more of those books, the librarian will help you find them, and read up on the game. You'll find it interesting and helpful reading.

Sure, take a course in a university, if you can, but why go to Washington? Oregon has a dandy school at Eugene.

Come up sometime, G. W, and between strolls we'll talk it over with you. T. S.

Violinist Will Be Soloist at Organ Recital on Sunday

Portland's Sunday organ concerts at The Auditorium are attracting the attention of some of the smaller cities on the coast as evidenced by a letter sent to Mayor Baker from San Diego requesting that the Portland executive furnish information as to the educational features of high class music.

Mayor Baker is highly in favor of the concerts and believes that they should be continued throughout the winter. Organists and soloists are giving their services practically free while the city is donating The Auditorium.

Patrons at next Sunday's concert will have an opportunity of hearing William Robinson Boone at the pipe organ, assisted by Marguerite Hughes, violinist. This will be the first concert at which an instrumentalist has appeared in conjunction with an organist.

"Tinker Bob" Stories
by Carlysle H. Holcomb

Miss Mousey Displeases the King

TINKER BOB, King of the Forest, was delighted to find that the forest dwellers of one accord concerning the recent Mr. Ground Hog. Each one seemed anxious to have a part.

Lady Duck was more than glad to do her part, for she promised an egg for every visitor. Mr. Muskrat said he would gather an ample supply of sassafras, alder, and wild cherry bark. And Mr. Turtle made final arrangements with the chipmunk and Mr. Squirrel for plenty of nuts of various kinds and flavors.

"But I must make sure Mr. Frog will not disappoint us," said Tinker, as he thought about the music for the evening. "I will go at once to see Mr. Frog."

Tinker Bob found Mrr Frog as usual singing his doleful song. Says he: "Mr. Frog, tell me truly; will you play for the reception or no?"

"Well," said Mr. Frog, "I have just received another important request from the home of Miss Tree Mouse. You see, one of my distant cousins, Mr. Tree Toad, is going to marry Miss Mousey and I must be at the wedding."

"But why have this wedding on the night of the great reception?" asked Tinker Bob.

"I do not know," said Mr. Frog.

"But don't you know I must give consent before any one can marry in the great forest?"

"Yes, I know," said Mr. Frog. "Miss Mousey's father expects that you will marry them."

"This is a very strange thing," said Tinker Bob, "I will have to go at once to Miss Mousey's house and see what can be done."

Tinker Bob started straightway to Miss Mousey's house, but there were still things stranger that happened before he arrived. Here is some of the conversation that was taking place before he reached there:

"The King of the great forest is angry because he plans a reception for Mr. Ground Hog on the night of your wedding," Mr. Frog was telling her.

"But I expect the King to marry us!" she cried.

"But your father did not tell him so, and now he will punish you both and maybe he will not let Mr. Tree Toad marry you at all. You know such things have happened before, and it might happen again because big things always come from small beginnings and this is not very big now, but what the King is apt to do no one can tell." At this moment Miss Mousey fell in a faint. It was too much for her frail body to stand to think of what the King might do.

Also at this moment the King came into view and who do you think he saw? No other than Jerry the Jay bird who had been gossiping about what he heard Mr. Frog and Tinker Bob say. A few misplaced words have made many people faint.
